CURLEY AGAINST THE FIELD

Ex-Professor Accused as Red Aide

Harry Ward, former Boston University professor, was today described as the "outstanding purveyor of Communistic doctrines in American institutions of higher learning."

This estimate was made by Royal K. Hayes of Middleboro, a witness before the special legislative commission investigating subversive and un-American movements in Massachusetts.

Ward, professor of social service at the Boston University school of theology from 1913 to 1918, is now associated with the Union Theological Seminary, New York, in a professional capacity.

Hayes testified that "Ward paints a beautiful picture of the Soviet system and belittles the American system."

"RESEARCH WORKER"

The witness, Hayes, twice evaded questions as to his occupation, each time identifying himself as a "research worker."

Hayes admitted his work was not for a "private corporation." A persistent report that he was a G-man was referred to the local Department of Justice office, which dismissed the matter with the explanation:

"He is not employed here."

Hayes branded the League Against War and Fascism the spearhead of the Communist Party here. He said Professor Ward was an official of the league and was greatly in demand as a speaker before "radical groups."

"PROPAGANDA FACTORIES"

Hayes admitted he had worked as an under-cover man to obtain information regarding the spread of Communism in theological seminaries, colleges and from the pulpits.

He attended classes and passed examinations at Eastern Theological Seminary, Philadelphia and studied at Newton Theological Seminary, he said.

During the course of his testimony Hayes defined historic Old South Meeting House, Ford Hall Forum and the Community Church as "propaganda factories."

Ghandi's Illness Causes New Alarm

CALCUTTA, India, Nov. 1 (AP)—Reports on the health of Mohandas K. Ghandi, diminutive Indian leader, caused renewed anxiety today. Because of the condition of his heart and a rise of blood pressure, he postponed his departure for Silliguri to interview Sir John Anderson, governor of Bengal, on the release of political prisoners.

Laemmle Denies Rift in Romance

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1 (INS)—The romance of Ernest Laemmle, nephew of the noted film producing family, and Odetta Bray, Hawaiian beauty, has not gone on the rocks, as reported by Hollywood gossips, the couple made known today.

Simpson Grins, Chews Gum As Trial for Killing Opens

Edward P. Simpson, accused slayer of two Newton policemen, is being led into Middlesex court just a few minutes before his trial for life was started today. Court Officer Charles Robinson is with Simpson, while all about armed guards are stationed.

7 Jurors Chosen To Pass on Guilt of Confessed Slayer

Seven jurors were chosen today as Edward P. Simpson, accused slayer of two Newton policemen, went on trial in Middlesex superior court.

Simpson showed no nervousness as he watched from his cage during the selection of jurors. Chewing gum constantly, grinning occasionally, he burst into hearty laughter and a stir was caused in the courtroom during the questioning of a prospective juror, Bert Eckstrom, 35, a Somerville clerk.

"Have you formed or expressed any opinion in this case?" Eckstrom was asked by the court.

"I think he's guilty," came the reply.

As Eckstrom was excused, Simpson, in the prisoner's cage, continued smiling broadly and chuckling.

DOUBLE CHARGE

Simpson is the second person in the history of Middlesex County to be tried on a double murder charge and for this reason was allowed 24 challenges.

He is charged with the murders of two Newton patrolmen, Henry G. Nell and Lawrence Murphy, last August 22 in Watertown, after the officers had stopped his car on a motor vehicle law violation.

Henry F. Collins, 32, a Malden laborer and the first veniremen questioned, was selected as the first juror.

After several others had been excused or challenged, Daniel J. Hart,

200 Sing Sing Convicts Mourn at Mrs. Lawes' Bier

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (INS)—Sing Sing, touched by the death of its warden's wife, gave a remarkable demonstration today of sympathy and sorrow.

Two hundred cell-hardened convicts—twice as many had sought the privilege—filed out of the south gate of the prison and climbed the hill leading to Warden Lewis E. Lawes' residence beyond the walls, where the body of Mrs. Katherine Lawes, victim of a bizarre tragedy, lay in its casket.

It was a curious sight—these 200 men, none of whom had been outside the walls in seven years, shambling along in perfect order to gaze upon, and a few to shed a tear upon, the casket of the woman whose kindnesses in life had won for her the title of the prison's "foster mother."

Others among the prisoners, who work in the gardens and greenhouse, prepared a floral tribute.

Mrs. Lawes died as the result of a fall when her slipper caught in the boardwalk near Bear Mountain bridge.

Officer Bags Deer in Street

Buck Trailed by Dog Pack in Newton

TALLY HO!

Harken to the strangest deer hunt of 'em all.

Patrolman Joseph R. Charlton, of the Newton police department, was rolling along in his cruising car near the Brae Burn Country Club, today, when he saw a sight that caused him to gape in wonder.

A beautiful, big buck deer in full flight. At his heels a yelping pack of assorted dogs. Bringing up the rear, face red with exertion, the golf club's green keeper on a bicycle!

Patrolman Charlton stepped on the gas, caught up with the flying deer, and jumped from the automobile.

His first shot went wild. The second struck the racing buck behind the right foreshoulder and brought it down.

The mongrel pack evaporated with the shots; the green keeper fell from his bicycle shouting that the deer had ruined his greens and Patrolman Charlton had committed a grave error.

Legally, game officials say, the officer had no right to shoot at the deer, the green keeper, or the dogs as all of them under the rules are out of season.

State game wardens will claim the deer which now hangs high from a clothes pole in Patrolman Charlton's back yard.

Britain Puts China Peace Up to U. S.

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Commons today that Britain will go exactly as far as the United States—"in full agreement with them—not rushing in front, but not left behind"—in seeking an end to the Chinese-Japanese conflict at the Brussells Nine-Power conference which opens Wednesday.

Making clear that the United States is expected to take the lead in any definite action, Eden said he wanted to "make it quite plain" that the United States took the initiative in convoking the conference, and that any action in the Far Eastern dispute "essentially depended on cooperation of the United States."

The United States provided impetus for holding the conference, and also suggested that Brussels be the meeting place, he asserted.

"I say without hesitation," he added, "that in order to get full cooperation, on an equal basis, of the United States government in the international conference, I would travel not only from Geneva to Brussels, but from Melbourne to Alaska—the more particularly, in the present situation of international affairs."

REPLY TO MUSSOLINI

Eden, speaking in the debate on foreign affairs, dealt with the Far Eastern crisis, Germany's desire for the return of her war-lost colonies, and with piracy at sea growing out of the Spanish civil war.

The foreign secretary advised Italy flatly, amid cheers, that no one need expect the return of colonies to Germany while Premier Mussolini keeps territory which Italy won in the war.

Thus, with what he described as his own "appalling frankness," Eden answered Mussolini's urging in an address last week, that Germany be given back a "place in the African sun."

Italy gained the German-speaking Southern Tyrol as a consequence of the World War.

New Liquor Ring Probe Pressed

Climaxing a series of spectacular raids on illicit stills in Worcester County, U. S. prosecutor Robert W. Meserve announced today that he would seek indictments against unnamed police officials in Worcester County for conspiracy to violate the federal liquor tax laws.

Describing the liquor ring as one of the largest uncovered in New England since prohibition days, Meserve stated that his proposed action grew out o fthe secret indictment returned Friday against 11 members of the ring by the Federal grand jury.

Among those named in the indictment were Charles Laude, Springfield; Mariano and Nazarene Cursei of Leicester; Jack Grossman, Worcester, and Frank Conti, of West Boylston. All pleaded not guilty to illegal possession of the $100,000 still seized in Leicester, October 26. Federal District Judge Hugh D. McLellan held them in bail.

Federal Prosecutor Meserve said that five others had been arraigned previously in Worcester.

Another man, Louis Bracci of Wales, has been indicted and is being sought, Meserve said.

Wife Tells Of Killing Policeman

MRS. PATRICIA RYAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (INS)—The icy calm with which Mrs. Patricia Ryan informed police she had shot and killed her husband because he refused to put their car in the garage, gave way to hysteria today.

"He had no right to be so rotten—so mean—" the attractive 20-year-old brunette sobbed.

It was the first break in her composure since police found her clad in a nightgown, standing over the body of her husband, Michael, 28, a rookie patrolman.

She calmly told them, they said, that Michael grumbled and refused to get up when asked to put the car away. That when she asked him again, he shouted at her, awakening the baby. And that then she shot him twice, with his own service pistol, as he tried to get out of bed.

Police were nonplussed by her poise when she calmly stepped over her husband's body to get her clothes. In court, where she was held without bail for hearing Thursday, she maintained her amazing calm.

The shooting left her two children fatherless—Michael, 2, and Patricia, 9 months.

Opponents See Him As Man to Beat

The Political Campaign

A third of a million voters today prepared to go to the polls in Boston's mayoralty election tomorrow as the hottest campaign in years came to a fireworks-laden end.

Featuring "wind-up day" in the race were the following developments:

1—Observers placed former Governor Curley against the field as all major candidates issued confident predictions of victory.

2—Two hundred men and women vigilantes were organized to watch the polls in Cambridge following reports of a monster underworld plot to "steal" elections in Greater Boston communities.

3—In a zero hour move, the Boston Election Commission struck 276 names from the city's registration rolls. This action raised the total of disenfranchised "ghosts" to 367.

4—Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon ordered Deputy Superintendents William W. Livingston, James R. Claflin and John M. Anderson to active duty at the polls.

5—A total of 2828 precinct officers reported to the election commissioners that they were ready to go on duty at the city's 388 polling places.

Complete Details on Pages 4 and 5

By FRANK K. REILLY

With political observers declaring it "looks like Curley against the field," the mayoralty candidates today went into a sprint for the campaign finish line.

The observers' view came because former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin and District Attorney William J. Foley, in their late rallies, appeared to each take the position that his chief opponent is former Governor Curley.

Today, after an impromptu rally in Pemberton square, attended by nearly 3000, the former Governor predicted that he will win tomorrow's election "by a plurality of more than 40,000 votes."

CURLEY SEES VICTORY

Lunching at the Parker House, his headquarters, with Mrs. Curley, his daughter, Mrs. Mary Curley Donnelley, and his aide for years, Roxbury Court Clerk Theodore A. Glynn, the former governor declared:

"All I've got to say is—the fight is won. There's nothing left to be said after that rally last night.

"I'll get 40 per cent of the total vote, or about 114,000 votes. The second man, Nichols, will not get more than 70,000. Tobin will get about 58,000 for third and Foley 37,000.

"I'll carry both South Boston wards and Tobin and Foley can't

GEN. JOHNSON SAYS:

U. S. Steel Names Able New Leaders

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—The choice of the governor of a state or a jockey to ride some sudden nation-shaking New Deal white rabbit as administrator, is news for a long while. But the selection of a new chairman of the board and a new President of the United States Steel Corporation is front page stuff for a day.

HUGH S. JOHNSON

While some states are political empires, we have economic empires which are of far more concern to the daily living of hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of people than any political government under the sun. They are wealthier than some states.

The number of people employed, or in some degree affected by what they do, is larger than the population of some states. They hire, they fire and they fix wages. They produce large proportions of our absolute necessities. Their earnings, or the lack of them, affect the welfare of millions directly or indirectly.

They are, in a sense, the property of hundreds of thousands of stockholders who own, through stock, a right to their earnings. Through trusts, insurance companies and banks, which hold their securities as protection for savings or fortunes big and little, millions of people have an "equity" in them.

Yet, though so many people have a stake in them, and they possess almost a power of economic life over so many others, they are not democracies.

As a fiction of law they are "artificial persons"—but they have no souls. They are a form of economic government supposed to be run through a congress of directors elected by a majority of stockholders.

These directors choose their supreme rulers. But stockholders are so scattered and indifferent that owners of a few sizable minority blocks always choose the directors and, through these directors, the chief executives.

* * *

It is a kind of oligarchy choosing a sultan and a grand vizier. These dignitaries take a responsibility surely heavier than the puppet crown of England and wield far more personal power.

For all these reasons, the selection of Edward Stettinius to be Chairman of the Board of Big Steel, and Ben Fairless to be its President, seems to me to be of greater importance to more people than who is Governor of Utah or Muddom Muliebrity, Secretary of Labor. Under the system of their choice, we might possibly have gotten Uriah Heep and Simon Legree. But we didn't.

Eddie Stettinius' father was my boss and close friend in the war, the cream of the crop of the great business executives of his day, and a faithful public servant.

I knew his boy as a kid—a second Looey pulling every Washington wire he could reach—to be given combatant duty in France. He served with me later—a young man in a hot spot of strain and responsibility between the biggest shots in American industry and labor.

* * *

He left with the respect, admiration and affection of all of them on both sides of the argument. I'll tell you how good he is. If he were your son, your best friends would avoid you for talking about him all the time.

I wish his father were here to know about this. The new head of Big Steel is human, able, modest, decent and fair. If all the workers, all the consumers and all the stockholders had elected a chairman they couldn't have done better for themselves.

The President of U. S. Steel has always come, I believe, as Mr. Fairless has, from the ranks of labor. He carries on the tradition of James Farrell and Wm. Irwin. You can't better describe brave, honest, American ability.

Italy in Anti-Red Pact, Says Paper

LONDON, Nov. 1 (INS)—The Tokyo newspaper Ashai, defying a government press ban, declared Italy has agreed to adhere to the German-Japanese anti-Communist treaty, the London Daily Telegraph said today.

The draft of the agreement among Italy, Germany and Japan is already completely drawn up and will shortly be signed formally in Rome, according to Ashai, a Tokyo dispatch to the Telegraph reported.

Japs Apologize For Foray Into U. S. Sector

British Hold Outposts In Face of Shells, Machine Gun Fire

SHANGHAI, Nov. 1 (AP)—Japanese Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa apologized today to the United States marine commander who protested against a Japanese foray on the American-protected side of Soochow creek.

A party of Japanese bluejackets had crossed the creek to the American sector of the International Settlement in a rice-laden junk, seized after scaring off the Chinese crew by firing blank cartridges.

Brigadier-General John C. Beaumont, Marine commander in Shanghai, protested to Hasegawa, who apologized and promised there would be no recurrence of the incident.

The apology came as 7000 Japanese shock troops, under cover of a thunderous artillery barrage, crossed Soochow creek west of Shanghai. Closer to the settlement, Japanese used the Chinese junk and other craft to negotiate the creek and attack Chinese positions along the south bank.

BRITISH HOLD LINES

As Japanese attempted to blast their way into Chinese positions and encircle Shanghai, Major-General A. P. D. Telfer-Smollett, commander of British troops, refused to withdraw his soldiers from outposts in western sections of the city.

In answer to Japanese disclosure that Chinese machine gun nests near British outposts along the Shanghai-Hangchow railway would be subjected to intense bombardment, Telfer-Smollett ordered British Union Jacks flown over all British dugouts and sandbag barriers.

He served notice that the British would hold their lines regardless of eventualities.

TENSION GROWS

Tension between Japanese and British troops became more acute, with British blaming Japanese for 10 casualties, including five deaths, suffered by their forces in Shanghai thus far.

While Japanese planes dropped bombs dangerously near British outposts on a neighboring battlefield, four Irish soldiers killed by misdirected Japanese shells were buried with impressive ceremonies.

Three of the soldiers were killed Friday, and a fourth died Sunday of wounds suffered in the Friday shelling.

British authorities refrained from inviting Japanese officials, even though the latter had expressed a wish to attend the services.

SEND FLORAL WREATHS

The Japanese embassy, army and navy sent floral wreaths, but the most conspicuous tribute was a wreath from the Chinese Chapei "Lost Battalion," now safely interned only a short distance away. It said:

"They shall live after death."

After the funeral ceremonies, Telfer-Smollett telegraphed the British embassy at Tokyo, asking new representations be made to the Japanese government to have Japanese use greater care in their gunnery.

Thousands of Chinese students lined the cemetery walls, and later paraded through Shanghai streets carrying banners which read:

"Long live our British friends."

Police finally broke up the procession because it blocked traffic.

Japanese "Sorry" Over Firing on British Autos

TOKYO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Japan apologized to Great Britain today for the machine-gunning of three British motor cars October 12 near Shanghai. No one was hurt in the attack.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota sent a formal note to British Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, who replied expressing satisfaction.

Say Boy Actor Kept From Kin

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1 (INS)—The charge that Miss Millycent Bartholomew, aunt and guardian of Freddie Bartholomew, has refused to permit his parents to visit or communicate with the boy since their arrival from London, three weeks ago, today entered the custody fight over the 13-year-old screen star.

Avery L. Blount, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bartholomew, said:

"We are willing that Miss Bartholomew have custody of Freddie and direct his dramatic career, ut we want to have the privilege of free communication.

"We also feel that Miss Bartholomew should not have sole control over the expenditure of $08,000 a year."

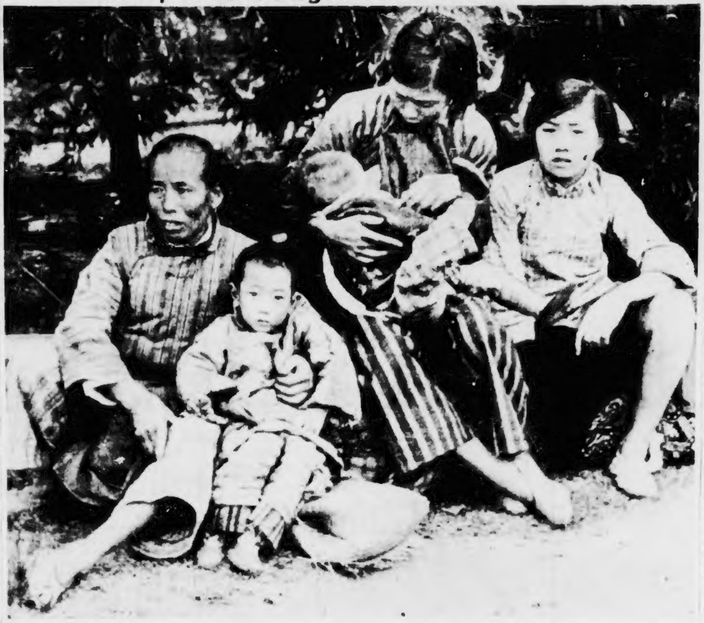
Fall River Fire Kills Woman

FALL RIVER, Nov., 1—Mrs. Leona Waddington, 39, died of smoke suffocation early today when fire of undetermined orgin swept her third-floor flat in a Dwelly street house.

Found badly burned and unconscious on a bed in the attic apartment of the frame dwelling, Mrs. Waddington was declared dead on arrival at St. Ann's Hospital after resuscitation efforts had failed.

The blaze was extinguished with slight damage, according to police, who are seeking two children of the dead woman said to live here.

Drama of War Caught on Roadside in China



Few pictures coming out of hate-torn China so graphically depict the tragedy of war for civilians as does this one of a refugee family, snapped near Shanghai. Still within hearing are the sounds of the guns; sights of horror yet sear their memories; planes wheel overhead; wreckage of their home lies behind tnem in a dangerous sector near the Hungjao railway crossing. Varied emotions show in this remarkable photograph. On the face of the father is painted despair. Curiosity holds the toddler his arm encircles. On the face of the oldest child, dull apathy. But in his worried mother's arms, the baby kicks in bliss as she nurses him. War!!!

U. S. Quietly Planning Huge Defense Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (INS)—A quiet but concerted program of activity in three departments of the government to bolster the nation's military and naval defenses in view of the Far Eastern crisis was evident here today.

While there was no note of alarm, administration officials plainly were of the opinion that ordinary caution requires immediate strengthening of land and sea forces against eventualities.

Outstanding among the activities are:

Navy Department preparations to lay before Congress a program for constructing new fighting ships, from dreadnaughts down to destroyers and submarines, and for enlargement of the naval air force.

Navy plans to ask Congress for a heavy increase in enlisted strength, reported to be from the present personnel of 100,000 men to 125,000.

A decision by the State Department and administration leaders not to press for Senate ratification of the new treaty with Panama, which would surrender many military rights this country now enjoys, and which are highly valuable in the protection of the Panama Canal.

Army plans speeded for an improved nation-wide recruiting drive in the event of war, and a ready-made draft program capable of inducing a million men into the service within three months.

NEW DRAFT PLAN

Legislation for the army's draft program, which is designed to eliminate the shortcomings of the World War draft plan, will be introduced in Congress in the January session, it was learned at the War Department.

Meanwhile, both the army and navy have launched extensive new programs of airplane production, to build up the air fleets of the nation's defense.

The latest move in this connection is the navy's $20,000,000 order for 270 new fighting planes. Bids were opened Saturday at the Navy Department.

The list includes 14 patrol bombers, 78 patrol bombers of a smaller type, 58 scout bombers of one type, 31 of another type, and 89 of a third and fourth type.

The decision of the Panama treaty was reached as a result of the critical condition in the Far East, after war and navy officials expressed uneasiness at any change in the canal zone defense arrangements at this time.

PIGEONHOLED FOR NOW

Under present arrangements, the United States has authority to send troops into Panama at will for the protection of the canal. This and similar rights would be surrendered by this country if the treaty were to go through.

The Panama Government has ratified the treaty, but the U. S. Senate has not yet acted upon it. The understanding today in official circles is that under the circumstances, it will be allowed to remain in the Senate Foreign Relations committee pigeonhole for the time being.

The navy's new building program, though guarded with utmost secrecy, was learned to include several new 35,000 ton battleships for immediate construction, a new aircraft carrier, several new cruisers, and a large number of destroyers and submarines.

It was referred to in official circles as a "billion dollar program," but whether this was a mere figure of speech or a specific valuation could not be determined.

Italy's Delegates Off for Brussels

ROME, Nov. 1 (AP—Italy's delegation to the Nine-Power conference on the Far Eastern crisis departed for Brussels today.

Count Luigi Aldrovandi-Marescotti, well-known jurist who participated in the Versailles peace conference, headed the delegation—composed entirely of members of the foreign office and experts on Chinese-Japanese affairs.

France Crushes Fez Revolt

FEZ, French Morocco, Nov. 1 (AP)—General August Nogues, French resident-general, today warned natives he would crush any disorders with force as he revealed Moroccan nationalists had planned to lead a revolt yesterday against French authority.

Nogues, who in the past few days has suppressed several nationalists outbreaks, sent troops into the Moslem quarter of Fez, ancient Moslem center, for the first time in history. Nogues told natives:

"Our prompt action wrecked plans to revolt. Our troops will stay in the Medina (Moslem holy district) as long as necessary."

French authorities have charged nationalist agitation was abetted by a "foreign totalitarian state."

State's Star Witness

28, Carlisle farmer, was chosen as Juror No. 2.

Then, in order, came the next five:

George O'Brien, 45, North Reading rubber worker; Malcolm Fullerton, 21, Acton painter; Cornelius Mahoney, 47, Holliston shoe worker; Frank X. Boisvert, 63, Dracut carpenter, and Dexter W. Richardson, 69, retired, of Natick.

12 CHALLENGED

Twenty-eight veniremen had been called. The defense challenged 10, the government two and nine were excused.

As the jurors were accepted, they were not immediately seated, but sent into an ante room. The jury will be locked during the trial.

With the courtroom thronged, armed deputy sheriffs stood on guard in the corridors outside where more persons mingled quietly.

A special squad of Cambridge police were stationed outside the courthouse to keep the area in front of the building clear of crowds.

Indications were that authorities were taking every precaution to prevent any possible outbreak among the spectators and to forestall any attempt to free Simpson as he is taken over from East Cambridge jail, across the street, every day during the trial.

CHEWS GUM, SMILES

Handcuffed to Court Officer Charles Robinson and Deputy Sheriff Loring W. Kew, Simpson came out on the front steps of the jail at 10:15.

Confronted by a large group of photographers, Simpson closed his eyes, turning his head from side to side. He was chewing gum.

Half smiling, he opened his eyes as he was led across the street and taken into an ante room.

A venire of 100 prospective jurors were present as Simpson was placed in the prisoner's cage. He was still smiling and chewing gum.

He was clad in a blue suit, minus the vest, brown, rubber-soled suede shoes, white pencil-striped shirt and a dark blue, striped tie.

Simpson appeared calm. Twice he leaned over to speak to an officer in a whisper, all the time still smiling.

INSANITY PLEA

Judge John E. Swift presided. Appearing for the prosecution was District Attorney Warren L. Bishop in charge; First Assistant District Attorney William G. Andrew, and Assistant District Attorneys Julius Wolf n and William G. McCluskey.

Appointed by the court, Attorney John M. Boyle is counsel for Simpson, assisted by Attorney Harold Aranefsky. The latter has disclosed that Simpson will plead insanity.

GIRL TO TESTIFY

District Attorney Bishop declared that about 20 witnesses would be called for the government, including Frances Frada, Cambridge girl, who was with Simpson on the night of the shootings.

She is still in East Cambridge Jail, held as a material witness, unable to furnish $25,000 bail.

Jail officials declared that Simpson "slept well" during the night and ate a breakfast of cereal, coffee and bread.

According to physicians at the jail, Simpson has fully recovered from the gunshot wound in the shoulder received in a duel with one of the slain officers. They said he was in "good health."

Eden Protests To Franco on Ship Sinking

Mighty Cruiser Hood Rushes to Spain to Probe Tragedy

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today the government had lodged a strong protest with Spanish insurgent authorities over the sinking of the British merchantman Jean Weems.

As the mighty battle cruiser Hood sped to Barcelona to investigate the defiance of the Nyon anti-piracy accord, Eden indicated Anglo-French Mediterranean reinforcements might be ordered as a result of the Jean Weems bombing.

TO INTERVIEW CREW

The insurgents, he said, "have undertaken at once to make a most searching inquiry" to fix responsibility for the incident.

The Hood, armed with 8 15-inch guns, steamed toward the Catalan coast from Mallorca, where she was ordered only last week.

Her officers were instructed to interview the crew of the Jean Weems, all saved before the bomb-wrecked vessel went down Saturday morning.

The officers also were told to get the stories of the two non-intervention observers on board the Jean Weems.

REPRISALS HINTED

There was no indication whether the ultimate British action would take the form of reprisals threatened last August in a note to Generalissimo Francisco Franco if there were further attacks on British shipping.

However, dispatch of the Hood to the scene of the bombing appeared to be evidence that Britain is determined on a sterner Mediterranean policy to enforce the Nyon anti-piracy accord.

Reports reaching London indicated the crew of the Jean Weems had only five minutes' warning before the vessel was bombed. They immediately took to a life boat.

British Feed Lost Battalion

Chinese "Suicide" Group Disarmed

SHANGHAI, Nov. 1 (INS)—Disarmed but plentifully fed and happy, 400 members of China's "suicide battalion" rested comfortably in a British concentration camp on the International Settlement race course today after their rescue from seemingly inevitable death at the hands of 40,000 opposing Japanese.

The "dare to die" warriors were taken into the Settlement and disarmed by British troops after holding out for more than a week in an abandoned warehouse on Soochow Creek.

Davis Fends Off 'Jockeying'

By KENNETH T. DOWNS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1937)

BRUSSELS, Nov. 1—Efforts to maneuver America into the position of leadership at the nine-power conference on China were skirted today by Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador-at-large.

Davis has indicated that he will refuse the anticipated proffer of the conference presidency when the session, designed to end peacefully the Sino-Japanese conflict, opens Wednesday, it was learned.

Despite the universal attitude of pessimism regarding the conference, there is a great deal of activity going on behind the scenes, and the white-haired American emissary has sent a long, secret report to Washington since he arrived.

Since America is the only nation represented here which is not entangled with some other dangerous diplomatic problems, strong efforts are being made to push her into the front.

A vigorous effort therefore is being made to name Davis president of Wednesday's conference instead of Paul Spaak, the Belgian foreign minister.

The American chief delegate, however, has already let it be known that he does not want the presidency. Consequently Admiral De Graaff of the Netherlands, a former governor of the Dutch East Indies and an expert on the Far East, will probably be elected.

Valencia in Panic As Cabinet Flees

LONDON, Nov. 1 (INS)—Panic-stricken people fill the streets of Valencia, from which the loyalist Spanish government is fleeing, the Daily Sketch reported today. Fifty thousand residents are preparing to dash to Barcelona as the insurgents hurry their new campaign in the east, the paper said.

Death Driver Given Year

PEABODY, Nov. 1 (AP)—Elmer F. Riley, 28, of Danvers, today was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction after he was convicted of manslaughter in the death of William Dow, 12, who was struck by Riley's automobile October 16.

Duke Must Avoid Politics in U. S., Asserts Envoy

Windsor Plans Vague, Claims Ambassador; May Give Dinner

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, said on his arrival today from England that no "delicate situation" could possibly arise in connection with the Duke of Windsor's forthcoming visit to this country, as long as the Duke "avoids politics as much as possible."

The ambassador was consistently vague about the part British officials will play in receiving the Duke and Duchess when they arrive here November 11.

"I imagine the Duke will want certain facilities, and I shall be proud and glad to give him the things he wants," Sir Ronald said.

PLANS STILL VAGUE

"We haven't any policy at all," he continued, in a shipboard interview aboard the Queen Mary. "The Duke may want a certain amount of help, and if he does I shall give it to him. I have only vague indications of what his plans are. I have them on a bit of paper, but they are so subject to change that I wouldn't want to show them now.

"As for any delicate situation, there will be no difficulties about a man studying housing and labor and still avoiding politics."

DINNER UP TO WIFE

"Do you plan to give a dinner to him and the duchess in Washington?" a reporter asked.

The ambassador chuckled. "I shall have to consult my wife," he said.

"If your wife approves, will it be a large formal dinner?"

"It would seem she would have to do more than just approve, wouldn't it?" he smiled. Then, in more serious vein, he went on:

"I have very little information on what they plan to do on this journey. The Duke is coming in a private capacity and will be treated the same as any other members of royalty would in such a capacity."

Cabinet "Windsor Exile Report" Stirs Londoners

LONDON, Nov. 1 (INS)—Britain was given another royal mystery today when the Daily Express printed—then omitted from its final edition—a story saying the cabinet was about to issue a statement clearing up "misunderstandings" over the Duke of Windsor's exile from Britain."

That the duke, then Prince of Wales, at no time wanted to be king is one assertion which the cabinet is considering in its proposed revelation, said the Express. Two points are said to be involved in the "explanation":

"1—On the day that his father died, Edward expressed a desire to make way for his younger brother, George (then Duke of York)," said the early Express story.

"2—After he abdicated, he himself declared that he would go abroad and remain for at least three years."

His desire to abdicate in favor of his younger brother was conveyed by the Prince of Wales to the Privy Council on the day George V died, according to the Express.

Wally's Former Husband In N. Y.; Silent on Plans

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (INS)—Ernest Simpson, former husband of the Duchess of Windsor, pointedly ignored "embarrassing questions" of ship news reporters when he arrived aboard the S.S. Queen Mary today.

Asked whether he expected to see his former wife, the bride of former King Edward VIII, when she arrives in this country, Simpson exclaimed in a pained voice:

"Please!"

"Do you intend to marry Mrs. Mary Raffray?"

To this he replied casually:

"Amazing, isn't it, how you fellows find out about things?"

(The Daily Mirror today carried an exclusive article stating that Mrs. Raffray, according to friends here, would wed Captain Simpson when she wins her freedom in Marseilles, France.)

Duke to Make Own Plans, Says Bedaux

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor, when he has completed plans for his tour of the United States, will make a personal announcement of his itinerary, Charles E. Bedeaux, a friend of the former king, said today.

Bedaux, who will arrive tonight, told the Associated Press by ship-to-shore telephone:

"The duke is making his own plans. I am helping him only in completing the arrangements he wishes."

The duke and his duchess, the former Wallis Warfield, will arrive on the liner Bremen November 11.

"I have not talked with the duke in the past few days and I am not acquainted with any changes he may have made," Bedaux said. "I know that he prefers to handle his own announcements on this trip."

Asked whether the duke had been invited to visit the White House and whether he had accepted such an invitation, if it had been tendered, Beraux said:

"I could not say. I do not know. That, too, will have to come from the duke."

Rescued After Chase

Her tugging at the reins of little avail, Olivia De Havilland, film star, was facing serious injury when her horse bolted and ran away while on location until stunt man Artie Ortega sped to her aid and succeeded in bringing her mount to a stop only after a thrilling chase.

Windsors Due At White House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (INS)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are expected to be received at the White House when they visit here the middle of the month, although details have not yet been determined.

There will be no formal state dinner for them under any circumstances, it was believed today, because that would involve questions of precedence and other embarrassing angles.

Rather, it is believed, the Duke and his American-born Duchess will be invited to lunch informally at the White House, or to tea.

Official circles profess no knowledge of details of Windsor's American tour.

Mrs. Roosevelt probably will be absent from the capital during the visit. She has for some time had a lecture tour arranged that will keep her traveling from early this month until long after the Washington visit.

Mrs. Roosevelt said recently she would be glad to entertain the Windsors at lunch or have them to tea.

Poetry Society To Show Exhibit

An exhibit of the works of Francis Thompson, recently purchased by Boston College, will open next Friday night at a meeting of the Catholic Poetry Society of Boston.

Miss Mary Fowler, president of the society, will introduce the speakers who will include: Very Rev. William J. McGarry, S. J., president of Boston College; Daniel A. Sargeant, national president of the Catholic Poetry Society of America, and Rev. Terrence L. Connolly, S. J., prominent Catholic poet.

Film Star Saved In Runaway

CHICO, Cal., Nov. 1 (INS)—Olivia De Havilland, screen star, narrowly escaped serious injury when the horse she was riding in a scene being filmed in the woods near here for "The Adventures of Robin Hood" ran away.

Clad in the long robes of Maid Marian and riding sidesaddle, Miss De Havilland galloped at the head of a group including Eugene Pallette as Friar Tuck, Alan Hale as Little John, and Artie Ortego, stunt man, doubling for Herbert Mundin as "Much," the miller's son.

Beyond the range of the cameras, the actress' horse suddenly became frightened and bolted. Pallette, Hale, and Ortego pursued it while Miss De Havilland clung to the saddle. The stunt man's horse was fastest and he overtook the runaway and expertly pulled it down. Miss De Havilland's only injury was raw knuckles from pulling on the reins.

Dockmen Strike In Gulf Coast Ports

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 1 (AP)—Gulf coast longshoremen for five steamship lines struck at midnight last night in a demand for a 44-hour week and $1.27½ cents an hour for overtime. Affected are the Lykes, Bull, Newtex and Mooremack lines and Union Sulphur ships at Houston only. An estimated 4000 men in Texas ports and Lake Charles, La., are affected.

Wilkins Returns to Arctic

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP) — Sir Hubert Wilkins left today by plane for Winnipeg to rejoin his aerial expedition preparing to renew the search for six Russian fliers lost over the Arctic ocean last August 13 on a flight from Moscow to the United States.

Debate Teacher Time-Off Plea For Maternity

Los Angeles School Board Divided On Question

(Special to Boston Evening American)

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1—Sharp controversy developed here today on the question of whether the careers of teaching and motherhood can be combined successfully.

The arguments followed receipt by the board of education of the request of Mrs. Grace Zecherie Reilly, 29-year-old high school teacher, for a one-year leave of absence for maternity.

Already the mother of two children, Sally, 2, and Gerald, 1, the teacher has been on leave of absence since September 10, 1934; the first year for unemployment relief and the two succeeding years for maternity. She has taught school for four years. Reaction of the board to her latest request was varied.

"Long absences from duty are likely to leave a teacher lagging behind when she resumes her work," pointed out Roy Becker, president of the board.

But Mrs. Margarete Clark believes that motherhood better qualifies a woman for the teaching profession. She said:

"With the unintelligent and unfit increasing by leaps and bounds, I think we should go very slowly in this matter and try to formulate a general policy which will cover all cases of this type.

"I definitely believe that Mrs. Reilly's request should be granted. We should do all we can to provide an opportunity for our teachers, interested in cultural and intellectual advancements of our race, to have families. It is our only hope.

"I firmly believe that being a mother makes for a better teacher."

Granting of Mrs. Reilly's request was recommended to the board by L. B. Travers, assistant superintendent of Schools, whose report read, in part:

"It is recommended that, under these circumstances, a physician's statement verifying Mrs. Reilly's condition having been submitted, that she be permitted an additional year's leave and that the board regulation be waived in this instance."

Unable, however, to reach a decision in the matter, the board referred her request to Superintendent Vierling Kersey, who had approved Travers' recommendation, for reconsideration.

Discussing the request, Kersey said two weeks probably will elapse before a final ruling is made upon it.

Doherty Back, Says 'Prepare'

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Daniel J. Doherty of Woburn, Mass., national commander of the American Legion, returned from Europe today, asserting the necessity for a universal service bill to inspire adequate preparedness of the nation and prevent profiteering in event of war.

"The 1937 American Legion pilgrimage to Europe has served to bring a fuller appreciation of the tremendous price paid in service and sacrifice that democracy and liberty might be perpetuated," Doherty said.

"It has convinced us of the necessity for passage of a universal service bill in the next session of Congress, to insure against the incentive of profiteering in war and the security of our country through adequate preparedness."

Auto Reflectors Demanded in Maine

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 1 (AP)—A law requiring every Maine motor vehicle and trailer to be equipped "with at least one adequate reflector securely attached to the rear" became effective today.

THE WELL GROOMED MAN

A New Series For Men—By ANN MARSTERS

No. 5--Hats Important to Appearance

Tiny Figured Ties Not For Large Men

In the past few years men, as a matter of good business and in keeping with the modern trend, have become increasingly more careful of their personal appearance.

Thus, American men are now considered, as a whole, the best dressed in the world. But they are going even further, attending their hair dress, their facial appearance and, yes, their figures.

Ann Marsters, feature writer, has been studying the subject and in this new series she talks about men's grooming, the sort of clothes short and tall men should avoid, the sort of haircuts that are the vogue, the right haberdashery and also the physical appearance of men.

Morton Downey, the famous singing star, now at the Keith-Boston theater, amazed his friends when he returned from England thirty-one pounds lighter than when he sailed away last spring. The diet with which Mr. Downey accomplished this was given by the star to Miss Marsters and will appear with the first few stories. This is the fifth story.

Downey's Diet

(Morton Downey, famous singing star, now at the Keith-Boston, lost 31 pounds on this diet.)

TENTH DAY

Breakfast: 2 slices of whole-wheat toast. Butter. Honey or maple syrup. Black coffee.

Luncheon: Cream of spinach soup. Grilled tomatoes. Fruit salad.

Dinner: Lean fillet of beef. Cauliflower. Vegetable salad. Fresh fruit in season.

ELEVENTH DAY

Breakfast: Orange juice. Milk, flavored with coffee.

Luncheon: Tomato puree. Lettuce salad, mayonnaise. Fresh fruit. Ice cream.

Dinner: 2 slices of toast. Cooked celery. Green vegetables. Vegetable salad with French dressing. Fresh fruit.

(More of the 28-day diet will be printed tomorrow. Previous days' menus may be obtained at the Boston American, 5 Winthrop square.)

By ANN MARSTERS

Today, gentlemen, we'll have a question and answer period—but I'll ask the questions as well as answer them.

After quite a bit of research into the matter of men's fashions, we've decided upon a number of questions which might arise in any man's life. And some of them will be almost sure to suit your own particular case—whether you realize it or not. (Some men are stuffy about their clothes and won't admit that they don't dress correctly.)

ABOUT YOUR HAT

The first question is: Are there any special rules about the width of a man's hat brim?

Answer: There certainly are. A short man should NEVER wear a hat with a wide brim. It will cut off his height and make him look inches shorter. Tall, large gentlemen should wear fairly broad-brimmed hats.

Q. Shouldn't a tall, heavily-built man try to minimize his height by avoiding large patterns in his ties and shirts?

A.: No, he shouldn't. If a big man chooses ties with tiny figures, shirts with fine, narrow stripes, he will not only accentuate his size, but the whole effect will be entirely out of proportion.

If a man is generously built, he should wear generous-looking designs in his ties. His clothes should be expansive looking, to suit his type. He should be careful that the lapels of his coat are not too small. And if he wears a striped shirt, the stripes should be widely spaced.

NEWEST IN TIES

Q. What's the newest thing in ties?

A. The satin tie—mainly because

Plain Gold Studs With Tuxedos

England's young King favors them. You should have a few solid-colored satin ties in your wardrobe—in blue, green, dubonnet.

Q. Is the old-type Chesterfield still correct for evening wear?

A. Well-dressed men no longer wear a velvet collar on Chesterfields. But never mind—it may take Boston quite a while to become aware of that.

Q. What is the correct jewelry to wear with tails and tuxedo?

A. With a dinner jacket, two studs of perfectly plain gold are the very newest thing. And a gold watch chain (like grandfather's). With tails, two studs of white pearl.

SOME SUGGESTIONS

That's all the questions for today—but before class is dismissed, we have a few words to say about overcoats.

Mr. John White, of Kennedy's, and Mr. Russell Levin, of R. H. White's, have helped us out by making some suggestions on the best type of overcoats for all-around wear.

Mr. White favors patternless material called "[illegible]." It's a new and specially loomed fabric which has a fleecy knap and a silky luster and will wear and wear.

"It is especially practical," he said, "because it will resist rain and snow and is warm without being heavy in weight."

Mr. Levin told us about a "wintertex" cheviot with English drape lines.

"The single breasted drape model," he said, "is particularly smart for rather short men because it makes them look taller. It gives a soft, smooth, comfortable appearance. The smartest shades for overcoats, right now, are grey and very dark blue-grey."

Incidentally, hats are coming in slightly more interesting colors these days. There are so-called "metal tones": coppery browns, chromium greys, and a "pewter" shade of dull blue.

As for greens, they're on the 5 yard line, and are gaining day by day.

Tomorrow—Some new hints for the well-groomed man.

Maybe He Rode On Broomstick!

Trestle Mystery Near-Tragedy

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (INS)—The police scratched it off their records today as just a Halloween mystery, the result of a ride on a witch's broomstick.

That was the only way they could explain how Steve Knobs of Joliet, Ill., came to fall asleep on the iron shield under an elevated train trestle some 25 feet above the street and a half a block from the nearest station. Steve couldn't explain it either.

"One of the fellows took me out for a ride," he said, "and that's the last thing I remember."

Doctors for Pope Redouble Vigil

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 1 (INS)—Physicians for Pope Pius XI have redoubled their medical vigil, it was learned today since the aged Pontiff returned a few days ago from Castel Gandolfo, his summer palace.

Dr. Aminta Milani, fearing the possible harmful effects of the resulting change of altitude and climate, has attended the Pope at least twice a day since his return.

Legion Tourists Land Here

More than 150 Greater Boston American Legion members, returning from their pilgrimage to the battlefields of France, debarked here today when the Cunard White Star liner Scythia docked at East Boston. Of the 500 passengers aboard the giant liner 300 were Legionnaires.

Among those returning were:

Captain James F. McDevitt and his son, James F. McDevitt; Major and Mrs. Edward F. O'Dowd and their daughter; Major James Winston, John P. Waddell, Patrolman John M. Devir, Miss Helen G. Cannon, Miss Rena Renick, Miss Catherine Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Cavanaugh, Miss Catherine O'Brien, and Miss Grace Harrington, a yeowoman during the World War.

Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, socially prominent Walpole resident, debarked after a four weeks' tour of Ireland and Scotland.

Mrs. Bird related that Ireland was undergoing drastic economic and social changes and that modern apartments and dwellings are supplanting the thatched-roof cottages.

"To my mind," she said, "much of the beauty of the country will vanish with these new changes. The people are crushed under heavy taxes. Unrest is evident among the greater part of the population. Mr. De Valera has suffered a great loss in popularity during the past two years."

Russell Durant, Sportsman, Dead

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1 (INS)—Russell Clifford Durant, 46, noted sportsman and retired motor car manufacturer, is dead at his home here. He was the son of W. C. Durant, founder of General Motors.

His wife, the former Charlotte Phillips, of Washington, D. C., summoned a physician when Durant collapsed shortly after dinner but he was dead when the doctor arrived. Funeral arrangements await word from his father, in New York.

Brown, Deposed As Bishop, Dead

GALION, O., Nov. 1 (INS)—Death from a cerebral hemorrhage today had closed the colorful career of William Montgomery Brown, 82, deposed Episcopal church bishop and self-styled "heretic" in religion and Communist in politics.

Bishop Brown, unfrocked by the Episcopal House of Bishops at New Orleans in 1925, after being found guilty of heresy in a church trial in Cleveland, died at his home, Brownella cottage. He had been in poor health for years.

Spans Ocean in 17 Hours

PARIS, Nov. 1 (AP)—France's great flying boat, Lieutenant de Vaisseau Paris, landed today at Dakar, Senegal, after a flight across the South Atlantic from Natal, Brazil, in 17 hours 35 minutes. Average speed was 105 miles per hour.

Youth Reunited With Sister He Married

Tragedy Bridal Pair Are to Live in Same House

WARRENSBURG, Mo., Nov. 1 (INS)—Ben Yocum, a 22-year-old farm boy, who married and discovered that his 20-year-old bride was his own sister, today sought new happiness by taking up residence under the same roof with her.

Accepting the invitation of the foster-parents of his sister, Mary Lee Williams, to live with them on their farm, the youthful farm hand brought a climax to one of the strangest real-life tragedies.

A month ago, Yocum, an orphan, secretly married his childhood friend, another orphan from a nearby farm, only to learn she was his sister. The marriage was annulled last Thursday.

MARY LEE WILLIAMS

"It was a shock to learn we were brother and sister," the girl said today at the home of her foster-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Williams. "However, we are happy to be together again."

The reticent Yocum wouldn't talk with reporters beyond saying:

"I've decided to stay with my sister here."

3 Bay State Men Reserve Officers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The War Department announced today three Massachusetts men had accepted appointments as second lieutenants in the army's infantry reserve corps.

They are Francis E. Ginty, Allston; Frederick J. Moore, Dorchester, and Edward Leo Swift, Lawrence.

IS CURLEY STILL THE ISSUE?

THE ANSWER IS EMPHATICALLY YES!

Robert Choate, distinguished Editor of the Boston Herald, on October 31, 1937, wrote as follows:

"But the man or woman who is experienced in politics will never discount Curley until the last vote is counted. He has always been good for a 'Garrison finish.' Curley has usually been best when the outlook is darkest."

Rep. Christian A. Herter states:

"The biggest issue, which in my opinion presents itself to the voters, is that Curley shall not again become Mayor. I am now convinced that Malcolm E. Nichols is the strongest contender. I shall vote for him and urge my friends to vote for him."

John Bantry, Veteran Political Writer of the Boston Post, speaking of Curley, wrote yesterday:

"He always has an effective organization. He got an early start in this campaign. And, most important of all, he seems to have unlimited funds."

"Tobin grew up in the Curley political school," Robert Choate in the Boston Herald, Oct 31, 1937.

Only twelve months ago Tobin supported Curley for the Senate against Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. Twenty-two months of Curley's record as Governor was history when Tobin said, "Curley is a public necessity."

Foley was Curley's unsuccessful candidate for the Mayoralty four years ago.

"NEGATIVE VOTES IMPORTANT

"At least he ought to vote. He ought to go to the polls and cast a ballot against some one. If you can't make up your mind to vote FOR one candidate, then you certainly ought to be able to cast a vote AGAINST some one.

"Too often candidates slide into office because indignant citizens become so disgusted they do not bother to register their protest. But if the citizens take the pains to vote AGAINST any one man, then the chances are that the result will not be too bad."

Robert Choate, Boston Herald, October 31, 1937.

Coronation Dolls Arrive on Boston Liner

CLAIRE MOORE JOYCE MOORE MRS. BERTHA MOORE

Two Coronation Princess dolls were prized gifts in possession of Claire and Joyce Moore of Worcester as passengers left the S. S. Scythia in East Boston today. Their grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Moore, was returning from a European visit and had the dolls all ready for presentation as the boat tied up and the children rushed on to greet her.

LaGuardia Sees Victory, Cuts Down Rallies

Maloney Redoubles Efforts, Plans 12 Major Speeches

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Republican Fusionist candidate for re-election, whose campaign managers have promised him a plurality in excess of half a million, wound up his campaign today by paring down his schedule to three speeches.

His opponent in tomorrow's election, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Tammany Democrat, assured his campaign managers of victory by more than 250,000 votes, redoubled last-minutes efforts in an oratorical marathon calling for twelve major speeeches.

Attesting the high feeling engendered by the campaign, the police department sent out today 31 finely-typed ages of instructions. Among other things, police were ordered to prevent election night bonfires, to see that nobody peeks at the ballots, and to serve registration fraud warrants only after those named in warrants had voted.

WARRANTS ISSUED

candidates for the office of district attorney of New York county claimed victory, too.

Special Rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey concluded his campaign with a radio address repeating his previous charges that rackets had flourished under Tammany. Dewey headquarters said that Dewey would ask for a "large number" of warrants charging fraudulent registration.

Several hundred such warrants already have been issued at the request of Attorney-General John J. Bennett, Jr., a Democrat.

Dewey, on La Guardia's ticket, is opposed by Assistant District Attorney Harold Hastings, Tammany Democrat.

GRAND JURY ACTS

As a retort to a speech by La Guardia linking the name of District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx with Tammany district leader James J. Hines of Manhattan, the Bronx grand jury today returned a presentment. tI said the mayor's remake tended "to undermine the confidence which the citizens of Bronx County have in the district attorney of the county of the Bronx, and to "undermine law enforcement."

A majority of the city's newspapers predicted the mayor would be re-elected.

Postmaster-General James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, who spoke for Mahoney has not made a prediction on the election.

Republican Chiefs Gather for Parley

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (INS)—Members of the Republican National Committee began heading here today for their meeting Nov. 5, when they will consider the Hoover plan to call a national convention next year to formulate a party declaration.

Reaching a decision on this proposal is expected to produce fireworks, with the showdown coming on the naming of party representatives to write the declaration.

Bay State Elections:

15 Cities to Vote Outside of Boston

Bitter, Active Campaigns Feature Poll Throughout Commonwealth Tomorrow

Voters in 15 Massachusetts cities outside of Boston will go to the polls in record-breaking numbers tomorrow to climax one of the most bitter and active campaign seasons in the state's history.

In addition to the red-hot contests in Boston, there will be mayors and other municipal officers elected in Cambridge, Everett, Fitchburg, Gardner, Leominster, Lowell, Lynn, Marlboro, Medford, Pittsfield, Somerville, Springfield, Waltham, Westfield and Worcester.

Cambridge

In Cambridge Mayor John D. Lynch is opposed by John W. Lyons, president of the city council. Two years ago, Mayor Lynch defeated Lyons by 239 votes but in the primaries two weeks ago, Lyons led the present chief executive by 3338 votes.

Six places on the school committee three vacancies on the school committee, with the three members all seeking reelection.

Cambridge voters also will elect four councillors-at-large, 11 ward councillors and an assessor.

Everett

In Everett, Mayor Frank F. Lewis is opposed for reelection by Representative Albert F. Morris, whom he led two to one in the primaries. Mayor Lewis is finishing his first term as mayor, having served previously in the council and on the board of aldermen. Representative Morris has been a member of the legislature for three years.

Six places on the schol committee and 18 posts in the common council are to be filled, with most of the present incumbents seeking reelection.

Fitchburg

In Fitchburg, where no primaries are held, there are three candidates for mayor for the vacancy left by the retirement of Mayor Robert E. Greenwood. The candidates are Representative John J. Gilmartin, Alfred Woolacott and Joseph G. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, a first-time candidate for office.

In addition, there are contests for all city positions, with 30 others seeking election to the school committee and the city council.

Gardner

In Gardner Stanford H. Hartshorn, president of the city council and former Councillor Fred E. Perry are candidates for the post left vacant by the retirement of Mayor James A. Timpany.

Twelve candidates seek three councillor-at-large posts, while there are contests for ward councillor in four of the five wards of the city. There are three candidates for one four-year term on the school committee.

Leominster

Frank Bagley, president of the city council, and Sidney Bell are the mayoralty candidates in Leominster. Mayor Fred Burdett is not a candidate for reelection. Five council and five councillor-at-large seats will be contested by 16 candidates. Two members of the school committee are unopposed for reelection.

Lynn

Mayor J. Fred Manning is seeking his fifth term as Lynn's mayor without having issued a single campaign card or making a speech. His opponent is William E. Sexton, Lynn fireman, whom Mayor Manning led by a 10 to 1 margin in the primaries.

Most of the interest in the Lynn campaign centers in the fight for school committee, due to issue raised over the Cobbet ungraded school investigation. The school was closed following charges of mistreatment of pupils.

Five of the members seek re-election in a field of 10 candidates. Voters also will elect four councillors-at-large and seven ward councillors.

Lowell

A close contest is expected in Lowell, where Mayor Dewey G. Archambault (R.) is seeking re-election against James J. Bruin (D.), a former mayor. Both are well known attorneys. Bruin was Mayor Archambault's predecessor in the office.

Four councillor-at-large posts are sought by eight candidates, while 11 ward councillors also will be elected. There are six candidates for three vacancies on the school committee.

Marlboro

In Marlboro, Mayor Charles A. Lyons is seeking his fourth term. He is opposed by Louis F. Ingalls, vice-president and for 16 years a member of the school committee. In his campaign, Mayor Lyons has pointed to a reduction last year of $4 in the tax rate, the largest reduction in the state.

There are six candidates for three school committee posts, with Martin J. Dalton the only member seeking reelection. Four councillors-at-large will be chosen from eight candidates, while 14 candidates will battle for seven vacancies as ward councillors.

Medford

Mayor John J. Irwin is seeking a third term in Medford, with Alderman John C. Carr as his opponent.

There are 14 candidates for the seven positions of alderman-at-large and 27 candidates for 14 ward seats. Six are contesting for three school committee positions.

The voters also will decide on referendum questions which would allow the board of aldermen to fill vacancies within its own ranks and would increase the membership of the board of welfare from three to five members.

Pittsfield

In Pittsfield, Special Justice James Fallon is opposed for mayor by Alfred C. Daniels, for 20 years treasurer of the Republican city committee. Mayor Allen H. Dagg is not a candidate for reelection.

In addition, four councilmen will be elected at large and one in each of the seven wards. School committeemen will be elected in three wards.

Somerville

As in Boston and Cambridge, the polls in Somerville will be watched by police, following charges and arrests for padding of the polls. John M. Lynch, former president of the city council and Representative Philip Sherman, co-chairman of the legislative committee investigation of Communism, are the candidates. The two were the leaders in the primaries which saw the defeat of Mayor Leslie E. Knox and former Mayor James E. Hagan.

There are also contests for the school committee and all city council positions.

Springfield

In Springfield Mayor Henry Martins (R.) is seeking re-election to a third term in a partisan election. His opponent is Roger Lowell Putnam (D.), a banker and manufacturer and nephew of A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard University.

Four Republicans are unopposed for re-election to the school committee. Voters will also elect eight aldermen and 18 city councillors.

Waltham

John H. Walsh, former state commander of the American Legion, is opposed by Arthur A. Hansen, former state representative and Waltham assessor, for mayor of Waltham. Dr. Frederick L. MacDonald, mayor for the last four years, is not a candidate for re-election.

There are eight candidates for four councillor-at-large posts, with all four incumbents seeking re-election. Five of the seven ward councillors are seeking re-election.

Three of the school committee are not candidates for re-election and six new office seekers are contesting for the three positions.

Westfield

Mrs. Alice D. Burke, former school teacher, will be a candidate for mayor in Westfield. The first woman ever to run for the office in Westfield will be opposed by Mayor Raymond H. Cowhig.

Two school committee members, five ward aldermen and six aldermen-at-large are to be elected.

Worcester

Mayor John S. Sullivan (D.) is opposed for re-election in Worcester by William A. Bennett (R.), president of the board of aldermen. Both candidates have waged spirited campaigns in every ward of the city.

There are 45 candidates for 30 seats in the city council, while another 16 seek the 10 aldermanic posts. There are 17 contestants for 10 positions on the school committee.

Barnard to Give Institute Talks

A series of Lowell Institute lectures by Chester I. Barnard, president of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co., were announced today by Prof. William H. Lawrence, curator of the institute.

The lectures, free and open to the public, will be given in Huntington Hall, the Rogers building, on Boylston street, adjacent to the Museum of Natural History, starting Nov. 12.

CCC Youths Stricken

HOUGHTON, Mich., Nov. 1—Eleven CCC workers stricken with ptomaine poisoning on Isle Royale in Lake Superior were rushed here by boat to receive treatments of anti-toxin flown to Houghton by plane from Kansas City. Two of critical condition.

Doctor, Engineer Seek 2-Year School Post

Lively Battle Also on For 4-Year Term On Committee

Dr. George Lynde Gately, of East Boston, in a final appeal today for election to the two-year term in the Boston School Committee, stressed the need for a physician on that board.

"The health of the school child is paramount in importance to education, "Dr. Gately declared.

OPPONENT BUSY

While the physician was discussing health in the school, his most active opponent, John C. Flaherty, of Dorchester, was contending there is need on the committee for a civil engineer who is an authority on fire hazards and schoolhouse construction.

Both men presented forceful arguments in favor of their election. Each made public an imposing list of organizations and prominent citizens who have endorsed their candidacies.

The battle for election to two seats for the full four-year term in the committee was enlivened today by Joseph G. Sullivan, of Roxbury, who declared that two opponents now seeking re-election have failed to answer his repeated demands they discuss matters which led to the so-called school committee scandal of 1935.

TAKEN TO TASK

He took Chairman Frederick R. Sullivan and Dr. Joseph V. Lyons to task, also, for the alleged failure of the present committee members to devise means to providing employment for jobless graduates of Boston Teachers College.

Angelo Morello, another candidate for one of the four-year terms, urged that young men be permitted to study liberal arts at Boston Teachers College. He also declared that women teachers should receive equal pay with men instructors when teaching the same subjects. Distribution of free milk to undernourished school children was another recommendation of Attorney Morello.

Daniel J. McDevitt, of West Roxbury, who is also seeking the full term election, stressed the need for an experienced and successful businessman on the board. McDevitt is a son of former Deputy Superintendent of Police, James J. McDevitt.

URGES FREE MILK

Joseph Lee, another four-year contender, stressed the need for increased after-school activities for children and for additional play areas. Like Attorney Morello, Mr. Lee also takes keen interest in the welfare of undernourished children and he likewise pledges to bring pressure on municipal authorities to provide free milk for youngsters of needy families.

Dr. Lyons and Chairman Sullivan have conducted quiet campaigns. Others in the four year field are Louis Shindler, Frank L. Orfanello and Joseph M. Ryan.

In addition to John C. Flaherty and Dr. Gately, the candidates in the contest for the two-year term are Edmund Walsh, of Charlestown, now ill at Boston City Hospital and whose friends are carrying on an active campaign for him, Miss Josephine Lally, and former State Senator Joseph C. White.

Penn. to Vote On 'Revamps'

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 1 (AP)—Pennsylvania's four million voters turned over in their minds today the issues of a political campaign that centered on revamping of a 64-year-old constitution.

At the polls tomorrow they will decide:

Whether the state's basic law should be changed to permit a graded income tax.

Whether they want four other changes written into the constitution, one of which would permit more frequent revision of the basic law.

Who are to be the mayors of 22 cities.

Who are to fill several hundred offices in counties, cities, boroughs and townships.

The Democratic administration, which sought early in the Earle regime to have the constitution revised put its full force back of the tax proposal.

Ask Troopers Guard For Everett Election

Governor Hurley today was asked to provide state police protection for tomorrow's Everett municipal election after the discovery of an apparent plot to stuff ballot boxes.

Police nipped the scheme when they found an official ballot in the pocket of a man arrested on a drunkenness charge. Election officers ordered an immediate reprint of the 25,000 tallies to be used in the voting.

"PICKED IT UP"

The arrested man told Police Chief George O. Kenney that he had "just picked up" the ballot in a printing shop at which he had a temporary job when the ballots were printed.

According to city officials, there were more than 400 "extra" ballots in the establishment, some of which may have found their way to improper hands.

Although Kenney said he believed there had not been a "leak," he declared he would not take a chance of a packed vote. Printed under police guard, the new ballots will be delivered to City Clerk John M. Carroll today.

COLOR CHANGED

They will be in a different color and have special identifying marks.

Discovery of the slip during a routine examination prompted State Representative Albert E. Morris, opposingMayor Frank E. Lewis in the mayoralty race, to wire the Governor a request to "provide a degree of protection" at the polls.

Fallon Orders 3 Deputies on Polls Duty

Police to Seek to Halt March of "Ghosts"; New Fraud Charge

Stirred by reports of an underworld ballot-stuffing plot in the greater city, Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon today ordered his three chief lieutenants to active field duty in the police drive to turn back an anticipated march of the "spooks" on Boston's polling places tomorrow.

In Cambridge, an organization of 200 men and women vigilantes was formed to maintain a dawn-to-dusk watch at all voting places.

Fallon directed Deputy Superintendants William W. Livingston, James R. Claflin and John M. Anderson personally to supervise all police activity at the polls.

278 NAMES STRICKEN

The order was issued after the election commission, in a sudden zero hour move, strick the names of 276 reputed "ghosts" from the registration rolls.

The commission's action lifted to 367 the total of names crossed from the voting lists in Boston. The "citizens" disenfranchised today were part of 2672 alleged to have fraudulently signed police listing cards.

The three deputies were instructed to remain on duty throughout the day, visiting polling places as often as possible and making sure the election laws were rigidly enforced.

Division commanders were ordered by the superintendent to give officers time off to vote.

The Cambridge vigilantes include followers of both mayoralty candidates.

City Solicitor George A. McLaughlin announced the formation of the group. In a letter to Mayor John D. Lynch, a candidate for re-election, McLaughlin urged that policemen assigned to the polls be armed with lists of persons suspected of voting illegally at the recent primary election.

McLaughlin said there were "wholesale frauds" in the primary.

Gangster participation in the election in Boston and elsewhere in the metropolitan area was charged by Daniel P. Leahy, chairman of the Cambridge Board of Election Commissioners.

According to Leahy, male and female "spooks" will be organized into taxicab brigades and shifted from city to city to cast fraudulent votes.

LICENSE RACKET

Operating on a minutely organized system, which includes card-indexing of repeaters and fake names to be used by them, the mob was reported attempting to gain control of municipal governments so as to set up a liquor license racket in this area.

A federal investigator was said to have been sent here to check the reports in co-operation with District Attorney William J. Foley.

Leahy, who had claimed that ten per cent of the total Cambridge registration of 50,433 is made up of "ghost voters," said he was considering an appeal to Governor Hurley or the United States Department of Justice to act in the matter.

TIMILTY ASKS AID

At the same time, Police Commissioner Timilty promised that every possible means to keep the election here on a legitimate basis would be taken.

Timilty, asking for co-operation in blocking illegal voting, asserted:

"The police have been instructed to deal swiftly and positively with notorious characters and hoodlums found intimidating or molesting in any way law-abiding citizens exercising their sacred franchise.

"Every consideration for the law-abiding voter and no consideration for the political racketeer will be the policy of the Boston Police Department on Tuesday."

Open Cooperative Clinic for Workers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—A cooperative clinic opened today to provide medical care for more than 1000 employes of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and their families.

The clinic was described by some members of Congress as a step toward "socialized medicine." Membership is voluntary.

Jail 'Pole Sitter' Now in Solitary

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1 (INS)—The view, commanding the entire city, was excellent, but hunger and cold which drove James Mason, 39, Toledo bank robber, from his perch atop a 150-foot water tower at Ohio State Penitentiary, had put him in solitary confinement today.

Mayoralty Battle Lines:

Stage Prepared For City's Voting

388 Polling Places Expected to Be Quiet; Candidates 'Last-Minute Statements'

Polling places in Boston will be open from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. tomorrow.

A total of 2328 precinct officers today reported to the municipal election commission that they are prepared to man the 388 polling places at the appointed hour tomorrow morning.

For the first time in the history of the city the polling booths will be comparatively quiet places. This will be due to the ban placed by the election commission on all checkers, a measure intended to curtail activities of "repeaters."

Each of the six mayoralty contenders took time out of active campaign work today to issue last minute statements to the voters of the city.

Santosuosso Hits City Hall 'Parasites'; Would Expel All 'Working Wives'

Former Representative Alfred Santosuosso of Hyde Park declared today that if elected mayor he will "remove every parasite from City Hall."

"I will also fire all married women whose husbands can support them," he continued. "We must make room for men and unmarried women. I shall attempt to interest business in a similar program.

"Our municipal employment bureau will be modernized and popularized and all politicians will be barred from that place.

"Boston is infested with derelicts and beggars who annoy men and women in the streets at night. That problem will be solved.

"Immediate action must be taken to solve the automobile parking problem. I shall refer the matter to a committee of representative business men. I challenge the right of hotels and apartment house operators to sell the street to taxi compaines."

Tobin Claims Victory on Election Eve; Lashes Curley and Nichols

"One hundred thousand Boston voters are going to elect me as their mayor on Tuesday," School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin declared today.

"Out of the welter of campaign issues and accusations and innuendoes one matter has come boldly to the front, and that is whether or not our city must be forced to groan and suffer under another four years of James M. Curley and Malcolm E. Nichols.

"If my ears deceive me not, unless I am living in a fool's paradise, unless every impartial political observer in the city is wrong, that issue will be decided by the election of Maurice J. Tobin.

"Can any listening say that James M. Curley or that Malcolm E. Nichols has been a faithful, devoted, upright public servant?

"Can anyone listening to the hollow statements and extravagant promises of either of these men find anything that they have not said before and later repudiated by their acts in office? Can anyone find in the methods of conduct of either of these men any evidence whatsoever that the leopard has changed its spots?"

Longshoremen's Union Here Endorses Foley for Mayor

Numbering several thousand members, Local 1454 of the Longshoremen's Union today endorsed District Attorney William J. Foley for mayor, the candidate was informed by Timothy O'Leary, business agent of the local.

In thanking the new supporters Foley said:

"I have not the backing of favored contractors, ward bosses or other dictatorial elements. I have only the backing of plain citizens and that is all I need. Such backing will make me mayor of Boston."

Today Foley called upon School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin to tell Boston voters the sources of his financial backing in the mayoralty fight.

"My honesty, experience and capability are known to the voters," he said. "I am confident that that the voters will not be deceived by false issues.

"I am confident the political prophets will be confounded tomorrow when they discover that the law-abiding and home-loving people of this city, judging the candidates on their public records alone, and not on ballyhoo, will have chosen me."

Parkman, Tobin Supporter, Aided City Wage-Cut Legislation, Says Curley

State Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., now a political supporter of School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin in his battle for the mayoralty, is the man who in 1933 was responsible for the passage of the legislation which compelled municipal government to reduce wages of city employes, former Governor James M. Curley charged today.

"I have found a copy of the illusive platform of candidate Tobin," Curley said, "and find that it consists largely of promises impossible of fulfillment, in most cases, until such time as the character and obligation of the State Legislature has been changed from Republican to Democrat.

"Substantially, every one of the planks in the platform are changes that have been sought for the past 25 years by every individual who has held the office of mayor of Boston and in every case the Republican group, headed by Henry Parkman, now supporting Tobin, have prevented the changes necessary for the relief of Boston."

Nichols Raps Tobin for Failing To Answer Query on School Scandal

School Committeeman Tobin was the target for attack today by former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols.

The Republican mayoralty candidate laid particular emphasis upon the difficulties associated with the so-called school committee scandal of 1935.

"Every day we listen to a great deal of rubbish about Mr. Tobin's alleged ideals," he said. "I have asked Mr. Tobin if he knew anything about that situation in the school department before the exposure took place and he still has to answer.

"Of course, if Mr. Tobin knew nothing about this situation certainly he cannot be blamed for not taking action but there was a scandal that shook the city and it is incredible that so active a member of the school committee and so alert a young politician should have no information of the subject."

Brett in Final Appeal for Votes On Townsend-Coughlin Platform

Former Election Commissioner Carleton L. Brett of Dorchester made a final appeal today for support of Social Justice adherents and proponents of the Townsend Plan in his campaign for election as mayor.

Brett said that if successful tomorrow he will work to have the principles of Rev. Charles E. Coughlin and Dr. Francis Townsend incorporated into the laws of the Commonwealth.

Council Battle in City Wards Winds Up

Charlestown Fight Features Race For 22 Berths

Featured by a bitter battle in Ward 2, Charlestown, the City Council election race wound up today with fewer fireworks, but as much fury, as the mayoralty campjaigns.

In the Charlestown ward, James J. Mellen, seeking re-election, has been hard pressed by James J. Kiley, William J. Galvin and Joseph W. McCarthy.

The body's present president, John I. Fitzgerald, was given an excellent chance of holding his seat from Ward Three, in the North, South and West Ends, despite the opposition of eight other candidates.

Two women and one unopposed candidate are listed among the more than 100 seeking the 22 seats.

The women are Mrs. Mildred Gleason, standing for re-election to the Ward nine, Roxbury, first member of her sex ever on the council; and Mrs. Lena Clark, of Ward one, East Boston.

John B. Kelly automatically gained election from Ward 15, Dorchester, when no candidate filed against him.

Three vacancies were created by the retirement of incumbents. They are George W. Roberts, Back Bay state representative; David M. Brackman, of Ward 12, Roxbury, now a member of the State Senate; and Martin H. Tobin, of Ward 15, Dorchester, who withdrew to prepare a State Senate campaign next year.

Appeal Ruling On Checkers

John Newman, chairman of the Democratic city committeee, today planned to ask Attorney General Paul A. Dever to reverse an election commission order banning candidates' checkers from polling places tomorrow.

The committee, through its advisory board, attacked the ruling by Chairman David B. Shaw of the election board in a statement asserting:

"Boston Democrats demand that the order be rescinded and that we be permitted to protect the rights of the citizens of both parties on election day."

Speaking at a meeting of the advisory committee at the Copley Square Hotel, John J. Mahan, general counsel to the city committee, declared the action a violation of constitutional rights.

Higgins Dinner Plans Completed

Plans were completed today for a testimonial dinner to be tendered Chief Justice John P. Higgins of Superior Court by the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters on Nov. 10 at the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Charles S. O'Connor, clerk of the State Supreme Court, has been designated to handle the applications from the hundreds connected with the courts who will attend.

Nichols Predicts Democratic Fight Will Put Him In

carry a single ward in Boston."

The former governor said he would rest until 5:45, hen he will begin a radio and rally whirlwind schedule to take him until after midnight and to include 56 stops.

TOBIN PLANS BIG NIGHT

Tobin also was active during the earlier part of the day, taking a rest period in the afternoon preparatory to his whirlwind windup tonight.

The school committeeman made his first address near the Cunard docks in East Boston to several hundred longshoremen at about the same time District Attorney Foley was receiving word that Local 1454 of the Longshoremen's Union had just endorsed the district attorney.

Tobin, at the time of his speech, however, did not know about the endorsement of Foley.

From East Boston, Tobin went to headquarters of the Musicians' Union in St. Botolph street, Back Bay.

At both places the school committeeman charged it was Curley who as mayor, was responsible for cuts in city employes' salaries everaging 5 to 20 per cent.

TELLS OF PAY CUTS

Curley, it was charged by Tobin could have held the cuts down to 1 to 2 per cent and it would have been sufficient, but he even sliced laborers' wages 5 per cent.

The school committeeman declared that he himself, as a member of the school board, forced Curley to raise from $1500 to $1600 the minimum of wages of those who were to take a 5 per cent slash.

Workers receiving $1500 or more a year were to have been cut 10 per cent, Tobin declared, but when he forced a raising of this minimum to $1600 he saved hundreds of workers an aggregate of thousands of dollars.

A vote for Foley or Nichols tomorrow will be wasted, Tobin told the labor unionists.

"It is now a battle between Curley and myself," he asserted.

"CURLEY MAN TO BEAT"

In their Sunday night rallies, Tobin, his aides and his Republican supporter, former Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., as well as Tobin's newspaper supporters, all let loose a fierce blast at Curley, apparently marking him as the man to beat.

Foley divided his fire between Curley and Tobin. And on the sidelines, Nichols and his backers rubbed their hands in glee and predicted the free-for-all fight between the Democrats that followed the sudden spurt of Tobin, meant only one result—a three-way split of Democratic votes and the election of Nichols, the Republican.

As to practical results of the battle over Sunday, Curley could point to the largest score. His candidacy obtained the endorsement of the famous Hendricks Club of the West End, stronghold of the late Martin Lomasney, after speeches by Joseph P. Lomasney, brother of the late leader, and President John I. Fitzgerald of the Boston City Council.

CURLEY HAS CROWDS

His headquarters also announced the support of every Democratic member of the Boston State senatorial group.

In point of attendance at the Sunday rallies Curley also attracted the greatest number when approximately 15,000 men and women stormed the Boston Arena for his chief meeting.

At this meeting Postmaster Peter Tague, one of the chief federal officeholders, made public his support of Curley by taking a seat on the platform.

Five thousand Tobin supporters gathered at the Boston Opera House to pay tribute to their man.

Nearly 5000 friends of District Attorney William J. Foley crowded into Hotel Bradford to hail their candidate.

A stir was created at the Foley gathering when it was discovered that Timothy W. Murphy of Jamaica Plain, former city assessor and one of the directors of the Nichols campaign, was present in the audience. Murphy hurriedly left the place when his identity was learned.

Meanwhile loyal Democrats wondered whether Curley or Tobin had the best chance to win over Nichols.

The Nichols forces, ignoring the presence of former State Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., Back Bay Republican, at the Tobin rally last night, were betting that in a badly-split field their man would be victorious.

Campaign directors for certain of the candidates were uneasy today because of rumors, which are being given widespread circulation, that some of their forces will break away late today and go over to the Curley standard.

Former Mayor Nichols began the final day of the campaign with a rally this forenoon at Boston Fish Pier. Large audiences were on hand to greet him wherever he spoke last night and he concluded the evening with a meeting of 1000 wildly-enthusiastic supporters at the Arbeiter Club in Jamaica Plain.

He told his audience that wherever it is possible to increase wages of city employees in the coming four years he will do so, if elected.

Tobin, at the Boston Opera House, predicted that 100,000 persons will vote for him tomorrow and declared that he will win by a margin of more than 10,000 votes.

BACKED BY PARKMAN

The youthful school committeeman heard former Senator Parkman describe him as the only candidate in the contest qualified to hold the office of mayor. Tobin, the Back Bay leader stressed, is the type of man for whom the people of Boston, regardless of party affiliation, have been waiting for the past 30 years.

"Despite the fact that I am a staunch Republican, it is a pleasure for me to [illegible] Maurice J. Tobin," Parkman said. "We need a change in Boston and we are going to have one."

Women outnumbered men at the gathering. So intense was the feeling of the Tobin supporters that they swarmed upon the stage at the conclusion of his address and police had difficulty in escorting him to a rear door of the opera house.

The Curley rally at the Boston Arena attracted such a throng that the seating capacity of the place was exhausted and it was necessary to use a sound wagon to carry the remarks of the various speakers to a crowd of more than 1000 people gathered outside the building.

DESCRIBES OPPONENTS

The former Governor described his three principal opponents as "puny creatures," and declared that he will defeat them tomorrow without difficulty.

Curley attacked Tobin's campaign platform, declaring that it consists largely of promises impossible of fulfillment in most cases, until such time as the character and obligation of the State Legislature has been changed from Republican to Democratic.

He said that Tobin's proposal to revalue all real estate in the city represents the most dangerous character of work that could be attempted by anyone and that when tried in Chicago it brought that city to the verge of bankruptcy, with the result that taxes were not paid for three years and many city employees received no wages for 18 months.

Tobin declared that District Attorney Foley's campaign has collapsed and that he is no longer a factor in the mayoralty contest. He urged Foley supporters to shift their support to him to assure the defeat of his rivals, Curley and Nichols.

Foley, striking back at Tobin, demanded that he tell the voters the source of the financial support he has received in this campaign.

Scorning the results of straw votes, he declared that political prophets will be confounded tomorrow evening when the votes are counted and he has been elected mayor. Law-abiding and home-loving citizens will settle the contest in his favor, he said.

Foley said that his honesty, experience and capability are known to the voters of Boston and that these citizens who trusted him to protect them in the office of district attorney will judge the various candidates on their records and not on ballyhoo.

The mayoralty candidates will be heard in every ward of Boston tonight as they make whirlwind tours of the city. Brief addresses will be the order of the night.

King's Chaplain Dead

LONDON, Nov. 1 (INS)—The Rev. Hugh R. L. Sheppard, well-known British ecclesiastic and editor, is dead at his Surrey home today. He had been a chaplain to the king since 1935.

Hendricks Club Backs Curley

The ancient Hendricks Club, powerful West End political organization, today backed former Governor James M. Curley for mayor after a turbulent meeting which saw the ousting of one protesting member.

Joseph Lomasney, 74-year-old brother of the late Martin Lomasney, famed Hendricks Club leader, announced that Curley was the organization's choice in tomorrow's election.

Hardly had the endorsement been announced when Assistant District Attorney Joseph Sullivan arose from his place and demanded to be heard. He was shouted down and was escorted from the hall by Police Captain William Donovan. Before leaving, however, he shouted:

"You don't want Curley. The only reason you all are backing him is because Joe Lomasney wants him. I'll leave quietly but Bill Foley will carry this very Ward 3 over Curley in the election."

Detroit Voting Set to Break All Records

CIO Candidate for Mayor Endorsed by Methodist Bishop

DETROIT, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Detroit municipal election campaign closed today with every indication that Tuesday's vote would exceed by more than 100,000 that of any other in the city's history. Observers said 450,000 voters might reach the polls.

Chief Election Supervisor Oakley A. Distin said nearly 3000 absentee voter ballots had been distributed and that it was a sure sign of an extraordinarily large vote.

BISHOP BACKS CIO MAN

Patrick H. O'Brien, candidate for mayor sponsored by the Committee for Industrial Organization, was endorsed Sunday by Bishop Edgar Blake of the Methodist Episcopal Church who said he spoke not as head of his church in Michigan but as a citizen.

Bishop Blake, speaking at a political rally, said the major issue of the non-partisan election was the laboring man's right to "representation in the city's affairs."

"To deny labor this right," said the Bishop, "is to deny every democratic principle on which the nation was founded."

Richard W. Reading, so-called Conservative candidate for mayor, said in a radio address that he had been made the victim of a "dastardly last minute attack" in being called a member of the Ku Klux Klan. Reading denied the charge.

ASSAULTS PROBED

Minor violence was investigated by police. Property damage and assaults upon campaign workers were reported.

Governor Murphy returned yesterday from a two-week vacation in West Virginia and reiterated his belief the state's chief executive should not participate in a non-partisan election. He said he would take no part in the election except to cast his own vote.

Empty Dory Clue To Lost Gunner

EASTHAM, Nov. 1—Hope for the safety of Robert D. Haskins, 25, of Centreville, who failed to return from a gunning trip Saturday, faded today after searchers found his dory cast up in the inner harbor.

The craft was upright but half filled with water. Search for the missing man, son of a Hyannis publisher, was continued by Coast Guards, a force of 60 Boy Scouts and many other volunteers.

The Dawn of a New Era for Boston
MAURICE J. TOBIN for MAYOR

Youth sweeps on to victory in Boston's greatest triumph for clean, honest government.

Boston looks to the new Generation which will again put our city in the foreground.

In every great intellectual and political movement youth has played a principal part.

Maurice J. Tobin, a young leader, has come forward with a comprehensive plan for the solution of Boston's problems.

He represents the vigor and promise of youth. He is honest, clean and courageous. He offers the one hope of a new era in Boston politics.

Educator, Executive, Business Man and Legislator. He will make a strong executive. He will give Boston an honest, efficient and impartial administration.

He is the overwhelming choice of the voters of Boston.

Youth marches on!

Platform of
MAURICE J. TOBIN

FINANCES:

I favor discontinuance of borrowings for maintenance purposes and the pyramiding of this character of debt which will result in financial suicide for the city unless stopped. At the earliest possible moment that a confiscatory tax rate can be avoided I shall stop this practice.

TAXES:

I favor revision of entire tax calendar, and suggest possibility of monthly payments of taxes. Such a plan is of two-fold benefit—making payments by tax payers less burdensome, and making it unnecessary for city to pay large sums each year in interest charges for temporary borrowing in anticipation of taxes.

I favor entire revision of tax laws, with view of providing relief to owners of real estate.

I favor revaluation of real estate during first year of my administration.

PORT OF BOSTON AND NEW INDUSTRIES:

I favor expansion of activities of Port Authority and establishment under mayor's direction of a Bureau of Industrial Relations, to work in harmony with Chamber of Commerce and Port Authority with object of attracting new industries and new enterprises to the city.

GEORGE ROBERT WHITE FUND:

I favor appointment of a paid representative of the White Fund trustees, to serve under unanimous appointment.

RELIEF EXPENDITURES:

I favor scientific study of entire relief problem as it affects city, state and national governments, with possibility of obtaining direct aid from the national government to care for abnormal relief load now carried by city, but city to retain control over expenditures.

HOSPITAL:

I favor study of hospital needs of city.

CONTRACTS:

700 Leaders Start Drive To Aid Jewish Charities

$565,000 Fund Set As Goal

3-Week Campaign Outlined During Opening Dinner

More than 700 leaders and workers of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies go forth today on their campaign to raise $565,000 in three weeks, fired by the speeches of Jewish leaders made last night in the Hotel Somerset at the opening dinner of the campaign.

Louis E. Kirstein, president of the Philanthropies, pointed out how vital it is that the required amount be raised.

EXPLAINS PURPOSE

"The issue we face in this campaign," he said, "is simple. In what sort of community do we want to live? Where dependent and neglected children are left to shift for themselves? Or where helpfulness graces the relations between man and man?

"We must not give any consideration to those who say that these are bad times in which to try to raise the money. Do the Jews in Germany think that? Can they have thought of income or principal? And who would have thought, 20 years ago, that such things could be?"

Judge Jonah J. Goldstein, of New York City, was guest speaker. Judge Goldstein emphasized that, in Jewish, there is no word for charity.

"Zadoka means justice," he pointed out.

URGES SELLING THE IDEA

"Philanthropy, instead of being the burden of the many, should be the responsibility of the few," he added. "It will be a sorry day when the government takes over all charity, for the next generation then will be one of shriveled souls.

"You must not try to get more money out of those who already give. You must sell the idea to those who have not contributed."

Dr. B. M. Selekman, executive director of the philanthropies, pointed out the large field the organization covers.

"In helping, here, we help people who are out of work. We help broken families. We help homeless children.

"We must continue the work. We must provide for Jewish community centers, or for the education of the young. In so doing, we shall also be stamping out crime at its breeding ground, before it has got started."

DETAILS USES

Dr. Charles F. Wilinsky, director of Beth Israel Hospital, explained the use to which money was put that came to the hospital.

"We serve 15,000 people," he said, "and there are 70,000 patients in our out-patient department each year, 6000 in our beds.

"Only a few more than half of the total are able to pay," he said.

Other speakers were Mrs. Hyman Freiman, chairman of the women's division; Milton Kahn, campaign director. Sidney Rabinovitz, former chairman, led the floor discussion.

The total amount to be raised this year is $70,000 more than last. A "victory dinner" will be held November 21, at which the workers will report.

Mahoney Takes Oath as Judge

In a crowded courtroom, Governor Hurley today administered the oath of office to his former secretary, John V. Mahoney, now judge of the Suffolk probate court.

Mrs. Mahoney and a son, George F., were among the spectators.

Governor Hurley appointed Judge Mahoney a fortnight ago to succeed Judge Arthur W. Dolan, elevated to the state supreme bench.

Another crowd of more than 500 persons witnessed the induction of Samuel Eisenstadt as judge of the Roxbury district court.

The oath was administered by Acting Chief Justice Timothy G. Ahern.

Among those present was Miss Edith Pranski of Winthrop, Judge Eisenstadt's fiancee.

O'Hara Granted Trial Delay

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 1 (AP)—Walter E. O'Hara, turfman-publisher, facing an indictment charging he criminally libelled Governor Robert E. Quinn, today won postponement of action on the indictment until November 12, when special pleas and demurrers must be filed.

O'Hara appeared before Superior Court Judge G. Frederick Frost with his counsel, Edward T. and Laurence J. Hogan, who asked the postponement on the grounds that entering a plea now might bar them from questioning the indictment, returned last week by the Kent County grand jury.

Judge Frost granted the request and continued bail at $5000.

Found in Her Former Home

Brighton Woman, 75, In Vacant Flat

Missing since late yesterday, Miss Margaret E. Keefe, 75, of North Harvard street, Brighton, was found today in the vacant Fenway apartment from which she and her sister, Miss Emma Keefe, had moved last week.

Police said she had left her new address in Brighton yesterday afternoon and when she started to return home apparently became confused and went back to the old apartment in Huntington ave., near Museum road.

When she failed to appear at the Brighton address last night, her nephew, Warren J. McBride of Hooker street, Allston, reported her missing. Police sent out a teletype description.

Today, the nephew, on a "hunch," went to the old address in the Fenway and sought the janitor, Leo Boucher. Together they found her in the vacant apartment.

She was suffering from exhaustion and was put under a doctor's care.

White Rajah Girl to Wed Mat Champ

LONDON, Nov. 1 (INS)—For the second time in half a dozen years, another marital crisis gripped the British Empire's most picturesque ruling family today, as the youngest daughter of Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, white Rajah of Sarawak, announced her intention of marrying a wrestler.

Defying her father's threat to disown her, the Hon. Valeria Brooke posted notice at Claxton registry office of her intention to wed Robert Gregory, 25-year-old handsome middleweight catch-as-catch-can champion of Europe.

With no loss of time, the 63-year-old white rajah cabled from his palace in Borneo, intimating his intention of disowning his daughter if she follows the dictates of her heart.

Valeria was undismayed.

"Of course I'm going to marry Bob," she said. "Father doesn't mean what he says. He hates publicity, and that's why he's upset."

Only a few years ago the rajah's second daughter, Elizabeth, known as Princess Pearl, married Harry Roy, popular British dance band leader. Sir Charles voiced equally vehement opposition at first, but later capitulated.

Gregory was just as determined as Valeria to go through with the nuptials regardless of what the Rajah says.

"The fact Valeria's father has threatened to disinherit her doesn't worry us in the least," the wrestler said. "I can take care of her. I've always been a fighter, and this is only another fight. I'm not pinned down yet."

3 Rescued After Night in Boat

NANTUCKET, Nov. 1—Coast guardsmen today rescued three Nantucket youths in a disabled motorboat after a gale and heavy surf twice parted a tow line and forced the rescuers to beat seven miles back to the shelter of Maddaket harbor.

The rescued, adrift eight hours, were Robert Blair, 24, William Dunham, 25, and Edward Perry, 24. The three set out from Maddaket in a 25-foot power boat Sunday afternoon.

Coast Guard aid was sought from the Coskata shore station when the youths failed to reach their destination at dark.

Despite booming surf, Warrant Officer F. W. Hawes was able to launch a surf boat crew.

Flares from the drifting and helpless craft were sighted at 9 p. m. several miles off Nantucket. Coast guards took the motorboat in tow, but giant seas parted the tow on two occasions and prevented a landing when Nantucket was reached.

Fearing all would be lost in an attempt to run the surf, Hawes elected to beat his way back to the more sheltered harbor at Maddaket.

River Pollution Control Urged By Hurley

Declares New England Must Act as Unit To Prevent Floods

The New England states must act as a unit on the problems of flood relief and river pollution for future economic safety of the respective states, Governor Hurley told a special flood control commission at the Parker House today.

He pointed out the importance of river pollution if the government allowed such a condition to exist, stating that shoe and leather factories, already harassed by cheap foreign imports, would be forced to seek other fields of manufacture.

U. S. Representative Edith Nourse Rogers laid before Governor Hurley a letter from Lieutenant-Colonel A. K. B. Lyman, which stated the construction of a reservoir and dam in Franklin Falls, N. H., would reduce damage 35 per cent below the 1936 figures in the event of future floods.

The letter also said a system of flood control reservoirs could be provided economically which would reduce by 81 per cent the level damage inflicted in the 1936 floods.

Lyman's letter expressed the belief adequate remedial measures could be obtained by emphasizing flood control and eliminating power and production.

Governor Hurleys' address to the commission members was made behind closed doors and the meeting was an informal round-table discussion.

Their recommendations will then be forwarded to Washington for consideration by President Roosevelt and department heads.

Representing this state at the discussion were: Attorney-General Paul A. Dever, Commissioner of Public Works William F. Callahan and Miss Elizabeth Herlihy, chairman of the state planning board.

Experts Ponder On Schooling As Quins Sing

Biologists, Educators, Doctors Weigh Future of 5

CALLANDER, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Dionne quintuplets sang and heard the story of the little red hen today, oblivious to the fact great scientific minds were pondering their future.

When shall they be brought in closer contact with life as it is lived? How shall they be educated when they get beyond their present nursery-school stage? Shall they continue to be shown to the public, which comes thousands of miles to see them from behind a screen—and takes away pebbles as souvenirs from the nursery ground?

Those were questions discussed biologists, medical experts and educators as "the Dionne quintuplet special" took them away from the pine and birch slopes of Callander after a trek from a Toronto conference on the quins' progress.

No immediate changes are contemplated in the quins' regime, but these plans are under consideration:

The building of a school near the nursery, where the five sisters could be educated along with a group of other children.

The acquisition of more land near the nursery so the quins would have freer range.

Dr. Allan R. Dafoe also told the scientists the quins' guardians "are looking forward hopefully to the time when the Dionne family will all be under one roof."

"Just when that will be," he said, "we cannot say at present, but that is the goal toward which we are striving."

The question of showing the quins to the public is a problem. Visitors have a tendency to exclaim, "The dears," or "Hello, Marie," although signs hanging around the playground command "Silence."

And Now Eggs To Match Vest

Scientist Develops Vari-Colored Yolks

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 1—Breakfast egg-eaters won't have to worry about that spot on the vest if experiments here continue to work out—for the egg yolk will match the color of the vest.

William Kirk exhibited several eggs with vari-colored yolks to science students at a high school here last week. He said all were laid by New Hampshire Red hens.

Kirk explained the color variations in the yolk were produced by a special mixture he has been feeding his hens at the direction of a feed company chemist.

Pins His Defense On His Perfume

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 (INS)—Leroy Nijdl, 22, pinned his hope for freedom today on the coincidence that he uses the same perfume as a young woman whose home was burglarized.

Nijdl denied the theft, but Kay Morganstine, 20, sniffed when she was taken to identify him.

"He uses the same perfume I do, then," she said.

Marxes Gloomy In Jail Fight

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1 (INS)—There was gloom today in the house of Marx—Chico's and Groucho's.

They didn't see anything funny in the fact they had been found guilty in a federal court of infringing on a copyrighted radio skit.

"We'll appeal it. We'll demand a new trial," declared Groucho, who is usually very funny indeed on the stage or in the movies.

"We don't think this is funny," he said. "We might get a jail jolt out if it."

They were to appear for sentence today, and under the law the judge could fine them $1000 or send them to jail for a year, or do both.

A federal jury found them guilty of using material which belonged to Carroll and Garrett Graham, film script men.

U. S. Tax Revision Battle Opens Thursday

Sub-Committee Plans Study of Corporate Surplus Problem

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (INS)—A protracted battle over taxation in Congress today appeared probable as plans were made for opening of the House Ways and Means Committee's investigation of tax laws this week.

The meeting of the special tax sub-committee on Thursday, with Rep. Fred Vinson (D.) of Kentucky, as chairman, will herald official beginning of the tax revision movement.

While revision of the corporate surplus tax to provide cushions for weak corporations and allowances for plant expansion appeared certain, further important changes in taxation were questionable.

EXPECTS READJUSTMENT

Within the past week New Deal advocates here have privately charged that the stock market crash was engineered in a drive for repeal of the corporate surplus and capital gains taxes. The charges may be brought into the open as Congress considers revision.

Fear of further loss of taxes if the capital gains tax is repealed now, when values are still far higher than they were three years ago, is said to be one reason for the hesitancy of many treasury officials in recommending its repeal.

While Vinson does not expect a general tax increase in the coming session of Congress, except in the course of readjustment, the business situation and prospect of further huge treasury deficits has brought the question to the fore.

Congress, in the opinion of many politicians, would balk at hiking taxes in the face of congressional elections next year.

LAFOLLETTE TO FIGHT

In spite of this fear, Senator La Follette (P.) of Wisconsin will make a fight to lower income tax exemptions and boost rates.

Cost of farm program may precipitate a bitter debate over processing taxes, with New England members leading a fight against revival of these levies.

House tax experts frankly declare that income tax rates on the high brackets are now so great, little additional revenue could be raised by "soaking the rich." Instead, some hold, money would be driven into tax exempt bonds and the government would lose revenue.

Reduction of social security taxes, abandonment of the plan under fund would eventually be created and change to more of a pay-as-you-go policy also is expected to be thrashed out in Congress during the special and regular sessions.

Roosevelt Studies U. S. Tax Problem

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 1 (INS)—As the special session of Congress drew near, President Roosevelt today delved again into the pressing problems of balancing the budget and determining whether new taxes will be necessary.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Acting Budget Director Bell had an hour's conference scheduled at Hyde Park.

Significantly, this pair was to be followed by Federal Reserve Board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, whose agency recently reduced margin requirements from 55 to 40 per cent in an effort to bolster a sagging stock market.

The immediate question before the President and his treasury aides was financing of the surplus crop control measure which the November 15 session will be called upon to enact. Mr. Roosevelt has served notice on the agricultural chairmen of both Houses that he expects compensating revenue legislation to be enacted.

The other caller on the Hyde Park list today was Father Noonan, local parish priest and an old friend of Mr. Roosevelt.

Stolen Car Chase Nets Arrest of 3

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Nov. 1 (INS)—Seven persons on a gay halloween party were killed in an automobile crash on a mountain road off the Lee highway six miles from Huntsville.

The cause of the tragedy was unknown. Every occupant of the car was dead when a small boy hunting hickory nuts came on the scene.

The Brighter Side

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., international copyright and all other rights reserved.)

Mr. Joe Turp writes, as follows:

Brooklyn, October 30.

Dear sir last night my wife Ethel ses to me Joe it must be a wonderful thing to be missus Rosefelt and I ses what Mrs. Rosefelt.

Damon Runyon

Why Ethel ses the wife of the president of the United States of America.

I ses what is any more wonderful about being his wife than being somebody elses wife outside of the pay and Ethel ses well she gets to go so many places and see so many things. I always read what missus Rosefelt writes in the newspapers about what she is doing and she is always doing something. Every day she writes about where she has been and what she saw and you can always tell where she is and what she is doing. It is wonderful.

I ses all right where is she now and what is she doing and Ethel ses she is home in Hyde Park and I ses where is somebodies wife supposed to be anyway except home? I ses what is she doing and Ethel ses she went for a ride and it was raining and muddy and she had to go back to the house and there was a lot of interesting people there and I ses what was interesting about that.

Ethel ses well missus Rosefelt did not say what was interesting about them. She just ses they was interesting and I ses I do not see anything so wonderful about that. I ses where was missus Rosefelts old man all this time and what was he doing and Ethel ses he was having his luncheon with some people. I ses what did he have for lunch and Ethel ses missus Rosefelt did not say what he had for lunch.

I ses well all right what did he say and Ethel ses missus Rosefelt did not tell what he said either and who cares what anybodys old man had for lunch and what he ses anyway?

May be he did not say anything. I ses look Ethel if people are having lunch they must say something. I ses they cannot set there like dummies. They are bound to say pass the butter or something like that or talk about the rainy weather and Ethel ses O Joe you are never serious about anything I am interested in.

Besides she ses you know it is not true that people must say something when they are having lunch because lots of times when you do something to make me mad at you I eat lunch with you and never say a word and I ses was missus Rosefelt mad at her old man and Ethel ses of course not. Don't be foolish Joe people like that never get mad at each other.

I ses how do you know and she ses well nobody ever heard of people like that getting mad at each other and anyway Joe Turp I bet if she ever did get mad at him he would not go around slamming doors and carrying on like you do and saying if he had known when he was well off he would have staid single.

• • •

I ses well Ethel baby I apologize but just the same I would like to know what mister Rosefelt had for lunch and what he ses and if missus Rosefelt is going to put everything she does herself in the newspapers she has a right to tell us those things, and if she ever gets mad at her old man too and Ethel ses Joe Turp it is not nice for you to talk that way and I will not listen to you another minute.

I ses all right Ethel but where else did missus Rosefelt go and what did she do that she put in the newspapers and Ethel ses well that is about all she did that particular day but she goes some place and does some thing every day. That was a quiet day for her because she was at home. Sometimes she goes to hospitals to see her children or to their weddings and she is always knitting.

I ses what does she knit and Ethel ses I do not remember but I bet it is something useful. I only wish I could write for the newspapers about where I go and what I do every day. I ses well it is a cinch you could not write about going to the hospital to see your children or to their weddings and Ethel ses why not? I ses because you do not have any children. I ses you could not write about knitting because I once heard your mom say that you are the worst knitter in this whole world.

Well Ethel ses I can sew good and I ses if you can sew good how about sewing those buttons on those four shirts I put out for you three weeks ago?

I ses you could not write about where you go because you do not go anywhere and Ethel ses yes that is just it. I do not go anywhere because you do not take me anywhere and I ses well does missus Rosefelts old man take her anywhere and Ethel ses no but that is only because he is too busy.

• • •

She ses I could go everywhere and do everything if I had married somebody who was liable to be President of the United States of America some day instead of somebody which likes to live in Brooklyn and I ses listen Ethel you did pretty good when you married me.

I may never be President of the United States of America but I have been a good provider for you and anyway I do not like to hear you putting in any knocks on Brooklyn.

I ses I will tell you what I will do for you. I will take you over to New York to see a movie if you will not take all night getting yourself fixed up and Ethel ses Joe you are a dear and I take back what I said about Brooklyn but if I was missus Rosefelt I could set down after we get home tonight and tell about my day at the movies and I bet it would be wonderful.

Yours truly Joe Turp

Mother Slays 5 'To Obey Bible'

NORWALK, Ia., Nov. 1 (INS)—". . . And every son that is born ye shall kill him . . ."

A Bible lying on a table open at this passage was the only clue authorities had today to the motive that prompted a 35-year-old mother to slay five of her children and then turn a shotgun on herself.

The five—ranging in age from two to 13 years—were found dead in their beds with shotgun wounds between their eyes.

The mother, Mrs. Elma McAninch, was found dead nearby.

The tragedy was discovered by two surviving sons, Ray, 15, and Gail, 11, who walked into their farm home following a Halloween party. There was a note for them which read:

"I have stood all I can and I think it is best to take the kids along. The only thing that saves you two boys is that there are no more shells."

Mrs. Hahn's Son Aids Her Case

CINCINNATI, Nov. 1 (AP)—Judge Charles S. Bell overruled today a defense motion for the acquittal of Anna Marie Hahn on a murder-by-poison charge.

Mrs. Hahn's 12-year-old son, Oscar, was the first witness in her defense.

Defense counsel launched an attempt to refute state testimony that a bottle found in Mrs. Hahn's home, identified as a powerful poison, was her property.

The boy testified he owned a chemical set, and frequently picked up cast-off bottles from a lot adjoining a nearby hospital and from the office of Dr. Arthur Vos, located in the Hahn home.

Oscar's mother watched him intently, smiling slightly as he smiled at her. Chief defense counsel, Hoodin, said Mrs. Hahn would follow her son on the stand.

Taximen Quizzed For 'Torture Bandit' Clue

Believe Pair Who Beat And Burned Victims, Fled in Cab

More than two score taxicab drivers were quizzed by detectives today in the search for two bandits who burned the necks of two employes of Liggett's drug store, North Station, with cigarette butts in an effort to learn the combination of a safe containing $1500.

The bandits, who escaped with $1300, part of the week-end receipts, were reported to have fled the scene in a taxicab parked at the curb.

Scorning the presence of 500 persons in the station proper, the bandits trussed up Perry H. Austin, 24, assistant manager, of Monmouth court, Brookline, and Fred Marden, 23, a clerk, of Center street, Jamaica Plain.

Despite the fact the bandit-pair had scooped up $1300 from a dumbwaiter which carried it upstairs from the floor below, they were determined to get the $1500 Austin had already put away in the safe.

Austin stubbornly refused to tell although his face was bleeding and battered from their kicks and blows. Then the bandits lighted cigarettes and pressed the burning ends into his throat and the back of his neck. Still Austin refused to tell the combination. Marden, subjected to similar torture, refused.

The employes were then bound with clothesline the bandits carried in a black bag, and adhesive tape was slapped over their mouths. For nearly an hour they struggled before they loosed their bonds and telephoned police. Austin refused hospital treatment for his wounds and burns.

Both furnished police with detailed descriptions of the bandit pair. Both were swarthy and about 25 years of age.

Gun Death Of Typist Is Probed

Spencer, Former N. Y. Giant Player, Held As Witness

HELEN GRIER

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 1 (INS) — Canadian authorities worked today on the theory that foul play was responsible for the death of Miss Helen Grier, attractive stenographer, in whose slaying Vernon Spencer, 40, former New York Giants baseball player, is held without bail as a material witness.

Spencer, in a preliminary statement to Coroner J. P. Keith, declared he found Miss Grier's body lying in his cabin near here, when he returned from a search for moose tracks in the nearby woods. Her head had been pierced by a .22 caliber bullet, and the weapon was lying by her pajama clad body, he said.

Spencer said Miss Grier, whose home was in Pontiac, Mich, had accompanied him on the hunting trip to the lonely cabin. In Michigan, the young woman lived only a few miles from the 300-acre dairy farm operated by Spencer, father of two children.

Hadassah Seeks British Rule Continuance

Women Zionists Ask Palestine Control Until Terms Set

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 1 (AP) — Hadassah, the American women's Zionist organization, asked continuance of the British rule over an undivided Palestine until terms for the proposed establishment of a Jewish state are ascertained.

A large majority of 2,500 delegates to the order's 23rd annual convention adopted a resolution to that effect after five hours of debate.

The resolution called upon the executive of the world Zionist organization in its negotiations with Great Britain "to bring about a constructive policy for the complete implementation of the mandate over an undivided Palestine." The Hadassah resolution rejected "all palliative proposals."

DECISION BINDING

At the same time, however, the resolution noted that "the decisions of a special Zionist congress to consider the issue will be binding on the entire Zionist World."

Mrs. Moses P. Epstein, of New York, was elected president for the coming year. Others elected were: Miss Henrietta Szold of Jerusalem, 77-year old founder of the order, honorary president; Mrs. Edward Jacobs, New York, honorary vice-president; Mrs. David De Sola Pool, New York, Mrs. Joseph Ehrlich, Detroit, Miss Julliet N. Benjamin, New York, Mrs. Adolph Sieroty, Los Angeles, vice-presidents; Mrs. Herman Shulman, New York, secretary, and Mrs. Alexander Lamport, New York, treasurer.

The Palestine resolution expressed disagreement with assertions by the British Royal Commission that "the mandate has proved unworkable and the conclusion of the commission that "the national aspirations of the Jewish people and of the Arabs of Palestine are irreconcilable."

The measure was described by Mrs. Samuel J. Rosensohn, of New York, its sponsor, as having "taken into account to some degree the feeling of pro-partition minority."

Typist Freed In Frank Case

Has Suffered Enough, Declares Judge

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (INS)—Removing the last shadow of imprisonment from Gertrude O'Keefe, Judge Voorhies today suspended sentence when the 37-year-old typist pleaded guilty to illegal possession of a gun.

In announcing his ruling, the jurist said:

"This woman has been punished enough."

She had been freed previously when arraigned on charges that she shot and killed George O. Frank, her former suitor, whose body was found only a few doors from her rooming house in Brooklyn.

Frank, whose killing is still marked "unsolved" on police records, was the fiance of a Lowell, Mass., woman.

HOTEL KENMORE SWITCHES TO ELECTRIC COOKING

After thorough investigation of all cooking methods, the management of the Hotel Kenmore decided that nothing can approach electric cooking for complete cleanliness and delicacy of flavor.

NOW the Hotel Kenmore is the ONLY hotel in Greater Boston to offer you delicious food from an All-Electric main kitchen.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Those that whisper behind cupped-hands in the City Hall corridors have it that Mayor Mansfeild is preparing to accept a judgeship . . . he has taken care of his secretarial force already by shifting John Foley and Arthur O'Keefe to the park department . . . Bill Healey, also of its staff, is now laboring in the assessing department . . . Benny Drohan's "troubadors," who campaigned for Foley via the sound-truck route, are being sued for cracking windows in the South Boston area with their lusty renditions . . . Carl Moore thumped the picayune piano in the cramped vehicle.

New Film Lead for Dolores

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1937, by International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1—Lucky day for Dolores Del Rio when she stepped into the femme lead in "Lancer Spy" for this picture did more for her than anything she's done since "What Price Glory."

Come to think of it, "Lancer Spy" was a field day for George Sanders, Gregory Ratoff and everyone who had anything to do with it considering that it started out as "just another picture" and wound up a smash hit at the box office.

Louella O. Parsons

Now Darryl Zanuck, who is plenty smart on following up his hit ideas, is planning a return engagement for Dolores and George Sanders in "Shanghai Deadline." This is the picture originally scheduled for Claire Trevor, Virginia Field and Sanders, but a change of plans all around put Dolores and June Lang in the feminine leads, with Dick Baldwin, John Carradine and Keye Luke in support.

* * *

Don't quote me but Clark Gable will probably be starred in Sidney Howard's play, "Yellow Jack" before ever a foot of film is turned on "Test Pilot." Clark needs a real he-man story and "Yelow Jack" is just that. It's the fight against yellow fever at Panama and the hero is a United States marine—a typical Gable role.

True, "Test Pilot," is scheduled to start in November but I don't think the studio will force Clark to make it when he is so definitely opposed to the treatment of the story.

* * *

A Line or Two: Lucky break for Olga Phillips and John Kohl when Sam Goldwyn happened to be present when they did "The Big Apple" at Elsa Maxwell's party. Now they're on the train headed for Hollywood and a featured spot in "The Goldwyn Follies" . . . Every time Irvin Cobb goes out and gets himself a movie job he's usually cast as a ship's captain. So he'll be right at home in his seafaring togs for Sol Lesser's "Hawaii Calls." Raymond Paige gets a spot in this one, too . . .

Hear Garbo is going to Sweden without signing her new Metro contract. What? Are we going to have to suffer through another seige of she's signed—she hasn't signed acts? That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

Annual Retreat At B. C. 3 Days

Annual retreat for Boston College upperclassmen will start tomorrow and continue through Thursday.

Rev. Frederick J. McCarten, S. J., formerly a professor of rhetoric at the college, will direct the retreat of sophomore and junior classes in the library auditorium.

The senior retreat will be given by the Rev. Thomas A. Fay, S. J., of St. Mary's Church, North End, in the senior lecture hall.

Worthy Leaders of American Stage Are Here

Joan Bennett starts her final week tonight at the Shubert in the Kaufman-Ferber hit, "Stage Door."

Ethel Barrymore returns to the stage tonight in "The Ghost of Yankee Doodle" which reopens the Wilbur.

Ed Wynn Up to New Stardom at Colonial

By PEGGY DOYLE

Hooray for Ed Wynn in "Hooray for What!" his first stage appearance in five years!!!

"Hooray for What!" the Shuberts' lavish laugh-fest which opened Saturday night at the Colonial for a fortnight's engagement, brings him back alive with new gags and newer poison gas formulas, even goofier outfits and sillier puns.

He is still the Perfect Fool, the Simple Simon. Just the sight of him, all dressed up in costumes you'll never find a hint of in Ann Marsters' well-dressed man series, flirting his banana fingers in helpless gestures and voicing his inimitable brand of humor in his inimitable falsetto, was an "old home week" applause signal.

In "Hooray for What!" Wynn appears as Chuckles, a daft inventor who simultaneously completes his final correspondence course chemistry lesson and discovers the world's deadliest poison gas. The League of Nations is holding a peace conference, which he attends as the munitions makers' representative.

* * *

In Geneva, he is a magnet for the spies of all nations. Most persistent is beautiful, blonde Stephanie Stephanovitch, one-time keyhole columnist assistant, who copies the formula by means of her vanity mirror. The Harriman Munitions Company sells it. But the laugh is on them when Chuckles, informed of developments, reveals that the formula has been copied upside down and that in no time the world, too, will be upside down with laughter, for the gas is laughing, not poison, gas.

Another of Chuckles' pet gases is mustard gas, which "I'm sending over to Cambridge for Frankfurter." His gas that will revive the dead, he says, has broken down the Republican Party's selling resistance but it is his Brotherly gas, which will "make the whole world like Philadelphia" that most delights his inventor's soul.

Sharing the spotlight with Wynn are Hannah Williams (Mrs. Jack Dempsey) Kay Thompson and Paul Haakon.

Miss Williams is a petite, lively brunette, who continues to look pretty when she sings and whose voice, if not remarkable, is pleasing. Despite a few more years and responsibilities, she is still "A Cheerful Little Earful."

* * *

Radio's Kay Thompson is a stunning blonde, whose musical comedy debut finds her able to "take it" with the greatest of ease. Her "Moanin' in the Mornin'," "Down with Love" and "The Night of the Embassy Ball" are sung with distinction and authority. Her spy burlesque of Garbo, Dietrich and Francie is great.

Paul Haakon's waltz number with Ruthanna Boris, "On With the Dance," and his "Hero Ballet" are effective and beautiful.

Most amusing is the "Click Ze Heel" number sung by diplomats galore. The juvenile leads, Roy Roberts and John Elliott, are excellent. And there is even a fine vaudeville show thrown in, with the comic Briants, Sue Hastings' Marionettes and Gordon's amazing dogs.

"Hooray for What!" had its beginning in the fertile brain of E. Y. Harburg, who wrote it in collaboration with Russell Crouse and Howard Lindsay. The perfectly swell music was written by Harold Arlen and orchestrated by Don Walker. Orchestra Conductor Robert Emmett Dolan does particularly well by it, particularly "Down with Love," "Moanin' in the Mornin'" and "On with the Dance."

'Mystery Girl' At Columbia

Heads Four-Star Burlesque Show

The Columbia Theater's spotlighted stage feature for the week is "The Mystery Girl," who sings, dances and is considered one of burlesque's most beautiful girls.

Joyzelle

She heads a four-star show unit, entitled "The Show of Shows," which has a cast of more than 60 people.

Another burlesque favorite, Mae Brown, is an added attraction. Her sensational run is being extended by popular demand. Then there are Joyzelle, dancer and singer, "Bubbles" Yvonne, and Judy King, "mistress of swing."

The feature picture, "Scarface," with Paul Muni in the title role, starts at 11 a. m. The usual two stage shows will be presented at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m., with evening performance seats reserved.

Playbill For This Week

OPENING

WILBUR—"The Ghost of Yankee Doodle" with Ethel Barrymore and Dudley Digges co-starred in this new Sidney Howard play. Featured in the cast are Frank Conroy, Elizabeth Young, Franklin Downing, Eliot Cabot, Russell Hardie, Ethel Intropodi and many others.

* * *

CONTINUING

COLONIAL—Ed Wynn in "Hooray for What!" new musical comedy. Book by E. Y. Harburg, Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse. Music by Harold Arlen.

PLYMOUTH—"You Can't Take It With You," Pulitzer prize winner, written by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman and produced by Sam H. Harris. It is a close up on the daft home-life of the nice if nutty Sycamore family. Priestly Morrison and Ethel Wilson head the cast.

SHUBERT-COPLEY — "Room Service," George Abbott production that is still doing a hit business in New York. John Murray and Allen Boretz wrote it and Hume Cronyn is one of the reasons for the hilarity.

SHUBERT—Joan Bennett in person in the New York stage success, "Stage Door," by Edna Ferber and George S. Kauffman. It is a story about those aspiring, ambitious youngsters who starve in the ultimate hope of becoming Cornells and Hayeses. Final week.

Howard Features Margie Hart In Revue

Fresh from Manhattan burlesque triumph, Margie Hart comes to the Old Howard this week in the top spot of "Naughty Nifties," stage revue featuring many novelties, exotic dances and expert acrobats.

Margie Hart

Others in the "Naughty Nifties" cast are Mickey Levan, eccentric comic, Billy Foster, comic, Eleanor Whitney, dancer, Lottie Boles, Curtis and Virginia, Benson and Hartzell, Foster and Jacobs, Pearl Mylie, Zuzu, Marion Mason and Ford, Marshall and Janet, billed as Harlem's two kings and queen of dance. In addition, there is a chorus of 25.

On Tuesday night, election returns will be read from the stage. There are three shows every day at the Old Howard, starting at 12 noon, 2:30 and 8:30 p. m. Every Friday night there is a midnight show at 11:30.

CHAPTER 13

Do I feel important!

Today was my chaperone's first visit to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, and I knew enough about the place by this time to serve as a guide.

Naturally, I had to have some help, but I knew more about the locations of this and that than I ever would have believed.

Oh, it was such a busy day.

And while I think of it, what's the point in trying to make me homesick?

Never was I as surprised as when notified that sacks of Maine potatoes had arrived at the hotel, sent by plane, if you please. And then a request to have my picture taken with them.

I must admit that, as much as I like Hollywood, seeing those potatoes did give me pangs of nostalgia.

And then it made me think of something I had almost forgotten in all of this motion picture whirls of excitement.

I'm missing the hunting season.

Because this fact had slipped into my mind, I mentioned it to someone at the studio. And what was my surprise to learn that they have a hunting season in California too, and this is it. I have even been invited to a venison dinner, the results of a short vacation trip by some friends of mine on the lot.

But to get back to yesterday's exploits.

First of all, we decided to show Chaperone some working sets, and since Billie Burke and Fanny Brice were in the middle of some comedy scenes for the picture, "Everybody Sing," which I have mentioned before, we decided that that stage would be an excellent prospect.

It was.

Billie Burke seems extremely interested in discovering new screen talent.

She talked to us for a long time between scenes and was so sincere in wishing me luck in the forthcoming test.

She's interested in Boston, too. Wanted to know all about it, and about the contest and everything.

After visiting for a time, we journeyed over to the modern penthouse set to be used in Joan Crawford's picture, "Mannequin."

That is, without a doubt, the most beautiful home I have ever seen.

Everything about it is perfection. The furnishings, in soft shades of midnight blue and chartreuse against a background of white. And the porch from which one glimpses the entire New York skyline reproduced in every detail, even to electric signs that blink on and off, and lighted windows in the buildings.

By the time we "did" that set completely, it was the hour for my lesson with Lillian Burns.

We attacked voice and diction exercises with a vengeance.

I have never "may-me-ma-mo-moo'ed" so much in my entire life. She is such a good coach, and I'm so fortunate in having a person such as she is to help me through that test.

By the way, she informed me last night that the big event is today, and so every moment I'm concentrating on my study.

(Helen Hughes' 14th chapter on her Hollywood thrills will appear in the Boston American tomorrow.)

Jones Not Excited Over Market Slip

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (INS)—Neither business conditions nor the recent slippings of the stock market are anything "to get excited about," Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said here.

The RFC chairman, here to make an address tonight, declared: "Sometimes the stock market is a barometer of business and sometimes it isn't. In this case I don't think it is. Business, it seems to me, is good enough."

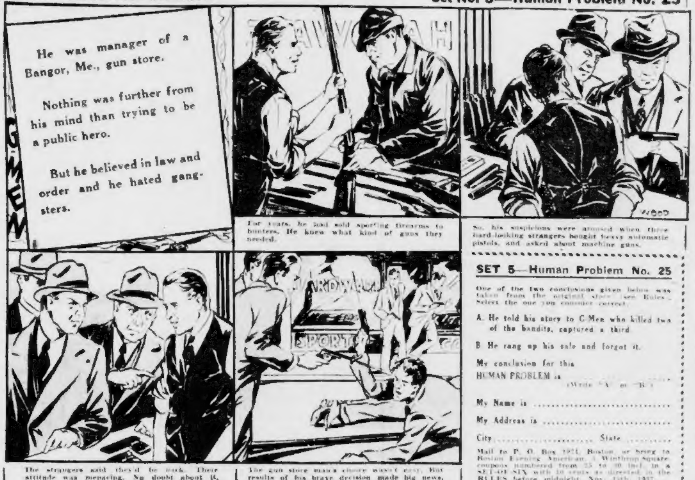
PUBLIC BENEFACTOR NO. 1 Set No. 5—Human Problem No. 25



He was manager of a Bangor, Me., gun store.
Nothing was further from his mind than trying to be a public hero.
But he believed in law and order and he hated gangsters.
G-MEN
WOOD

For years, he had sold sporting firearms to hunters. He knew what kind of guns they needed.

So, his suspicions were aroused when three hard-looking strangers bought heavy automatic pistols, and asked about machine guns.

The strangers said they'd be back. Their attitude was menacing. No doubt about it, they were bandits.

The gun store man's choice wasn't easy. But results of his brave decision made big news, won him widespread praise.

SET 5—Human Problem No. 25

One of the two conclusions given below was taken from the original story (see Rules). Select the one you consider correct.

A. He told his story to G-Men who killed two of the bandits, captured a third.

B. He rang up his sale and forgot it.

THE AMERICAN'S EASY RULES IN A "NUTSHELL"

★ The Editors of the Boston Evening American have written and illustrated 90 short stories that deal with HUMAN PROBLEMS.

★ One story will appear daily for 15 weeks. Each week six will appear. Each six represents a Set. There will be 15 Sets.

★ Each story has been written and illustrated so that you may with skill and judgment be able to find the correct conclusion.

★ Each story will have clues in the text of illustration that will point to the one correct conclusion. (Stories are taken from fiction, fable, history and the pages of this paper.)

★ The contest began October 4th, 1937, and ends January 22nd, 1938.

★ Anyone in New England may enter except employees of Hearst Newspapers and members of their families.

★ The One Hundred contestants who have most successfully selected the correct conclusions, thereby obtaining the highest grade, will be awarded in the order of their gradings a total of $20,000.00 in Cash. The first award will be $15,000.00 with 99 consolation awards listed on this page.

★ NEATNESS is not a factor in the judging of the answers.

★ The judges have been appointed. They will have the original source from which each story was taken as proof of the ONE correct solution.

★ In case of ties only the tied contestants will submit an original problem in less than 200 words. This tie breaking problem will be judged on its ORIGINALITY OF THOUGHT and its Human Quality. Neatness or grammatical construction does not count.

★ Every contestant will have an individual file. They will receive an acknowledgment card of their entry with their contest number.

★ The SETS-OF-SIX are to be sent in EACH WEEK in a Unit.

★ TEN CENTS must be sent with EACH SET-OF-SIX. This is required to be eligible for a prize. The contestant will receive in return an illustrated booklet containing 15 original Human Problems. The booklet will be mailed at the conclusion of the contest to the contestants who have completed the ninety problems.

★ The judges will have final decision, and by entering you agree to accept their decisions as final.

★ The Boston American will publish the correct conclusions following the awarding of the prizes and in case the contestants submit tie-breaking original problems, these will be published in the new department of the Boston American, to be called the HUMAN FORUM.

Rummage Sale Will Benefit Eye and Ear Infirmary

By BETTY ALDEN

THOUGH THE advertisements say that spring is house cleaning time, we know of plenty of society closets which are being cleared out this week so that their contents of forgotten odds and ends, old books, discarded clothes, etc., can be given to the ladies who are planning the annual rummage sale for the benefit of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary . . . The sale will take place Thursday and Friday, November 4 and 5 . . . at 757 Boylston street . . .

PHYLLIS FORBES

Mrs. Sullivan A. Sargent, Jr., and Mrs. Harold Peabody, members of the ladies visiting board of the infirmary, are chairmen of the group of prominent society women working for the success of the sale . . .

Others on the committee for the benefit are Mrs. Richard Cary Curtis, Jr., treasurer; Mrs. U. H. Kazajian, secretary; Miss Emily Davis, Mrs. Leslie Soule, Mrs. Livingston Davis, Mrs. Harris P. Mosher, Mrs. Paul Courtney, Mrs. John E. Boit, Mrs. Louis Curtis, Jr., Mrs. Weld Douglas, Mrs. Herbert Bramwell Shaw, Mrs. Reginald Foster and Mrs. Isaac Edmands . . .

Also Mrs. Edwin B. Dunphy, Mrs. Robert L. Goodale, Mrs. Lawrence Lombard, Miss Grace Madden, Mrs. Charles E. Mason and Miss Mary Otis . . .

The committee members have called on some of their friends to come and help out as extra sales girls . . . so when you drop in you are likely to see Alice Burrage, Phyllis Forbes, Mrs. Robert B. Almy or Helen Jackson extolling the virtues of this or that object to prospective customers . . .

Also helping out will be Margaret Swift, Jean and Barbara Hoyt, debs of this season, Anne Soutter, Mrs. William B. Long and Mrs. Henry Rogerson . . .

Still others on the committee are Mrs. John Richardson, Mrs. Trygve Gundersen, Mrs. Edward J. L. Ropes, Mrs. Reginald Smithwick, Mrs. William B. Snow, Jr., Miss Anita Sturgis and Mrs. F. H. Verhoeff . . .

Socialites Flock to Wynn Premiere

BOSTON SEEMS to be regaining its old time fame as the proving ground for worthwhile stage productions . . . Already this fall we have had several world premieres . . . plays which were first viewed by Boston audiences before they went off to triumphs in other cities and on Broadway . . .

The world's premiere performance of comedian Ed Wynn's new musical revue, "Hooray for What!" at the Colonial theater, Saturday night attracted many socialites . . . former Governor and Mrs. Frank G. Allen were in a foursome . . . Mrs. Allen wore a black velvet dinner gown with the new heart shaped neck adorned by a double strand of pearls . . .

Frances Hovey was one of the dressiest girls present with her beautiful white fox cape hugging her shoulders over a flame satin gown . . . several brilliant clips adorned her dark hair . . . Mrs. William P. Long topped her black gown with a rose sequin bolero, and wrapped herself in a fur cape when it came time for Mr. Long to guide her through the after-theater crowd to a taxi . . . Three of this season's debs were in the audience, Peggy Nye with her parents and looking more attractive than ever in a long brocaded wrap of oyster white, with a couple of huge orchids on her shoulder . . . Anne Motley and Patty Spencer both wore daytime outfits, Anne with two escorts, and Patty with but one . . .

The Charlie Devenses, whom we hear have just moved from the Hill out to Milton, were among those lucky enough to get seats . . . and others in the audience were Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mrs. Q. A. Shaw McKean, Clement Burnholme, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Reeves, Mrs. Robert Hoffman, Anne Blake, the Gaspar Bacons with their popular son Gappy Jr., and Becky Hobbs who has her hands full today making last-minute preparations for the big Theatre Guild opening tonight at the Wilbur . . .

Round of Entertainments for Guest

MARY MORISON who has been hostess to Annie May Henry, an attractive Chicago miss, over the week-end, started off the round of entertainments for her guest by taking her to the Balinese Room at the Somerset . . . There, in a foursome with Phil Tucker and a short, dark youth, they kept up a running fire of conversation and laughter all evening until it came time to go home and plan for every hour of their busy week-end schedule which included a ride up to Peterboro, a luncheon by Polly Wardwell, and a cocktail party at Mary Fuller's . . . Miss Henry is a niece of Mrs. George Swift, whose daughter Lucille, used to be Phil Tucker's most frequent dancing partner . . . The same evening Leslie Blake was in a twosome with Francis Coolidge of Concord, and Marjorie Kimpton was a vivacious and attractive partner for Charles Bulfinch who dropped in with her after the theater . . .

Mrs. Francis R. Allen, Mrs. Arthur Johnson and Mrs. Francis Capper are among the pourers at the tea being given this afternoon at the Massachusetts Home, by members of the ladies board . . .

SOCIETY NOTES

Infant Saviour Guild's Busy Week

Last minute plans for a supper dance Friday evening and many parties in aid of the bazaar fund and a diversified radio program at tomorrow's meeting, combine to make this week one of the most active on the calendar for Guild of Infant Saviour members.

Mrs. William J. Kennedy has arranged a radio forum for tomorrow's meeting in the foyer of the Copley-Plaza. Among her group of speakers will be Rev. Robert Barry, director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau, Edward Farrington, secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, James Powers, Gretchen McMullen, Elliot Norton, and Mary Winn Bullock who'll discuss "Personality of Voice."

Musical program will be furnished by Teresa Murray Rennison and Rita O'Donoghue soprano.

Serving on the reception committee are Mrs. Harry P. Cahill, Mrs. Thomas Carens, Mrs. Frank D. Comerford, Mrs. Alexander Ellis, Mrs. Francis J. Good, Mrs. Frederick A. Keyes and Mrs. James P. O'Hare.

Arrangements are going merrily along for the guild's most gala event. The huge supper dance will be held Friday evening in the Copley-Plaza ballroom. Mrs. William Drummey, chairman of the supper dance, has made some novel plans for the occasion. Mrs. Norbert J. Reilly has charge of the reservation committee.

Miss McLaughlin, a member of the Proparvulis Club, is a graduate of Teachers' College and is now a teacher in the Boston schools. Mr. Lewis was graduated from Boston College in 1934 and was editor-in-chief of Sub Turri, the senior class year book.

Piping Hot Meals Are Ahead

FROM MARTHA LEE'S MONDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

THERE'S change in the air these days. Leaves are falling. The weather's becoming cooler.

Even human beings, creatures of habit that we are, are changing into darker and warmer clothes. We find, too, that there's a keener edge to appetites.

The selection of dishes for breakfast is probably more limited than that of any other meal.

We can think of so many delightful hot dishes to serve for this morning meal. Suppose we review a few of them—liver and bacon, sausage with buckwheat cakes or fried apples, frizzled chipped beef, "ham and," omelet, shirred eggs, calves brains, kidneys, creamed codfish, salt mackerel or our own New England baked beans and codfish balls.

CALVES' BRAINS
(Martha's Favorite Way)

Soak calf's brains in cold water to cover for 1 hour. Remove membrane. Fry slowly in butter until firmly set and browned. This will require at least 30 minutes. Season well with salt and pepper. Serve plain or with browned butter and caper sauce. The perfect accompaniment is buttered and toasted hard rolls.

CALF'S BRAINS IN BLANKETS

Soak calf's brains in cold water to cover for 1 hour. Place sufficient water to cover brains in a saucepan (do not add brains at this time and add one of the following ingredients:

2 tbsps lemon juice or 1 tbsp vinegar
1 or 2 ribs of celery (leaves and all)
A few sprigs of parsley
1 very small chopped or sliced onion
Salt
A few peppercorns

Bring the water to a boil, drop the brains into it, then lower the fire and simmer for 20 minutes. Remove from stock and place in cold water for 15 minutes. Drain and remove membrane.

Break each set of brains into halves, wrap with a piece of bacon and place in a shallow baking dish with a bit of the stock used for cooking. Cook in an oven of 375 degrees F. for about 10 minutes. Then add additional stock thickened with a tablespoon or two of flour. Baste frequently while cooking and cook until bacon is browned. Add a bit of sherry or lemon juice the last 2 or 3 minutes of cooking.

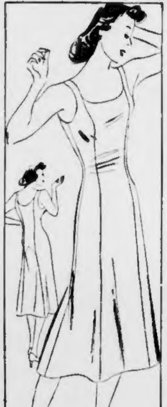
Pattern

Dainty Princess Slip



By MARIAN MARTIN

Sleek comfort's stitched between the very seams of this dainty six-gore princess slip—a pattern that's dedicated to perfect "fit" and easy making!

Be assured that your slim winter frocks will look their best when they are worn over a well-moulded foundation so easily achieved with Pattern 9332. And trust wise Marian Martin to give you such clever features as a shadow-proof panel, built-up shoulders, and trim, straight seams that a "beginner" will find easy to stitch up in no time at all!

You'll like fashion's newest idea, too, of wearing a dark-hued slip 'neath your winter frocks, so why not stitch up several versions of this pattern in synthetic or satin? Complete diagrammed Marian Martin sew chart included.

Pattern 9332 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards 39-inch fabric.

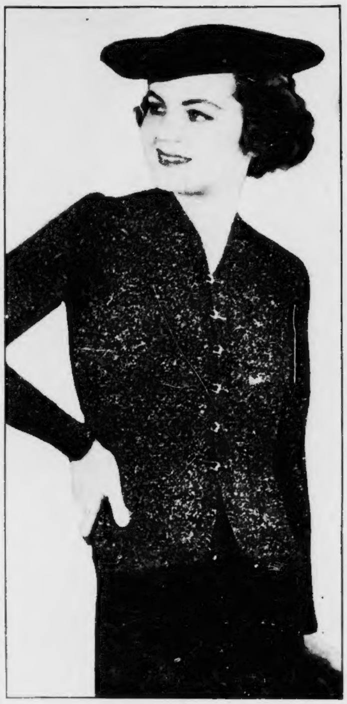
Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

Get on the bright side of fashion! Send for the new winter Marian Martin Pattern Book—just full of all the latest style news you want to know!

See the thrilling gift suggestions, accessory news, fabric tips! Price of book 15 cents. Price of pattern and pattern 15 cents. Book and pattern together 25 cents.

Send your order to Boston Evening American Pattern Department, 232 West 18th street, New York, N. Y.

Glittering Knit



GET THE most drama out of cocktail time. It's your cue to glitter as never before, and five o'clock sounds the starting signal. Because knits have a superb figure-molding and emphasizing quality, turning them into metallics makes one of the most effective cocktail-time costumes imaginable. All you do is knit a fine, angel-crepe yarn with one strand of a brand new gold metal thread. It is a newly-processed thread which is smooth and guaranteed not to tarnish. To climax its successful debut among knitters, this cocktail suit was designed especially for it. A nonchalant cardigan is the first, triumphant pattern. Its neckline may be filled in or not. And notice the trick fasteners. If you wish to have knitting directions, write Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, and inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Leads From Tenaces

West made his normal opening, the spade King. East played the deuce, and declarer unhesitatingly followed with the seven. On the half-baked analysis that the one way to save game was to find East with the spade Ace, so that he might come through the diamond King, which West arbitrarily "placed" in declarer's hand, West continued with a spade.

Declarer gobbled up this trick, and ruffed his third spade in dummy, then gaily discarded three losing diamonds on the Ace, King, Queen of clubs.

Apparently West, in continuing with a spade lead, must have thought his partner an idiot. Had East held the spade Ace it is inconceivable that he would have failed to overtake and return a diamond to dummy's weakness.

Certainly he would have done this rather than play the discouraging deuce on West's King. Faced with a solid club suit, West easily should have seen that the only hope of defeating the contract was to cash diamond tricks before surrendering the lead.

As between placing East with a card which he had said in clearest terms that he did not hold and leading away from a tenace, surely West's choice was not difficult.

Let Hobby Prolong Youth

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHAT is the hobby you'd really take up if you had time and opportunity?

Whatever it is, don't put it aside with a pang of self-pity.

Go after it, even if you can only capture it in diluted form, for a hobby is a short cut to happiness, and, according to psychiatrists, it's a great preserver of youth.

About 50 years ago, the eminent Boston divine, Dr. Edward Everett Hale, author of "Man Without a Country," wrote that "everyone should have a vocation and an avocation—a casual or transient occupation, a diversion."

The only requisite for the hobby is that it must be healthful. If your hobby happens to be cocktail parties, gambling or wild times, better pass up those hobbies quickly.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS

When the cares of state are burdensome, President Roosevelt anticipates relaxation in his stamp collection.

Lindbergh turns to scientific pursuits; his work with Dr. Alexis Carrel has already begun to bear fruit.

Nothing like a pair of oars to keep down your weight, thinks Maria Jeritza, the opera singer.

But you probably will write me "mad" letters and say that these men and women have incomes that make fads and avocations possible.

My advice to you is to budget your time as well as your money. Arrange things so that you can take an occasional hour off to pursue a fad or two.

If your hobby is gardening and you live in a flat don't despise the cheering window box. Begonias, primroses and geraniums bloom beautifully.

A handful of pebbles and a bowl will insure you lovely narcissus, the "paper-white" variety. With a little more care, hyacinths will give you lovely bits of color in your living room.

DON'T STAY HOME!

If you've always wanted to travel, and crossing oceans and continents is beyond your speed, join a travel club at the "Y" or some similar institution.

Perhaps even better, get together a group of friends, select your travel books from the public library, and begin.

If you enjoy walking, get up a walking club and explore interesting places near your home town.

The thing that makes women peevish, homely and wrinkled is sticking off by themselves and dwelling on their troubles.

If a fad or a near-fad will make them forget, for even an hour, IT'S A BEAUTIFIER.

HOW OFFICERS KEEP IN TRAINING

By IDA JEAN KAIN

WHAT is generally conceded to be the world's worst traffic jam occurred recently in midtown New York during the day and night parade of the Legionnaires.

Anybody who got wedged into the solid crowds [illegible] Fifth avenue and Times square could only marvel at the unobtrusive speed with which the snarl was unravelled and traffic set to running smoothly.

It is obvious [illegible] very high order [illegible] development of [illegible] endurance [illegible] training [illegible] until [illegible] emy. As a matter of fact, some of this year's crop of rookies are football players. But if they were not athletes on their entry into the academy, they will be by the time they take up their duties on the force. Their three months schooling consists of six hours training every day.

Three hours are spent in the classroom and three under the aegis of twelve physical instructors, who put them through exercises and drills patterned after those used at West Point and Annapolis.

The public occasionally gets a glimpse of the thoroughness of this training at a Madison Square Garden show. The baton drill to music is a precise demonstration of the recruit's alert mental and physical co-ordination.

CHAPTER 445

If Dicky were not a most skilful driver, I think our car would have collided with another cutting across our path.

He escaped hitting the other car only by a hair's breadth and an amazing exhibition of adroitness.

For the love of Abraham and the rest of the patriarchs," he exclaimed.

"I know, Dicky," I said contritely but with lively apprehension for the effect upon him of the revelation I meant to make to him as soon as he calmed down a bit.

I was in for it, I told myself, and braced my nerves accordingly for Dicky's next verbal onslaught which was not long in coming.

"What do you mean anyway by that spiel?" he asked a minute later. "What have you been up to that you think I'll be sore at?"

"It's a long story, Dicky," I said resolutely. "But I must tell it to you right way, before I go on any further with this scheme to help the Brixtons. Where is the nearest place where we can talk undisturbed for about half an hour?"

"We're both dead tired," he went on, "and we have all that drive before us. Yet you talk calmly of stopping for half an hour while I listen to you rave about some fancied dereliction of yours. What have you been doing, encouraging Jerry Ticer to forget the Sag Harbor girls?"

"No, Jerry is safe from my designs," I said, trying to smile.

Dickey literally jerked the car to the side of the road and stopped it, and as I almost bounced from my seat, he gave an ugly laugh.

'Why I Should Be Elected'—Foley

Mayoral Candidate Cites Honesty, Long Experience, Many Kindly Acts

This is the last of five articles on "Why I Should Be Elected," written especially for the Boston Evening American by the leading mayoralty candidates. Mr. Tobin's article appeared Wednesday, Mr. Curley's Thursday, Mr. Santosuosso's Friday and Mr. Nichols' on Saturday. Mr. Foley's is printed today, that having been the order of the ballot draw.

By WILLIAM J. FOLEY

The hysteria of the present mayoralty campaign is nearly over.

The claims and promises of the rival candidates are being weighed in the balance.

The vast majority of the voters of the city who cannot be stampeded by hysterical shouts of bitter partisans or their puerile slogans will go to the polls determined that the city shall not fall back into the hands of reckless spenders or be turned over to the keeping of a man utterly lacking in seasoned judgment and administrative experience.

GIVES TWO REASONS

I believe I should be elected mayor and I am confident I shall be, for two reasons:

The imperative need of the city for a radical change in the conduct of municipal affairs.

My personal qualifications for the office.

Extravagant promises are the [illegible] unscrupulous politicians [illegible] their attempt to buy [illegible] office. Too often in the [illegible] people have accepted these promises as genuine only to find [illegible] that they have been duped.

I make no extravagant promises.

I have brought forward in this campaign the one issue of any importance. That is the candidates' qualifications for holding the office, and [illegible].

I [illegible] to be all things [illegible]

ACCEPTS GAGE OF BATTLE

[illegible] set up [illegible] against another [illegible] favors at [illegible]

[illegible] I must accept the ga[illegible] I [illegible] to show why I deserve the suffrage of the [illegible] than another.

[illegible] has been a false issue raised which has to do with the age of a candidate.

One candidate claims the support of the voters because he is old and experienced.

Another because he is young and inexperienced.

If age is to be a factor then I am the ideal candidate. I stand [illegible] between the aged [illegible] and the [illegible] the immature and inex[illegible]

NONE OF THEIR FAULTS

It is amazing [illegible] appeared [illegible] that the voters of the city have been asked to vote for a young man whose brief political career has been marked by incompetence and [illegible].

Taking all the candidates together I assert that I possess all the good qualities to be found in them collectively and none of their faults.

The mayor of Boston should be first and foremost a man of unquestioned [illegible]

[illegible]

HONESTY NEVER QUESTIONED

As to the first qualification I offer my 30 years' record for personal honesty and my 22 years of political life during which my honesty and integrity as a public servant have never been questioned even by my enemies.

Even one of the so-called leaders of the Republican party [illegible] Good Government [illegible] stated [illegible] that I was an [illegible] and conducted my [illegible] office in an honest manner.

[illegible] that I am [illegible] spectacular figure.

I take [illegible] I have never [illegible] for [illegible] in a manner designed to make me a headline topic for the newspapers.

I carried on my offices with the dignity that [illegible] a public servant in a civilized community.

As to my fitness, my capability to hold the office of mayor, I offer my record of 11 years as administrator of one of the most important offices in the county, that of district attorney.

It is hard to make a spectacular demonstration of the fact that I have been a capable administrator by citing the manner in which I have conducted the office.

But let me point out this important fact! There has never been a scandal attached to my office. The administration of justice has been carried on in a manner that was dignified.

I remind the voters that had I failed as an administrator not a newspaper in the city but would have [illegible] me long since.

If the voters wish to know if I sympathize with the problems of the needy, the sick, the unfortunate, I call as witnesses the thousands of youths I have turned from lives of crime into the paths of right living.

ASK THE PARENTS

I call as witnesses the hundreds of mothers whose hearts I have saved from breaking [illegible] attitude toward their wayward children.

I call as witnesses the fathers of the city who can still hold their heads high in pride because as District Attorney I refused for the sake of a newspaper headline to send a boy or girl to jail for a single offense against the social order.

With the vicious criminal I have never compromised. I know when and how to say "No." I can say "No" to those who would [illegible] the city treasury and [illegible] experienced youth I [illegible] come the prey of political sharpers [illegible] contract[illegible]

To sum up the reasons why I should be elected mayor [illegible] say this:

I shall give an honest [illegible]

By

Robert E. Rogers

I get a little tired of these lists of the limited number of people who "run" the United States, whether they come out in book form or in interviews.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

For instance, the other day there was published a book entitled "America's Sixty Families" by one Ferdinand Lundberg, formerly a Wall Street financial writer who asserts that the United States is "owned and dominated" today by a hierarchy of its sixty richest families, buttressed by no more than ninety families of less wealth.

I crave to know how the author arrived by his figures, "sixty and ninety," and what he means, anyway, by saying that sixty families "own" the United States. It sounds to me rather like nonsense.

I remember when a few years ago the former Ambassador Gerard emitted a list of fifty - I believe it was—of the people who "ruled" the United States. It made a lot of talk and a lot of disagreement without getting anywhere.

I think it was before I began writing for the American but I seem to remember being commissioned by another paper to do an alternative list of the Americans who really mattered, in education, art, literature, philanthropy and so forth quite apart from their financial or political standing.

That list had its humors. I remember getting a long letter, written more in sorrow than in anger, from a gentleman whose name had been omitted. He was a very prominent New York rabbi, famous for his ability to make the front pages, who detailed to me the many reasons why he should be on the list and queried "how come" he was not on the list

List for List; Sinclair Sends Out Literature

A certain respect for another man's work dating from my earlier days, impelled me to put Upton Sinclair on the list. The result of that simple gesture is that I have been on his mailing list ever since and have received a raft of unexpected literary material.

But this book purports to be something more than an ex-ambassador's off-hand opinion. The author of the book mentioned above (the Vanguard Press speaking ex-cathedra, recites as follows:

> "These families (the sixty) are the living center of the industrial oligarchy which dominates the United States, functioning discreetly under a de jure democratic government behind which a de facto government absolutist and plutocratic in its lineaments (sic), has taken form since the Civil War. This de facto government is actually the government of the United States—informal, invisible, shadowy. It is the government of money in a dollar democracy."

Which sounds to me somewhat like what the boys of my generation used to call "bush-wah." In other words soap-box talk.

It really is not as simple as all that. Possibly the author could have made out a case, if he had written under the conditions of the Harding—Coolidge—Hoover administration, though even that involves a considerable simplification.

Ownership Statement Evokes Horse Laugh

But to reiterate that old chestnut—more or less a restatement of that other hoary and untrue piece of propaganda, that two per cent of the American people own 75 or 80 or 90 per cent of the wealth and thereby control our nation—under present conditions is to evoke a horse laugh from the very people most concerned.

They may have the money. It is perfectly possible. But so far as being able to use it masterfully under the present Administration is another thing altogether.

If there is one thing that is obvious today, it is that possession of wealth does not mean the same thing as exercising control. The Administration and the Congress are seeing to that. Wealth cannot even find profitable opportunities for investment nowadays, let alone controlling industry to suit itself. As for controlling even our de jure democratic government, it is to laugh.

I take it for granted that the book is written in the present tense. It strikes me as being published anywhere from 10 years to a generation too late.

The days the author is talking about are gone forever. Even great wealth is on the defensive. I have only a shrewd guess as to who rules the United States today, but it certainly isn't the rich.

'ALCATRAZ ISLAND'

By GEORGE LAIT

Novelized from the Crane Wilbur story, a Cosmopolitan production, soon to be shown in Boston

Chapter One — 'Gat' Brower, U. S. Enemy No. 1, Winks At Court Procedure

By GEORGE LAIT

Far out in San Francisco Bay, within sight of the Golden Gate and the longest bridge in the world, stands "The Rock," the few acres of Alcatraz Island known to lawless and law-abiding alike as the "American Devil's Island."

Most fearsome and modern of the world's prisons, Alcatraz is the "dark closet" into which Uncle Sam locks his incorrigibles and recalcitrant prisoners who turned out to be too much for Leavenworth, McNeil's Island, Atlanta and the other federal penal institutions.

"Gat" Brower was not the kind of man to worry much about the threat of a two-bit hoodlum. Wasn't he "Public Enemy No. 1" to every newspaper in the nation? Wasn't he the acknowledged "big shot"? In the Cosmopolitan Production, "Alcatraz Island," John Litel (left) plays "Gat" Brower and Ann Sheridan (right), Flo Allen, the Broadway-born and worldly-wise blonde who enjoyed the racket czar's friendship and confidence.

It is at Alcatraz that every prisoner is subjected several times a day to the piercing eye of concealed X-ray machines searching for bits of metal which might be concealed not only in his clothing but in his body cavities as well.

It is at Alcatraz that ever-ready containers of tear gas are deployed, prepared to flood the island with a choking miasma should the tough babies get tough.

But the great "devil" of this "Devil's Island" is the silence rigidly enforced upon the men who, until slapped by the heavy hand of Federal law, were the loudest of American criminals.

A MUTE PURGATORY

Absolute silence is forced upon the few hundred prisoners confined there—a silence broken only by the muffled popping of rifles, pistols and machine-guns as the guards go through the weekly hour of target practice required of every "screw."

They shoot, not only at stationary targets but at glass containers tossed onto the choppy waters of Frisco Bay, the containers, round and somewhat the shape and size of a human head, bobbing in the water in simulation of a swimming man.

Al Capone, Harvey Bailey, "Doc" Barker, Alvin Karpis, George "Machine-Gun" Kelly, Harry Campbell and others who for a time basked in the tarnished glory of the title of "Public Enemy No. 1," dot Alcatraz.

But their titles, their underworld nicknames, their toughness—all have been dissipated.

They now are numbers and at Alcatraz there is only ONE "No. 1 guy"—and he's the "Old Guy With the Whiskers," Uncle Sam.

Capone, who won the terrifying title of "Scarface Al," is now meek No. [illegible], bad Harvey Bailey, man of many aliases and tough as they come, is now a model prisoner—he'd better be or else—known only as No. 139.

So, too, with the others.

PAID WITH HIS LIFE

Many—in fact all—the "numbers" on "The Rock" have thought of escape. Little else can occupy the minds of aggressive men shut out from the world by impenetrable walls and shut off from each other by walls of silence.

But ONLY ONE—"Dutch" Bowers—ever tried to put into action his urge for escape.

There wasn't much left of "Dutch" when the guards were through with him.

The prison surgeon found more than a dozen machine-gun bullets in his battered body when Alcatraz's first and only attempted break got past the barbed-wire cut-off.

* * *

"Dizzy Izzy" Berkowitz crouched nervously behind the wheel of a large black sedan which tomorrow's newspapers were to describe as "a high-powered car."

The motor was idling, and frequently the fidgety little hoodlum stepped on the accelerator and gently raced the engine to assure himself that the motor hadn't died.

Now and again he glanced into the entrance of the large building before which he had parked.

Then his glance shot to the intersection a hundred feet ahead, where a perspiring traffic officer, tooting his whistle at intervals, guided teeming masses of vehicles and pedestrians in an orderly parade back and forth.

A bedraggled panhandler mooched up to the side of the hoodlum's car, but before he could mouth his request for a-nickel-for-a-cupa-coffee, a crash of gunfire burst from within the entrance of the office building.

"STEP ON IT, IZ"

A woman screamed and a welter of panic-stricken office workers poured forth into the street.

Behind them, seemingly in no particular hurry, emerged a hatless, hard-faced young man, a smoking sub-machine-gun clutched menacingly in his hands.

With a quick glance around for possible danger, "Butch" Carroll slipped into the seat beside "Dizzy Izzy," holding his deadly "tommy gun" in position for instant use.

"Step on it, Iz," he growled. "Job's done."

With a screeching of tires the heavy black car careered [illegible] the stream of traffic.

Other drivers swerved to avoid a [illegible] and pedestrians raced pell mell out of the path of the [illegible].

The getaway took but a few seconds, and so far had proceeded without a hitch.

But as the mobsters' automobile gained momentum, the traffic officer stepped before it, blowing shrilly on his whistle as he held up one hand in a command to halt.

His other hand, had Izzy and Butch been sufficiently observant to note, was fumbling to withdraw his service pistol from its holster.

"T h—— with 'im," Butch snarled. "Run over the mugg."

He hefted his machine-gun as if preparing to blast the officer out of their path but the car shot swiftly past him, so "Butch" contented himself with a "Bronx cheer" back at him.

WINGED DEATH

A split second later, however, the officer was thumbing the hammer of his revolver as fast as [illegible] sending six [illegible] bullets plowing into the [illegible] of the speeding getaway car. At the fifth shot [illegible] Izzy slumped over the wheel and the car began to swerve [illegible] in the traffic lane.

Only by making a hasty grab at the steering wheel was "Butch" able to get the machine under control.

Muttering curses at this unforeseen calamity, "Butch" swiftly opened the door on the left side of the big sedan and unceremoniously shoved the body of "Dizzy Izzy" out into the street.

Then "Butch" was behind the wheel himself, speeding away.

A crowd quickly gathered around the body of the hoodlum and the officer, reloading his gun meanwhile, did what he could to prevent the curious from getting too close.

In a minute a police car, siren screeching, pulled up.

"Got him, huh?" declared the newly-arrived sergeant as he bent down for a good look at the body.

"Yes, sir," reported the traffic officer. "I managed to get this one, but the other guy—he had a 'tommy gun'—got away.

"Big black sedan, license number 3 A 12190."

Panic reigned with the curiosity seekers pushing and shoving, other officers arriving belatedly on the scene. One of the latter forced his way to the sergeant's side and reported

"These guys just knocked off Lew Slade, the gambler, Sarge. He's smeared all over th' lobby of the Commercial building in th' next block. Musta been a hundred slugs in him."

* * *

Ten blocks away, in the offices of the Reworb Trading Company, "Gat" Brower sat at his desk.

His husky bodyguard was holding a lighted match as "Gat" poked several small pieces of paper into the flame and then permitted the scraps to burn to blackened cinders in an ash tray.

"That's that," "Gat" beamed. "Can't go leaving our records around where the income tax snoopers might find 'em, huh Joe?"

The fellow holding the match grinned, in fact he grinned at [illegible].

"Dat's right, chief. We're too smart for 'em."

THE KILLER'S PLEA

[illegible] when the door of Brower's office burst open and "Red" Carroll, accompanied by his brother "Butch", dashed in.

Brower's bodyguard moved as if to step between the newcomers and his boss, but Brower waved him aside.

"'S okay Joe. I know 'em." And then to the newcomers,

"What's the rush, Red?"

"I wanta see you alone, 'Gat'. Can you send your stooge out for a sody? It's important."

With a nod of assent, Brower motioned his bodyguard to wait in the outer office and as soon as he had left, Red started

"Gat, this is my young brother, 'Butch.' Mebbe you've heard of him?"

Brower eyed the sneering young murderer for a moment—

"NO NURSEMAID"

"Yeah. I've heard of him. So what?"

"Well, it's like this, 'Gat,'" Red began excitedly

"Butch is in a jam, see? An' you got plenty of safe spots for him to hide out until he's safe, see? You got places where they'd—"

Brower interrupted:

"What's he so worried about?"

Butch did the answering for that question

"I just knocked off Lew Slade. Done it alone, too, with a hundred chumps lookin' on. Picked 'im off cleaner'n a whistle."

"Slade, hmmm," mused Gat. "How much dough did the Vanning mob pay you for that?"

"Plenty, baby, plenty," the machine-gunner bragged.

"Well, then, let them take care of you now."

"Gat" turned to Red.

"What's the idea of bringing him to me? What am I—nursemaid to the Carroll family? Let Vanning hide out his own killers."

"But I'm workin' in your outfit 'Gat,' ain't I?" argued Red.

"Yeah, but your brother ain't. An' even if he was, I wouldn't lift a hand to protect him. I don't like hired killers, Red, and you know it."

"So you ain't gonna help us out—listen, 'Gat,' you don't know what this means to me. Butch is my kid brother—" [illegible] before Red could argue further, Butch interrupted.

"A swell hunch you had when you brung me here, Red. This 'Gat' Brower ain't nuthin anyways, an' after seein' him I don't think I'd hide out in any of his joints."

Brower smiled but said nothing at this tirade, and the Carrolls walked to the door.

"Butch" turned, and with a sneer in Gat's general direction, stepped out of the office.

But Red hesitated for a moment, his hand on the door knob.

"If anything happens to the kid, 'Gat'—if they pick him up for this rap, look out for yourself. 'Cause if they nail HIM, I'll be lookin' for YOU."

The smile did not leave "Gat" Brower's face as Red stamped out slamming the office door behind him.

* * *

"Gat" Brower was not the kind of a party to worry much over the threat of a two-bit hoodlum.

Wasn't he "Public Enemy No. 1" to every newspaper in the nation?

Wasn't he the acknowledged "big shot"?

But Flo Allen, Broadway born and raised and wise far beyond her 28 years, wasn't so sure. A .45 automatic or a "tommy gun" is no respecter of persons, big shot or otherwise.

AND THE CARROLLS WERE "TOUGH MONKEYS."

"Please be careful, Gat," she pleaded. "Red Carroll is just the kind of a rat to blame you for anything that might happen to that murdering brother of his."

"That's a lot of foolishness, honey," was Gat's viewpoint. "The fellow hasn't got the brains to do any shooting. Except, maybe, shooting off his tongue."

And he chuckled to himself at this little tinge of humor.

"Come on, Flo. I've gotta be in court by two o'clock."

So, with a resigned [illegible] of her pretty blonde head, Flo gathered up her purse [illegible].

* * *

Assistant District Attorney George Drake was about to address [illegible].

"I ask you," he thundered, "gentlemen of the jury, to fearlessly decide whether or not the business interests of this city are to be further preyed upon by 'Gat' Brower and men of his character!"

"Gat" [illegible] walked jauntily down the aisle and took his seat beside his battery of attorneys.

Flo slipped into a place made for her in the spectators' section between "Six Bit" Kelly and "Socks" Regan.

Behind her sat "Red" Carroll.

"The state has proved that this defendant, 'Gat' Brower, is guilty of extortion on nine different counts," the young prosecutor continued.

"Defense counsel has stressed the fact that Brower never appeared personally in these transactions.

"But his lieutenants, his mobsters, his thugs, very ably represented him in a racketeering campaign that has shamed this city before the eyes of the entire civilized world."

"IT'S FIXED OKAY"

Brower turned in his chair and winked facetiously toward Flo.

She smiled a [illegible] and "Gat" noiselessly brought his hands together several times, simulating applause for the vicious castigation he was undergoing in the vigorous summation of Prosecutor Drake.

"Gat" leaned over to one of his attorneys.

"It's fixed okay?"

The attorney nodded.

"Which?" "Gat" inquired.

The lawyer whispered to "Gat",

"Number seven—the guy who looks as if he's sleeping."

"Gat" took a hinge at the jury box. Juror number seven appeared to be dozing. "Gat" smiled.

Drake was almost through with his harangue to the jury. Placing both hands upon the rail of the jury box he concluded

"In this day and age the proper retreat for a robber baron is a stone-walled, steel-barred prison.

"Gentlemen of the jury, I DEMAND—the state DEMANDS—that you send 'Gat' Brower to such an institution."

With that Drake whirled and walked swiftly to his chair at the counsel table. As he sat down Brower leaned over toward the young prosecutor and stage whispered

"You put on a great show, kid. Too bad it's wasted."

Drake replied with a sarcastic "thanks."

Flo turned to "Six Bit" and asked

"What now?"

"Gotta wait for the verdict."

Crime's 'Journey's End'

Alcatraz Island, most feared and modern of the world's prisons, known as "The Rock" to the lawless, rises dark and forbidding from the blue waters of San Francisco Bay. There went Al Capone, Alvin Karpis, George "Machine Gun" Kelley and others of Uncle Sam's incorrigibles. There, too, went Bad "Gat" Brower, the boastful gang czar in the Cosmopolitan Production's film about the "American Devil's Island."

Story About a Wife's Idea To Keep Hubby Working

This is a story about a man who lived in a little New England town. He was well liked by everyone, but somehow he couldn't find a job.

Finally a brass cannon was presented to the town, set up in the park and the man was given a job keeping it polished.

He worked conscientiously at his polishing until, one unfortunate day, he [illegible] to stop for a drink on his way to work. As a result, he got fired. So he went home dejectedly and told his wife about it.

"Never mind, John," said the loyal little woman, "I've got a bit of money laid by and I'll buy you another cannon and set you up in business for yourself."

MEMORY

I cannot see a candle glow
But what I dream of you;
The fragment of a certain song
Brings back the days I knew
When we two shared the happiness
That love alone can bring . . .
I wish my heart would be content
In just remembering.

Scientific Blanket Keeps Even Temperature

Science thinks of everything. There has now been produced a scientific blanket—a blanket to end all other blankets.

It's an electric comforter designed so that, no matter how cold the weather, it's all the covering you will need. You may regulate its temperature before you go to sleep and there's a thermostat connected with it, which makes it stay the same temperature all night, in spite of the change in room temperature.

The comforter comes in colored taffeta, and is guaranteed to be washable.

The 26th annual bazaar of the Florence Crittenton League will be held at the Copley Plaza this Wednesday and Thursday. It's to be an elaborate, gay affair, with a dinner, a fashion show, a tea, raffles, and all manner of booths displaying attractive things which you are supposed to buy.

Wednesday, there will be a fashion show (both afternoon and evening) to be called "Accent of Romance."

This year there's an innovation in the way of a Children's afternoon (on Thursday) with special features for children including "The Vineyard Marionettes."

We hope you'll all buy a ticket—because the entire proceeds go to the girls in the Welcome House and hospital of the League.

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

JOINING the lovely Ginger Rogers, with Don Ameche in there to be co-starred, plus Charles Winninger, is my idea of dial diversion extraordinary as arranged for the "Radio Theater" Hour called "A Free Soul" and due (WNAC) at 9 o'clock this evening.

Cecil B. De Mille, the director of the popular Monday night 60 minutes, is particular proud to have Ginger, Don and Charlie taking part in his dramatic doings and did considerable maneuvering to land them for the "mike" spotlight places they will fill.

Ameche is a striking radio favorite grabbed up by the films as so many radio favorites find can happen. Delirium at Dusk: Harvard Works A Football Miracle

NOT FOR MANY YEARS, POSSIBLY A HUNDRED, has Harvard's football horde experienced such a delirium at dusk as the one when they tumbled out of the Princeton stands and began to dance some half-forgotten snake figures and holler some rusty war-whoops. The 34 to 6 victory over Princeton was not just a football triumph. It was a come-uppance and a jedgment. So, though their knees were creaky from long disuse and their larynxes were withered from long silence, they stamped out peggoty-legged steps and yelled the lining out of their lungs till the stadium janitors despaired of ever locking the place up. What the Harvards lacked in knack they made up in loud noise and by jumping up and down.

AUSTEN LAKE

For many autumns the half hour following Harvard's big games has seen the Crimson crowds disperse quietly without any capers or whoops. Obviously there was nothing to caper and whoop for. The students and their luscious football girls wandered away to forget. The bandsmen slung their horns, packed their piccolos and straggled off in the gloom without a honk or bleat. There was nothing to honk or bleat about. And the souvenir peddlers hugged their trays of feathers and cardboard gauds and called their mournful sunset cries in the hope of selling their leftover stocks. But the Harvards had no use for such rubbish because the winning colors were always Orange, Green, Blue or every tint in the spectrum except Crimson.

Thus, Saturday ended the great football famine and the Harvards glowed in the gloaming while the Princeton side sang its college dirge and stood with heads bared and necks bowed trying to remember when its team had been bounced around so boisterously. It didn't seem possible that the same Harvard players who couldn't block or tackle, or avoid being blocked and tackled against Dartmouth the week before could have performed such an excellent job of football, or so firmly suppress the same Princeton athletes who had wiggled away from Chicago.

* * *

The Perfect Football Play

THIS IS A GAME WHICH WILL REMAIN forever green in the minds of Harvard men as the one in which Harvard shook off the last shackles of indifference and resumed some of its pre-war glory. For there was nothing indifferent about the way Vernon Struck rode the Princeton team on the back of his neck, and you would have to flip back the pages of memory's book to the pictures of George Owen, Eddie Casey and the Horweens to find anything like Struck.

I think of the many things he did so well Saturday, I liked best the figure S which he cut through the left side of the Princeton team at the start of the fourth quarter to score without being tagged by a single Tiger. That would be what Dick Harlow pictures in his imagination as the perfect football play in which, if every man does as he is supposed to do, there is nobody left on the opposing side to restrain the Harvard man who is toting the ball.

So there is your touchdown.

Of course, Harlow expects that his plans will be resisted and interfered with by the sort of teams which Harvard has to meet. But this play worked as Dick had designed it on his workshop blackboard and the Harvard line prepared the way so thoroughly that, it is possible, your Uncle Albert with his arthritic hip could have waddled through the hole and on down the lane to a touchdown. This is not to skim off any of the glory which Struck earned, but the Harvard line was doing such a job of work that his real task seldom began till he reached the outposts behind the Princeton line.

* * *

I HAVE NEVER SEEN A COLLEGE COACH so swept with emotion as Harlow was during the late moments of the game when he summoned his heroes off the field and flung happy arms over their shoulders and helped them into their sheepskin jackets. Such moments are memorable to boys in later life and they will like to recall how old No. 1 gave them a fatherly hug and a proud word right before the 45,000 before sending them, happy and sweat-stained, to take their baths and paint their bruises.

Such happenings make football a significent thing in college life and bring old Joseers trooping back to see succeeding generations relive the thrills which still tingle sweetly in remote corners of their bosoms. So, in its turn, this Harvard group will remember how the late October sun caught the bright colors of the football girls across the way, how the bandsmen blew their souls into their trumpets, how the banners on the rim of the big crater floated gayly and the crowd's sobs and roars came dimly to their ears as the tide of battle swayed this way and that. But mostly they will recapture that paternal pat by Harlow and hear his soft growl saying such endearments as will make music long after the lads have grown thick through the hips, thin in the hair and jiggly about their middles. In their later day if radio common shoots to 400 they will never get a finer kick in the pleasurable portions of their souls.

Harvard Made Its Luck

WHETHER 34 TO 6 REPRESENTS the physical power and technical skill of the two teams is no matter. The score represented the difference on the black score board at the open end of the Stadium after Torbert Macdonald snagged a Princeton pass and outfooted all pursuers for Harvard's final points. Harvard made its breaks by rushing the kickers and passers and capitalizing on blocked kicks, pass interceptions and fumbles. Except for Princeton's lone touchdown march in the second quarter it bottled up Princeton's offense and forced premature development of its deception plays behind the line. And most amazing in this pass-glutted era, it stuck to the hard way and tossed only one aerial all afternoon.

So, Harvard largely made its own luck, won its first blue-banner contest in many years and emerged from its football doghouse. Its cycle of boredom had swung around to indifference toward indifference. So the Crimson horde stayed churning around the Stadium floor, shaking sticks, blowing horns and yelling doggerel poems at the behest of its cheer leaders long after the last Harvard player had ducked into the locker rooms. Electric lights twinkled in the press box coop where newsmen still typed the game's stark, naked drama for late supper editions.

And finally the crowd drifted off toward the railheads where trains were waiting to carry them to New York where they burned out the rest of their delirium in the downtown taverns till the midnight specials pulled out for Boston. Few of them slept, for they were busy giving cheers to make up for the cheers they hadn't given during the interval of the Great Apathy.

Bruised Crimson Warriors Look Ahead to Army Game; Leg Injury Sidelines Allen

'Ivy Day' Spotlight On Old, New Stars

Struck, Macdonald, Boston Sore All Over

By JOE CASHMAN

Harvard's happy football warriors got almost as many bumps and bruises as they scored points in their glorious victory over Princeton.

With the sole exception of Captain Russ Allen, who had to be carried off the field with a sprained leg ligament, the courageous Crimson cohorts appeared to be escaping unscathed on the Palmer Stadium surface but a post-game check-up showed that the majority took more than their share of punishment.

Chief Boston can't bend one leg. Torbert Macdonald has a face that looks as though it had been [illegible] for 15 rounds by Joe Louis.

Vernon "Cyclone" Struck has a throbbing shoulder and though it's a wonder he has any shoulders left at all after all the [illegible] smashing he did.

HARVARD FAVORED

Allen will be on the hospital list indefinitely but [illegible] the others will be able [illegible] when work for the Army game begins [illegible] the West Point [illegible] Stadium on Saturday next.

[illegible] saw them against Yale, they'll be the [illegible] of Harvard's second successive [illegible].

The Crimson of Saturday last would have beaten the Soldiers who faced the Elis almost as [illegible] as it [illegible] the Tigers.

STRUCK GREAT

The Cambridge mentor was delighted over the showing of his [illegible]

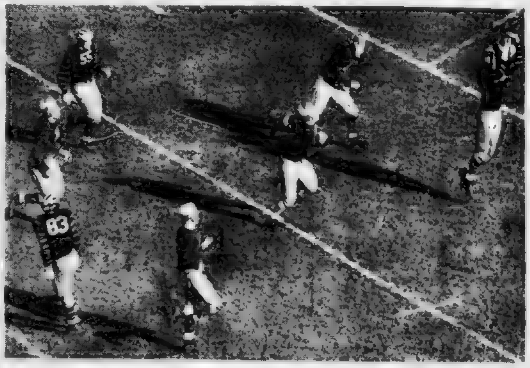
A review of the game shows that the Harvard fullback carried the ball more than 30 times against the Tigers and gained on an average of more than 6 yards a try. Truly a phenomenal showing.

[illegible]

TIGERS OUTCLASSED

[illegible]

Torbert Macdonald of Harvard slices inside Princeton's tackle for 22 yards at Palmer Stadium as interference does sweet cleaning up job. Harvard ran rough-shod over Tigers, winning 34 to 6.



Princeton's lone score. John Vruwink, basketball playing right end for the Tigers, catches pass from Jack White on two-yard line in second period in game with Harvard and scored standing up. Twice he barely missed completing other White heaves.

Clint Frank, Yale's all-America back, stopped by Dartmouth secondary as he tried off tackle slant. Frank was unable to gain on the ground against the Green for the third straight year, but he made up for it in the final seconds of play when he threw game-saving pass to Hessberg. Final score was 9-9.

Bowl Tie Tribute To Dartmouth Courage

Entire Eleven Sick On Field—'Jinx' Still Holds

By BILL GRIMES

For all that they have not been beaten in the Bowl for three years, Dartmouth's Indians [illegible] ing from the evils that befell them just prior to and during Saturday's pulsating conflict, have not been delivered from the Yale jinx.

Under the circumstances surrounding the 21st Dartmouth-Yale game, the Big Green was fortunate to stay up and get a draw.

Yet, but for that climaxing pass from Captain Clint Frank to Al Hessberg, with only two seconds to play, Dartmouth would have knocked the Elis out of the undefeated group.

Few [illegible] the Yale game. Yet it was the truth.

[illegible] the Yale Bowl.

There were eleven sick football players on that trip to New Haven and despite the hot chocolate and hot milk which was prescribed, they were still ailing, not to mention weakened, when they took the field Saturday afternoon.

STOP FRANK AGAIN

After being with the players for more than six hours on Friday I confess I didn't hold out much hope for a victory over the powerful, tricky, well conditioned Elis.

On the other hand Coach Earl Blaik who realized the extent of the seriousness of the players' condition better than [illegible] Academy.

[illegible]

"It's just a question of stamina. I'm confident they have the 'guts' to carry them through."

Dartmouth may have been represented by better balanced football [illegible]

FRANK ENTIRE OFFENSE

Frank is recognized as [illegible] great advantage against Dartmouth. Prior to last Saturday Dartmouth had twice stopped Frank. And they repeated thereby defeating the old law of averages.

PLENTY OF BREAKS

[illegible]

The Yale captain rushed 22 times for a net gain of 16 yards. It speaks volumes for the alertness and defensive ability of any team that holds Frank to 7⁄3 of a yard per rush. That's just what Dartmouth did.

Try Luck With Gun at Sox Owner's Plantation—Lazzeri to Pilot Cubs Year After Next

By the Associated Press

Henry Armstrong may never defend the featherweight title he won from Petey Sarron the other night . . . Henry has a lot more trouble making the weight than most of you suspect . . . He'll "trade" on the championship in a few over the weight bouts, then abdicate (as Barney Ross did) and go after the lightweights . . . If big Hank Greenberg knows what he is talking about, Mickey Cochrane will never catch another major league game . . . Attention, Florida: You'll see War Admiral at Hialeah this winter . . . George Bannon, official timekeeper at New York fights as long as anybody can remember, is in a hospital with pneumonia.

Maxie Rosenbloom is planning a European tour and just to make the picture complete his booking agent is a [illegible] screen comedian . . . This department had a tough day picking football winners Saturday . . . Score was: 10 won, 7 lost, 3 tied . . . Teams which "done us wrong" in a big way were Auburn, Detroit, Minnesota, Illinois and North Carolina . . . But we're still taking bows for being one of the two or three guys who picked Georgia Tech to beat Vandy . . . And if you want another tip, Tennessee may get its ears pinned back by Auburn Saturday . . . Stranger things are happening every week.

Damon Runyon

Ed Barrow, general manager of the Yanks and Damon Runyon the author, are off for a hunting trip to Tom Yawkey's South Carolina ranch . . . Benny Leonard has a likely looking lightweight in "Irish Eddie" Dunn, of Scranton, Pa. . . . John Montague, the golf mystery man stole the show at the Cotton Club (N. Y.) last night . . . Along State street in Chicago they're laying odds Tony Lazzeri will pilot the Cubs in 1939 . . . Believe it or not but the dressing room of the Green Bay Packers is plastered with pep talks . . . Frank G. Menke, the sports writer, is making a hit with his Friday night broadcasts.

Those who have been accusing Minnesota of world wide recruiting may be interested to know that eight of the regular starters are natives of St. Paul and Minneapolis and that the other three come from Minnesota towns within a 100 mile radius of Minneapolis . . . Johnny Gilbert, the jockey who bet $1000 on Petey Sarron, felt so low Saturday he didn't show up at Empire City and was fined $500 for not keeping his appointments . . . Charlie Dressen will have the signals of every Southern Association club after his first trip around the circuit.

Coaches needing a real kicker might look over Bruno Koropka of Manual Training High School at Denver . . . All he did was boot one 132 yards . . . Standing two yards behind his goal line, he kicked one 77 yards on the fly . . . The ball hit the other side's 25 yard line, took a tremendous hop and bounced over the goal line, rolled through the end zone and finally was halted by a flag pole 30 yards behind the goal line . . . The kid is a nifty first sacker and has been offered contracts by Detroit and Cleveland . . . (Tip: Southern California is his favorite college) . . . No change in Rose Bowl choices over the week end . . . They're still Alabama and California.

Many of them say that the Eagle mentor has done very little about building up a suitable offense and has resorted to nothing but off tackle smashes that once gained him nation wide fame.

The same followers claim these off tackle smashes have put more Eagles on the injured list than anything else.

They also maintain that the defense against aerial attacks is but little improved over last year and that little has been done to advance a passing attack.

Saturday was the most unusual of the season as pre-game favorites came through for the first time this season in exceptional form . . . upsets were so few that there is hardly need for mentioning . . . probably the outstanding was the Newburyport victory over Haverhill . . . though Haverhill, state title winner last season, was not rated with the leaders the Jim Mansfield eleven had shown some promise.

Bob Page again led the Newburyport attack as he passed his team to victory in the last few minutes of play . . . this marked Page's second victory of the week as he was the spearhead in the defeat handed Saugus high.

Saturday's Football Stars

By The Associated Press

Clint Frank and Gil Humphrey, Yale—Helped score seven points in last three seconds of play, Frank on two passes to mates for 63 yards for touchdown, and Humphrey with place kick for goal, to tie Dartmouth.

Bill Tranavitch, Rutgers—Tallied 28 points to pace Scarlet in triumph over Lehigh.

Vernon Struck, Harvard—Gained more than 200 yards from scrimmage and scored three touchdowns in rout of Princeton.

Bill Jordan, Georgia Tech—Made difficult catch of forward pass to give Engineers first score in surprise win over Vanderbilt.

Andy Puplis, Notre Dame—Scored touchdown and kicked goal which gave Irish triumph over Minnesota.

Jack Dodd, Nebraska—Ran 65 yards after grabbing shovel pass for only touchdown in defeat of Indiana in first 17 seconds of play.

Ernie Lain, Rice—Tossed two touchdown passes to beat hitherto unbeaten Auburn eleven.

Bill Patterson, Baylor—Threw aerials for 18 and 23 yards to set up game's only touchdown as Bears downed T. C. U.

Vic Bottari, California — Scored twice, once on 23-yard dash, as Bears humbled University of California at Los Angeles.

Byron White, Colorado — Tallied three touchdowns in one period, two on long runs, in victory over Colorado Mines.

Milton Popovich, Montana—Made two touchdowns to help beat Montana State in traditional contest.

All-America Bouts At Arena Tonight | Action Expected Robert's Case

By JACK CONWAY

ALL-AMERICA boxing stars will start blazing punches at each other at the Arena tonight at the opening of the most important amateur ring tournament ever arranged for New England.

Mr. Boston

A brilliant array of simon pure punch flingers will sweep into action tonight in the first of the New England trials of the Hearst All-America bouts. The youngsters who come through the New England tournament as winners will later clash with boxers from other parts of the East.

Then there will be the grand nationals which will bring together the cream of the amateur boxers from the East, Middle West, South and Pacific Coast.

Boston and New England boxers may be relied upon to gain new glory for themselves in this sensational tournament. A year ago the New England team made a brilliant showing in the All-Eastern finals. They had a boxer in the final match in each class.

Tom Kanaly of the Irish American A. C. will start weighing in the boxers who will compete tonight at 6 p. m. At 7:30 p. m. the first pair o simon pure mitt flingers will be tossing punches at each other in the Arena ring. There will then be terrific action until midnight.

Amateur boxing has experienced a tremendous boom during the past three years. A year ago 5000 persons were unable to gain admittance to the New England finals of the Hearst All-America tourney.

This great interest in amateur boxing is due to the fact there is an abundance of first class talent while the various boxers always give their best when in the ring.

With boxing on the upgrade everywhere the boys who make good in the All-America matches will later receive an opportunity to gain fame in the professional ring. Salvatore Bartolo, Abe Denner, George Martin, Roy Kelley and Yancy Henry, graduates of the Hearst All-America bouts of a year ago, have already won their spurs in professional bouts.

I'll be parked against the ring when the punches begin to fly at the Arena tonight.

If you seek fierce ring action I would suggest that you drop in at the Arena tonight and take a peek at the All-America candidates.

Wrestling Association Should Act

IF THE AMERICAN Wrestling Association is going to be anything other than an ordinary organization it should take drastic action against Yvon Robert, world's champion, who has once more run out of a title bout with Dazzler Clark of Scotland.

Robert signed to meet Clark in a bout at Fenway Park last August and then packed his grips and went to his home in Montreal. His [illegible] action deprived Clark of an opportunity to win the championship and [illegible] Paul Bowser a heavy financial loss.

More recently Bowser signed Robert for a Boston match. The promoter reserved the right to name Yvon's opponent. When Bowser picked Clark, Robert announced he would not go through with the match.

Bowser has engaged the Garden for the night of November 1 and is entitled to redress in the courts if Robert does not go through with the Clark bout.

Clark has taken two moves. He has protested to the American Wrestling Association and has also threatened to sue Robert in the courts in Montreal for $1,000,000.

Clark is of the opinion the world's title would be worth $1,000,000 to him. As champion, he would draw record gates in Scotland, England, Canada and Australia in addition to the big purses he would receive in this country.

Strangler Lewis, Jim Londos and Gus Sonnenberg each proved the world's heavyweight wrestling championship was a million-dollar asset. I do not believe Clark has overestimated the value of the title.

Clark should not be compelled to [illegible] justice. The American Wrestling Association sets itself up as the last word in wrestling. If it were to ban the champion from wrestling at all clubs under its jurisdiction, Robert would have to meet Clark or play the small towns.

[illegible] to act against Robert in the present controversy will take from the American Wrestling Association its standing with the public.

Robert and other sports champions have been permitted to get away with too much dictation to the detriment of sport and to the public. Let's have some action, gentlemen of the American Wrestling Association.

Random Shots at Target

HENRY Armstrong should retain the world's featherweight championship for several years ... There does not appear to be a boxer in sight who can defeat the California sensation ... By knocking out Petey Sarron, Armstrong proved he is a great puncher as well as a brilliant boxer ... It was the first time Sarron was ever knocked to his knees by an opponent.

Al McCoy and Bill Brennan have gone to Montreal to make their peace with the Montreal Boxing Commission ... McCoy will be reinstated as soon as he agrees to go through with his bout with Andre Lenglet ... A heel injury made it necessary for McCoy to withdraw from this match early in the month.

Wojciechowicz, Fordham Center, Hits Dizzy Pace

Cross Between Master Chess Player and Jungle Brute

By LEWIS BURTON

Officer, that man is in again!

Alex Wojciechowicz, the standout Fordham lineman of 1936, started his home-stretch drive for national acclaim last Saturday.

A year ago, "Wojie" ran one-two-three for center on every consequential "all" team in the country, and currently he is hitting a dizzier pace.

Curley Grieve, my eminent San Francisco colleague on the All-United States board of football, has already granted Bob Herwig of California something like full title to the center post on the 1937 honor team.

But he might reconsider before making it final. "Wojie" has attained absolute perfection. If Herwig is better, that's something.

Wojciechowicz, a 193-pound senior from South River, N. J., played the greatest game of his life against North Carolina on Saturday. A stampeding bull elephant on defense and a vicious scythe on attack, he was prominent in 90 per cent of the plays.

Unsparing of his strength, he lost 16 pounds in the 80-degree heat but his performance never suffered. He made most of the tackles, intercepted a forward pass, and mowed them down when his side had the ball.

WYSOCKI END MARVEL

Against Pittsburgh, Texas Christian and now North Carolina he has given three such grand exhibitions that there can be no doubt he is better than last fall. You can see what that means.

His consistency is no accident. Wojie is a foolproof play diagnostician and he performs like a cross between a chess-master and a brute.

Another lineman whose consistency has at last wiped away all doubt is John Wysocki, 6-foot-1, 185-pound Villanova end.

Wysocki is a marvel on defense, a great pass-receiver, a ball carrier on end around plays, and he kicks off and boots after touchdown.

He is the chief single reason that Villanova is still undefeated. Against Detroit on Saturday, for instance, he blocked a kick and opened the way to the only touchdown.

Wysocki scored three touchdowns against Manhattan College several weeks ago. Chick Meehan, the Manhattan coach, has followed his performance all season and regards Wysocki as a super-opportunist. Wysocki, he contends, has that Midas touch.

"Everything he touches turns to gold," Meehan said today. "Other teams even fumble his kickoffs. If he were at Yale and did only half the things he has done this season, they would be saying he is greater than Larry Kelley."

STRUCK TO FORE

A halfback rightfully belonging to the southwest survey cast his spell on eastern critics last Friday night. He is Morris White, Tulsa University ball-carrier, who impressed as one of the country's finest broken field runners when his team beat George Washington at the Capital.

Brud Holland, big Cornell Negro, played another great game at end, completely disrupting the Columbia attack and hurrying Sid Luckman's passes to such extent that not one scored.

Luckman's record of completions continued good, however. He has connected with 58 of 111 for 744 yards in five games.

Vernon Struck of Harvard, rolling up 229 yards in 37 carries against Princeton, averaged 6 yards per play. He appears to be the most effective ground gainer from the fullback position in the east. His designation is somewhat complicated by the fact that he plays right halfback on defense.

Struck is what makes Harvard go. Dick Harlow terms him his "magnificent faker." Struck carries through his fake all the way when he doesn't keep the ball, sometimes gaining 15 yards with nothing in his hand. It makes him all the more a threat.

Harvard will have an opportunity to unloose Struck's spin bucks against Army next Saturday. Riding high after its first major victory since 1935, the Crimson will be the favorite.

The Cadet line was none too strong against Yale and if it has not improved, Struck will be able to make huge dents in it.

LAFAYETTE UNDERDOG

With the exception of Lafayette and Temple, the undefeated teams hereabouts will be reasonably strong choices to keep their records clean.

Yale is a distinct choice over Brown, Dartmouth over Princeton, Fordham over Purdue, Holy Cross over Colgate, and Villanova over Marquette.

Lafayette, undefeated, untied and unscored upon, runs into trouble of a sort against Rutgers, and Temple will have its hands full with a sterling Michigan State squad.

When and if Lafayette is defeated, there will not be a major team in the East that has won all its games.

My selections for next Saturday's eastern games, giving scores as gauge of the probable difference between teams, are as follows:

Yale 14, Brown 0.
Dartmouth 21, Princeton 0.
Rutgers 13, Lafayette 0.
Fordham 14, Purdue 0.
Harvard 14, Army 6.
Navy 18, Columbia 7.
Detroit 13, Manhattan 7.
Villanova 14, Marquette 0.
Michigan State 14, Temple 7.
N. Y. U. 46, Lehigh 0.
Holy Cross 20, Colgate 7.
Syracuse 19, Western Reserve 0.
Pennsylvania 14, Penn State 0.
Duquesne 13, Carnegie Tech 0.

Tranavitch Tops Scorers With 78 Points

By the Associated Press

By adding 26 points to his previous total over the week-end, B. Tranavitch of Norwood, sophomore halfback of Rutgers football machine, was at the head of the national individual scoring parade today.

Tranavitch ran wild against luckless Lehigh Saturday, scored four touchdowns and four extra points, boosted his season scoring total to 78 points and took the national lead away from Andy Farkas of Detroit.

Farkas, shut out of the scoring column against Villanova, was cut from the top of the Mid-Western "independent" group as Wayne Shelley of Augustana (S. D.) College added a touchdown to his previous total to take the sectional lead with 68 points, two more than "Anvil Andy."

Of the various conferences the top figure was the 62 points tallied by Byron (Buzz) White, Colorado quarterback, in the Rocky Mountain Conference. He scored three touchdowns and three extra points Saturday.

Tranavitch, who took the Eastern sectional lead away from Bob Glynn, Alfred halfback, was only one of several new scoring leaders.

Vic Bottari, hard-hitting California back, took over the leadership of the Pacific Coast with 54 points, displacing Ambrose Schindler of Southern California.

Joe Kilgrow, Southeastern Conference pace maker with 41 points, went ahead of Kentucky's Bob Davis, and Pug Manders of Drake tied with Pete Rivers of the Oklahoma Aggies with 38 points for the Missouri Valley leadership.

Corby Davis of Indiana held his Big Ten lead with 30 points, and Benton, Arkansas end, another newcomer, topped the Southwest with the same number.

Clarence Douglass of Kansas took the leadership in the Big Six with the lowest number of points on the list, 22.

Bowser, M'Lean Ask Suspension Of Mat King

Alex Wants A. W. A. Recognize Clark As Champion

[illegible] Paul Bowser has asked the American Wrestling Association to [illegible] Yvon Robert, [illegible] match with [illegible] Dazzler Clark, flashy Scotch [illegible], at the Boston Garden tonight [illegible] November [illegible]

[illegible]

"Robert cost me a lot of money when he ran out last summer," Bowser declared. "Now he is doing the same thing.

"I have asked the American Wrestling Association to make him go through with the November [illegible] bout or slap a heavy fine on him and give him a long suspension. I believe the wrestling body will go after him."

[illegible]

"I will ask the American Wrestling Association to suspend Robert's [illegible] title and recognize Clark as [illegible] if the title holder continues refusing to wrestle my man," Alex MacLean, manager of the Scotchman, said.

Income of Consumers Declining

Estimates for Next Six Months Call For Small Dip

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

With all this current talk of a trade recession, one of the best methods of retaining one's perspective is to study the outlook for consumer income. Estimates for the next six months made by Brookmire call for a decline of moderate proportions only in comparison with 1936. And comparisons with the average for the same period for the last three years indicate a substantial gain.

Thus it would appear that the stock market by slipping down to 1936 levels is more than discounting any decline in consumer income when the record for the past three years is considered. And certainly none will argue that a two per cent drop in the next six months in comparison with the last year warrants the drastic slide witnessed in recent weeks. At the same time it is worth noting that the Brookmire Income Map records probable gains in aggregate farm and some types of mining income that just fail to offset losses expected by manufacturing and constructive sources. The picture is not one that supports in any measure the blue trade forecasts which are heard of late.

• • •

Now let's look at the physical measurements of trade and see what has been happening. As reported here each week the index compiled by the Administrative and Research Corporation is holding above last year's' levels. And last week for the first time since it began to turn upward in October, a slight decline took place. While this is contrary to the experience of both 1935 and 1936 it is by no means alarming. The margin over '35 is still considerable, about 15 index points, while the figure of 90.2 for this year compares with 87.4 a year ago.

• • •

The index is composed of eight individual industrial and banking records and of these only two declined last week. Freight car loadings and steel ingot reports showed losses from the previous weekly period. While the first may continue its slide the second is thought by many observers to have nearly run its course. But in any event nothing is revealed that supports claims a big recession in trade is and has been taking place.

• • •

Without arguing about the future of trade or consumer income the real point this writer is trying to make is that the market is ahead of itself. Even though contraction continues to take place there seems to be a very real need of adjustment at this time. And adjustment that could come about most logically through an intermediate upswing by the general market. It may be, probably is, a bear market, but even so some correction is to be expected. And when stock prices are looked on as trade barometers it seems perfectly obvious to this writer at least, that internal technical faults conspired to bring about an over-discounting of current conditions and prospects.

• • •

The early part of this week could well be given over to completion of a rally base. A gradual suspension of hectic dealings has been experienced and new minor declines should encourage the type of investment and businessman buying which the list usually encounters before it springs upward. We would anticipate it and watch coppers, steels, rails and utilities in particular in attempting to intercept such a movement.

Steel Operations Decline in Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Operations in the steel industry for the current week declined 3.5 points to 48.6 per cent of capacity, compared with 52.1 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operations averaged 66.1 per cent of capacity while a year ago the rate was 74.7 per cent.

Mild Support Reduces Early Stock Losses of 1 to 3 Points

Washington Disposed to Be Helpful?

By B. C. FORBES

Favorable rather than unfavorable.

Washington, by reducing stock margins and by holding various conferences with experienced men, reveals that it has finally sensed the gravity of recent events in the fiancial world.

President Roosevelt, although noncommittal regarding revision of the capital gains and the undistributed surplus taxes, has been taking counsel with various men of affairs capable of explaining—if given opportunity—how seriously these unwise levies are militating against prosperity and employment.

One hears privately that other measures calculated to modify the pessimism now widely prevalent are contemplated.

As one very large employer expressed it on Saturday, "A few words or sentences from President Roosevelt could change the entire outlook. All we want to know is that he is aware of the import of what has occurred in the financial world and is occurring in the industrial world and that he is prepared to co-operate reasonably to stem the recession which everybody knows has set in."

My own inclination is to be hopeful that something constructive will shortly emanate from Washington.

• • •

Very foolish it would be to hide the truth concerning the automotive industry.

It has suffered a slump.

With few exceptions every executive confides that a blight has overtaken the original crop of prospects for 1938 models. The main causes are summarized thus:

Quite a number of workers have been laid off in different industries and in different places.

Many workers, although still employed, have become chary of buying new cars.

The painful shrinkage in security prices has caused a great many individuals and families to abandon their previous intentions to acquire a new model.

The chill which has overtaken trade and industry has cooled off other "prospects."

A "watchful waiting" attitude, consequently, has become very widespread.

• • •

Because of the vital part now played by Washington "planners" it is extremely hazardous to venture predictions. This writer is profoundly convinced, that given even modest heartening by President Roosevelt, business could and would revive impressively.

Apart from uncertainty, economic conditions warrant the very opposite of panic or acute depression. Even the disturbing state of our federal finances would not thwart rising activity were the employing classes convincingly assured that Washington will help rather than hurt efforts to get the country again going forward.

• • •

Stocks have been forced down quite far enough.

To use Woodrow Wilson's phrase, the national affliction today is "psycholgical."

Washington alone can supply the cure.

Bonds Called

City of Buenos Aires has called for redemption on January 1, at par, all outstanding external 31½ year 6½ per cent sinking fund bonds of 1924, Series 2B.

Trading Pace Light From Start

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Mild support entered the stock market near the final hour today, and early setbacks of 1 to more than 3 points were reduced in many instances.

Steels led a slow downward drift in the morning, reflecting a further fall in mill operations. The American Iron & Steel Institute estimated the current rate at 48.6 per cent of capacity, a recession of 3½ points from last week. It was the seventh successive drop and a new low mark since Dec. 30, 1935. It compared with 74.7 per cent a year ago.

Selling was light from the start.

SHARE LOSERS

Prominent on the fade-away were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Crucible, American Rolling Mill, Wheeling Steel, Vanadium, General Motors, Chrysler, Yellow Truck, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Western Union, North American, Public Service of N. J., American Water Works, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Grich, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Macy, J. I. J., Texas Corp., Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and Atlantic Coast Line.

Persistent rumors abroad the administration might consider another boost in the price of gold aided some mining stocks. Edging forward at one time were Homestake, Dome, McIntyre and Alaska Juneau.

Although new margin requirements officially went into effect today—for buyers the ante was cut from 55 to 40 per cent and lifted to 50 per cent for short sellers—they failed to provide immediate stimulation.

Despite gloom in other sectors, most mail order houses were reported sanguine as to the 1938 outlook. Executives of some catalogue concerns were said to be confident of the improbability of any appreciable write-down in inventories or diminution of 1937 fiscal year profits.

At the same time it was not overlooked that the Associated Press business index has dipped to its lowest point since last June.

CURRENT ITEMS

Some encouragement was found in the survey of the magazine "Steel," which reported the downward movement of mill production last week was much less precipitous than in the previous period, indicating, possibly, that the decline was scraping bottom.

Among hopeful factors cited were the likelihood farm implement makers will resume extensive buying of steel soon as stock-taking in that industry ends, and expectations automobile manufacturers will step up demand when new models are out and fall selling gains momentum.

"Steel," the review added, "has been going into consumption at a much better rate than shipments of recent weeks would indicate."

Sterling, at $4.96 5-16, was up 3-16 of a cent in initial foreign currency transactions. The French franc was .00⅛ of a cent higher at 3.37⅛ cents.

Coca Cola to Pay $2 Extra

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Coca Cola Company today declared an extra dividend of $2 and a quarterly dividend of 75 on the common stock.

A similar extra was paid last December 15. The previous quarterly dividend was 75 cents. Both dividends are payable December 15 to stock of record November 26.

Profits for the quarter ended September 30, after dividends on Class "A" stock were $8,041,700 against $6,776,748 in the September quarter last year.

The company announced payment of an extra month's salary to all employes outside the so-called management group had been authorized by directors. Additional compensation of $250,000 was also authorized to be distributed among the managerial personnel.

September quarter profits were equal to $2.01 a share on the common stock against $1.70 a share in the 1936 September quarter.

One Should Not 'Plunge' Now, Says Haney

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—The composite averages of the stock market closed the week up 2½ to nearly 6 points higher than at the end of the preceding week.

Even bonds were able to make a little gain over a week ago.

While activity was less than in the hectic preceding week, it was notable that it leaned more to the buying side. Certainly the most active issues were gainers, running from Radio (up 1⅛) to Chrysler (up 14⅝).

It should be observed that among this group were the much buffeted U. S. Steel, with a gain of over 10 points, and a utility (Electric Power & Light) up 4 points.

• • •

Business fundamentals are still too much subject to political abuse. There is still too much tendency to think that a little tinkering and manipulation can "create confidence" and start renewed "recovery." We cannot be absolutely sure that the radicals all over the world will not have to see still worse conditions before they learn how impossible their schemes are. Therefore, one should not "plunge." Buying power should be kept in reserve.

I believe, however, that the market's action indicates great improvement, and that much "averaging down" and switching for tax loss purposes should have been going on. Bargain hunting is justified.

The significance and results of such a reaction as the market has undergone, however, is not to be ignored.

The decline in commodity prices, the threatening labor situation (notably in Detroit), and the blow to new financing, should be considered. Conditions in the motor industry warrant caution.

But when all is said, I think that the bad news is now mostly out, and that the stock market should therefore either hold in a trading range pending action by Congress, or should rally to the October 4 level.

• • •

There has been the greatest selling climax in four years, with brokers loans off sharply and a good many panic prices seen. This climax has been followed by a rally that has brought back most of the bullish action symptoms not seen for many weeks. For example, the large and sustained majority of plus signs among all stocks traded is important. It shows that short covering is not the main factor. It shows impressive breadth of the up side.

Incidentally, industrials and rails made new highs on the rally Friday, thus encouraging the "Dow theory" addicts.

Chartists in general will have noted an "ascending triangle," marked by the fact that reactions during the past two weeks have been stopped at successively higher levels. This suggests gathering strength. (Many who wanted to buy on the recent break now come in on any dip.)

• • •

I note particularly that just as the steel trade news is most bearish, U. S. Steel Corp. common stock breaks out of the downward path which it has followed persistently since mid-August.

For the first time in ten weeks, my weekly index of the most active stocks has shown a rise. There is a large amount of funds awaiting investment, and the reduction in margin requirements now frees many speculative accounts.

Earning reports for the third quarter are on the whole somewhat better than anticipated. It is easy to find cash dividend payers that yield better than 6 per cent.

Finally, there is a fairly pronounced seasonal tendency for stocks to rise in early November.

• • •

Therefore, while I doubt that any long-sustained recovery will come, until commodity prices stabilize, I think more drastically hostile action at Washington would be required to break the market than is likely at this time.

Ten-Year Job Over for Taylor

Able Director of U. S. Steel Will Retire Soon

(Editor's Note: Herewith is the first of two articles dealing with the remarkable achievement of Myron C. Taylor, retiring head of the United States Steel Corporation, who took over the reins upon the death ten years ago of the late Elbert H. Gary. The writer, James L. Kilgallen, visited Mr. Taylor, found him adhering to his policy of "no interviews," but obtained at the corporation's offices interesting information concerning Taylor himself, his methods of operation and other facts about one of America's foremost industrial giants.)

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1937)

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Myron C. Taylor, head of "Big Steel," is today putting the finishing touches on "a great job well done."

It has been a 10-year job, and a trying one. It has been a personal achievement for the "successor of Gary." He it was who ably directed the destinies of the powerful corporation through the dangers of the depression and into the clearer horizon of prosperity.

And now the job's about done. On April 4 next, as already announced, Taylor retires as chairman of the board of United States Steel Corporation, which employs 278,000 men, has resources of close to $2,000,000,000 and manufactures about 40 per cent of the steel turned out in this country.

This reporter, with Pollyanna-like optimism, went to Mr. Taylor's offices on the 22nd floor of 71 Broadway, in New York's financial district, with the idea of interviewing the steel leader only to learn that this man who has never sought the limelight doesn't seek it now. There was a pleasant conversation—but no interview.

Taylor, reared in the conservative atmosphere of the Quaker religion, was brought up in the tradition that "publicity of all kinds should be shunned except for a brief mention at birth and death."

He was friendly enough to me; in fact affable. He is tall, well-built. His hand clasp is firm and, even though he is 63, a young-looking 63, there is the suggestion of an athlete about him. His face, a bit ruddy, has smile lines about the eyes and bears the marks of concentration. His dark hair is streaked with grey.

He was neatly attired in a blue pin-striped suit, with a dark-red flower in his lapel. He had a modern, "up to the minute," look about him.

Here was the man who some months ago electrified the nation by agreeing in behalf of "Big Steel" to negotiate on wages and working conditions with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization—a policy which a number of independent steel companies fought to the bitter end in their memorable duel with Lewis.

Since announcing his intention to retire next April—well in advance of the corporation's compulsory retirement age of 70—Taylor has not changed his work day routine and he doesn't intend to until he turns the job over to his successor, Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., present chairman of the finance committee.

Each work day Mr. Taylor arrives at his office at 9 a. m. and seldom quits before 5 p. m. Often he works into the night. His is one of the fullest days of any man in the financial district. He starts by reading his mail. Then he dictates letters, holds conferences with staff executives and in between sandwiches an almost unbelievable number of appointments.

Mr. Taylor has made it a policy to keep in close touch with public opinion. Each morning J. Carlisle MacDonald, assistant to the chairman of the board and a former veteran newspaper correspondent, places a summary of the news on his desk.

After working hours Mr. Taylor usually can be found at his town house in East 70th street, New York City, or at his estate at Locust Valley, Long Island. He and Mrs. Taylor are constant companions. They have no children. Mrs. Taylor is the former Anabel Stuart Mack, of Scotch and English parentage, natives of Edinborough. Mr. Taylor was born at Lyons, N. Y., Jan. 18, 1874, the son of William D. Taylor, a native of Boston, and Mary Morgan Underhill Taylor, a native of New York City. Both his parents, as were several generations of their forebears, were of well-to-do families.

Although Taylor is wealthy, he is a man of simple habits, tastes and life. He shuns the limelight and there have been no cheap dramatics in his career. In social life he has many close and intimate friends whom he entertains in his home. He does not go out much on public occasions of the general sort.

He plays tennis almost daily and is fond of walking. He likes good books and is an inveterate reader. Annually he visits foreign capitals and, with Mrs. Taylor, spends several weeks at his villa in Florence, Italy. He is a member of many clubs, and a trustee of various hospitals, colleges and charitable organizations. He is a member of boards of prominent concerns, such as the First National Bank and the New York Central Railroad. He has a carefully selected art collection, specializing in gothic.

Mr. Taylor has been active in plans for holding together the Metropolitan Opera, of which he is a director, during the past several years of stress. In 1928 he donated a building costing $1,500,000 to the college of law of Cornell University, from which he was graduated in 1894, at the age of 20.

N. E. Business Activity Lower in September

By International News Service.

Due largely to curtailment of production in the shoe and textile industries, the level of general business activity in New England during September was lower than in August, the monthly review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston reported today.

Between August and September there was a decrease of approximately 16 per cent in boot and shoe production in New England. The estimated production was 12,040,000 pairs, an amount nearly 24 per cent below September 1936.

The amount of raw cotton consumed by mills was 74,478 bales, as compared to 81,428 bales in August. Cotton consumption for the first nine months of 1937 was about 21 per cent larger than in the corresponding period of 1936. Consumption of raw wool in September was less than in August.

Freight carloadings during the four-week period ending Oct. 2 were slightly larger than in the corresponding period last year, but sales in department stores and apparel shops were less than in September last year.

With substantial increases in the coal, automotive and furniture groups, the sales volume of 761 retail establishments in Massachusetts during September was $21,147,816, an amount 3.3 per cent larger than the volume reported in September, 1936.

The total number of wage earners and aggregate weekly salary in Massachusetts declined in September, according to the Department of Labor and Industries.

$2500 Auto Pay Martin's Goal

DETROIT, Nov. 1 (INS)—In a direct answer to the recent Boston speech of General Motors Corporation President William S. Knudsen, Homer Martin, president of the CIO's United Automobile Workers Union, today maintained the auto industry should give its workers an annual "living wage" of $2500.

"The automobile industry is sufficiently rich, sufficiently productive and sufficiently profitable to pay to every worker in every factory in this nation a living annual wage of not less than $2500," he said.

Martin, speaking at a labor rally for the CIO slate of candidates in tomorrow's municipal election, said that industry is losing its greatest market by failing to keep wages at high levels.

"Industrial leaders must recognize the necessity for creating purchasing power through the payment of wages to the workers which will permit them to buy back what they produce," he declared.

Martin attacked Knudsen's plea for "liberty for the worker," saying the liberty of the American workers is to take a three-month vacation "without pay" every year.

Business Leaders Tax Conscious At Present

Widespread Discussion of Prospects Of Revision

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Rarely, if ever, before have American business executives been as tax-conscious as at present.

Accordingly, there is widespread discussion of the prospects of tax revision by Congress, especially of the undivided corporate profits tax and the capital gains impost. In preparation of the forthcoming congressional hearings on the subject, the Treasury experts for many weeks have been surveying the entire subject.

Even the Tax Policy League, whose bias seems to be in favor of high "progressive" taxes, in a current survey, reveals that the local tax situation is an important factor in determining the location of new factories and industrial plants.

In giving its conclusions, the league points out:

"Although the studies made offer little evidence to support the thesis that taxes are an important factor in influencing business migration, it is reasonable to believe that they are an important element for consideration in determining the location of a plant and that in a limited number of cases THEY MAY NO DOUBT BE THE DECIDING FACTOR. This would be particularly true of discriminatory levies made upon particular enterprises.

"It would also appear that a relatively high general level of taxes unaccompanied by offsetting compensation in the way of improved governmental services or other local advantages would result in a certain amount of business migration. The tax situation is so complex, however, that the determination of such a condition would be quite difficult.

"One official of an industrial association has said that a firm would have to employ a tax accountant and a tax lawyer before he could compare tax burdens of two communities.

"But even after securing an expert advice the executive of a large plant would need additional information before he could incur the expense and risk of removal. He would need to know enough of the political and tax trends and possibilities in each community to be able to forecast the probable future tax burden for some years to come.

"This is an extremely difficult requirement, but it cannot safely be ignored by the cautious executive. Not only do tax ideas spread rapidly from state to state and city to city, but it also frequently happens that the taxes have a tendency to become heavier as the wave progresses. This has been true to some extent of income, sales and chain store taxes.

"The manufacturer who moves too quickly to escape an unpleasant tax situation may find himself in the classic condition of having jumped from the frying pan into the fire."

Competent tax students agree that the solution lies not so much in tax competition among various states and cities, as countrywide efforts to simplify and coordinate local, state and federal taxes. It will be recalled that while governor of New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt emphasized the need of such nationwide reorientation on the tax question. Since he first raised the issue, the tax load has become very much heavier, and the need for relief is all the greater.

Pointing out that the executive who has already invested in a plant in an excessively tax ridden community is already hooked and cannot get out without a loss, the tax policy league comments further:

"The executive must consider the possibilities of future changes in the tax picture. A marked increase of efficiency on the part of assessing officials in one of the communities would entirely change the picture.

"Moreover, it is extremely unlikely that all the tax rates will continue unchanged. New levies may be imposed or old ones dropped at any session of the legislature. The entire tax structure of the state may be drastically reorganized. Local governmental units may be abolished or consolidated with resulting changes in the tax situation.

"The federal government may adopt legislation which will tend to equalize certain important state levies as it did in 1926 with respect to the estate and inheritance taxes."

Exports of U. S. Cotton Larger

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Exports of American cotton were larger this week than in the corresponding week last year, according to the weekly report of the New York Cotton Exchange. They totaled 234,000 bales against 171,000 last year. Total exports during the season to date are 1,527,000 bales against 1,519,000 in the corresponding period of last season.

Movement of American cotton into sight totaled 652,000 bales this week against 772,000 last year. The total into sight for the season to date is 6,752,000 bales against 6,276,000 for the corresponding period of last season. Forwardings to mills of the world were 403,000 bales this week against 466,000 last year. Total forwardings for the season to date are 2,957,000 bales against 3,251,000 for the same period of last season.

Hearst Cannery System Called 'Clear, Candid'

Trade Journal Lauds Publisher for Letterheads

(Reprinted from the October 11 issue of "The Canning Trade," a journal of the canning and allied industries).

REFRESHING CANDOR — We have in front of us the business letterhead of Hearst Sunical Land & Packing Corporation, office in Oroville, Cal., "orchards and cannery owned and operated by the company, in Butte County, Northern California."

In case you do not know it, this is the well-known W. R. Hearst, owner and publisher of the string of daily papers, of many magazines, and the greatest land owner, we believe, in the world, and one of the world's richest men.

Whether or not you look up to him as a model worthy of example in some things, we wish to recommend him as a model to canners generally, in his manner of conducting his canning business, at least as to the merchandising of his products.

CANDID STATEMENT

On this same letterhead there appears this truly astounding — for such products — clear and candid statement:

	BRANDS
Fancy	Hearst Ranch
Choice	Sunical Modern Pak
Standard	Rural Gold
	Mother's Cupboard
	Apron Strings
Seconds	Vita Gee
Water	Calola
Pie	Supply

There you are, plainly stated so that all may read and know, right on their business letterhead; no undercover, no evasion or "shhh" as to the quality under any brand.

If anyone dealing with this canner does not know what his brands stand for it is because he cannot read, or is unable to understand.

A WORTHY EXAMPLE

We have been a long while plugging this game, trying to convince all canners that honesty and plain dealing are essential to success and contentment, but this is the first time that we can recall seeing the admonition put into such clear force.

As a rule the only one who knows what a brand really represents, from a quality standpoint, is the canner—and often he does not know, so we regard this act on Hearst's part as very refreshing candor, and entirely worthy of example; in fact we would like to see it the rule everywhere, rather than the very rare exception, and we do not mean to exempt even so-called well known brands.

But we wonder: does he carry this candor through to the consumer-buyer? His letterhead carries it to the wholesale buyers, distributors, brokers, etc., but is he equally candid in stating on his labels the quality he serves under each brand?

TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE

If he does, and if the cannery force is careful that each brand conveys the quality claimed, then we may say we are approaching the millenium.

It would be almost too good to be true. Of course, it is only what any good merchandiser would do; it is just good common sense,—but we would like to see it, and any other's labels that comply in this manner. Let's have them. Is there a single buyer's label so plainly honest with the consumer buyer?

(Note: Hearst Sunical Land & Packing Corporation informs the San Francisco Examiner that its "fancy" and "choice" grades are so labeled, but are above U. S. the intermediate grades are not so labeled but areabove U. S. standards; that the lower grades are plainly labeled "Below U. S. Standards.")

New Farm Bill Agreement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The House Agricultural committee agreed today on the principle of voluntary control of wheat, cotton, and rice crops in the new farm bill.

Chairman Jones (D.-Tex.), said the group also has virtually accepted a proposal for compulsory control of tobacco.

The question of compulsory or voluntary regulation of crop production has been one of the most controversial before the committee, which is drafting a bill for presentation at the special session of Congress Nov. 15.

The skeleton bill outlined by Jones also provides for continuation of soil conservation payments, financing the new program by some form of tariff equalizing taxes, and setting up marketing quotas in emergencies.

Police Radio Call Heard in England

When Cambridge police were calling Car 23 on October 21 the announcer's words were picked up by G. G. Avery's two-tube set in Mill street, Liverpool, England, Chief Timothy F. Leahy was informed today.

Avery, in a letter to Leahy, described the car call reception as of "good strength and clear." He disclosed his set is equipped with an eight-foot indoor antenna.

Writers, Medical Men Hope by New Plan To Inform Reader

Special to the Boston American

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 — A foundation of a new system, by which the publication of medical news in American newspapers will be truer, newer and freer than ever before has been laid here today at an unique joint meeting of science writers and officials representatives of organized medicine.

The meeting was held at the American Medical Association headquarters, at the invitation of the Association and the American College of Surgeons. Waldemar Kaempffert, who acted as chairman said:

UNMUZZLE MEDICAL NEWS

"The purpose of the conference is to unmuzzle medical news. Physicians and surgeons, following their ethics, thwart the obtaining of medical news and its publication even by such science writers as are present here."

Gobind Behari Lal, science editor of International News Service and the Hearst newspapers and a co-winner of the 1937 Pulitzer prize for scientific reporting, with Howard W. Blakeslee, David Dietz, John J. O'Neill and William L. Laurance, said in his address at the meeting:

"You doctors, who are merchants of life, cannot feel a greater responsibility towards the public than we do, the merchants of scientific news and views, who reach out to millions of readers every day.

"The International News Service, including the Hearst newspapers among its subscribers, is used by nearly 900 newspapers in every part of the country. Mr. Blakeslee and Mr. Dietz similarly write for countless millions daily.

TELLS OF NEW SYSTEM

"The American Medical Association, the American College of Surgeons and affiliated societies will start a new system of cooperating with us by giving to a selected group of science writers special written credentials, which would enable us to contact the sources of medical discoveries and inventions and their newest applications."

Air Maneuvers Open Crusade

The opening of the three-week "Community Crusade," conducted in the interest of the 106 social agencies in Greater Bostons Community Fund, was marked with air maneuvers and a procession of 50 cars driven by "Crusade Couriers" today.

The air maneuvers were performed by the Massachusetts National Guard over Boston Common, directed by Major Clarence Hodge. Several stunts were performed by Lieutenant Crocker Snow of the U. S. Army Air Corps Service.

The crusade, which is an educational branch of Greater Boston's Community Fund, is under the direction of Mrs. Randolph K Byers.

Young Boston debutantes make up the "Crusade Couriers." They were uniformed in white rubber coats with collars, belts and buttons of red, with jaunty white trench caps bearing the red feather, Community Fund insignia.

The Community Crusade, an intensive 21-day drive, will lead to the 1938 campaign in late January, of which Leverett Saltonstall is chairman.

Unions Plan New Peace Move

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor and the CIO will make one more effort this week to agree on peace terms and unite their forces into a single, powerful organization.

Most labor observers predicted, however, that when the 13 peace negotiators meet again Thursday they will come no nearer to an agreement than they did in three days of wrangling last week.

During an eight-day suspension of peace conversations both sides have gone ahead with arrangements to continue independent courses.

The Committee for Industrial Organization called a convention here of unions in the furniture, bedding and allied industries. The A. F. of L. leadership talked of new organization campaigns in the maritime, newspaper, textile, oil, lumber and agriculture and canning fields.

Kember Gets 2nd Rail Freight Post

St. Albans, Vt., Nov. 1 (AP)—The appointment of Arnold Kember as general freight agent of the Central Vermont Railway was announced here today by H. A. Carson, general manager.

Kember last week was appointed general freight agent of the Canadian National Railways Grand Trunk Railway System in Boston. He will hold both positions.

Mediation Board Urged for Ship Labor Strife

Expert Suggestion In U. S. Maritime Board Report

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The maritime commission may advocate creation of a mediation board, an informed person said today, as the best means of settling labor troubles in the American Merchant Marine.

The board, if authorized, would be fashioned along the lines of the National Mediation Board which annually settles scores of disputes between railway labor and management.

AWAIT REPORT

The recommendation may be contained in a report by the commission next Monday on all phases of merchant marine development. The conclusions will be designed to guide the expenditure of millions of dollars in government aid.

The men making the report are known to believe that one of the first obstacles they must remove in order to safeguard this heavy federal investment is that of labor upheavals in the shipping industry.

Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the commission, recently described labor conditions in the industry as very bad. He suggested informally that authority over labor should be concentrated "somewhere."

ONE BILL INTRODUCED

A bill for a maritime mediation board was introduced at the last session of Congress. It provided for a large membership, including labor and employer represention. When objection was raised to the type of board proposed the bill was rewritten, but did not go beyond committee consideration.

This revise bill, it was learned authoritatively, probably will be the basis for more determined efforts next session.

New Drug Cures Insanity

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (INS)—Mental faculties of about 30 per cent of the dementia precox patients at the Chicago State Hospital have been restored in the last six months by the use of a strange new drug treatment it was disclosed today.

Before it "cures," the drug throws the patients into convulsions.

Staff physicians made it plain, however, that what had been accomplished was not to be known as an outright "cure," but rather as a "social recovery" which permits the patients to leave the institution and resume normal occupations.

The drug is known as metrazol. The new treatment, according to Dr. J. V. Edlin, staff psychiatrist, can be completed in from six to eight weeks.

Fifth of U. S. Women Work

Third of These Are Also Home-Makers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The women's bureau estimated today that more than one-fifth of the women in the United States are gainfully employed.

More than one-third of this group of 10,752,000 also are home-makers.

An estimated one-tenth are the entire support of families of two or more persons; many others assist in supporting families.

Wages in women's jobs invariably are at a lower level than those of men in identical industries.

These conclusions were contained in a report written by Mary Elizabeth Pidgeon, bureau research chief, to answer a query from the international labor office at Geneva on the economic status of women in this country.

Alberta Court Kills Social Credit Acts

EDMONTON, Alberta, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Alberta Supreme Court today declared void two important financial measures put through the provincial legislature last April as a part of the social credit program of Premier William Aberhart.

One of the measures reduced by 50 per cent the interest on provincial guaranteed securities, and the other required consent of the lieutenant-governor-in-council to bring court action to collect the full amount of interest.

Captain Won't Quit Dredge Far at Sea

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 1 (INS)—One seaman and the captain of the dredge Foundation Scarborough, tossed at sea for 48 hours after its tow lines were snapped, refused to leave it today when the trawler Howard Donald took off two other crew members.

During a week-end storm in the Strait of Canso, the Scarborough broke away from her tug. The Howard Donald reported the dredge was far out at sea and being battered badly by heavy seas.

B. U. Plans Anderson Memorial

Will Develop Estate Gift for Faculty And Students

Boston University today was the recipient of a 10-acre educational and recreational center in Brookline given by Mrs. Isabel Anderson of Brookline and Webster, N. H., in memory of her husband, the late Larz Anderson, distinguished diplomat and one-time ambassador to Japan.

Announcement of the gift, which includes three large buildings adjoining the Anderson estate in Brookline, was made by Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of the university.

The memorial is to serve as a center for faculty, students, alumnae and friends of Boston University College of Practical Letters.

One of the new buildings is to be occupied by Dean T. Lawrence Davis as his official residence. The largest building will be known as Larz Anderson Hall and will include lounging rooms, classrooms, arts and crafts studios and photography laboratories.

The third building will contain a special library, reading rooms, guests rooms and facilities for receptions, banquets and other college activities.

President Marsh announced that plans have been made to convert the 10 acres, adjoining "Weld," the famous Anderson estate, into beautiful recreational grounds.

Vote Tomorrow, Prevent A Racket Triumph

THE BOSTON mayoralty campaign, the most bitter in two decades, comes to a close with the familiar display of verbal fireworks.

Men and women of this great city, in whose judgment the municipal destiny must always rest secure, are now prepared to return their solemn verdict.

We use "solemn" advisedly. It means grave and serious. Boston wants that kind of election.

Unfortunately and regrettably there is no real assurance the wish will be granted. Evidence of carefully-laid plots to elect machine-favored candidates in spite of the people is too convincing to be ignored.

Voting lists have not been padded and signatures forged on nomination papers without reason.

Fifteen thousand poll tax notices, a record number, were not returned to City Hall by the Post Office because there has been an exodus of men from Boston.

It was not the pleasure of having something to say that induced the Police Department to expose a scheme of racketeers to transport a corps of professional women "voters" from polling place to polling place.

Dead men do not appear as nomination endorsees because it is now possible to return from the next world.

Minors have not become "registered voters" through any alteration of the statute that makes twenty-one years the minimum age requirement.

Names of persons who never existed were not written into the official records merely to give somebody penmanship practice.

Commissioner Timilty has not mobilized the entire Police Department for 24-hour duty out of a desire to provide work for his 2400 men.

Abandoned and windowless houses are not filled with contented Bostonians, even though the listings of some patrolmen indicate they are.

Nor do vacant lots overflow with "residents," all eligible to mark ballots tomorrow.

THERE exists—and it cannot be denied—a deliberate plot on the part of racketeering interests to steal the election and to put in office men favorable to the worst type of politician, though not necessarily favorable to the people.

To say that all this will be stopped in the few hours that remain would be to promise something that obviously could not be done.

The greatest mobilization of the Police Department since the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti in 1927 may frighten "repeaters" from the polls. We can only hope it will.

The threats of District Attorney Foley to punish fraudulent balloters to the full extent of the law may induce some to stay at home. Yet nobody, save an extreme optimist, believes fear of punishment will have this wholesome effect on all fakers.

Common sense argues strongly that vote buyers who have gone this far will try to go the WHOLE DISTANCE. Only a handful of names regarded as suspicious have been removed from the lists. Undoubtedly that will make the racketeers confident.

HOWEVER, and VERY FORTUNATELY, the honest voters of Boston have a powerful weapon which they may use against election schemers. The weapon is simply this: A VOTE BY EVERY CITIZEN OF BOSTON ELIGIBLE TO CAST A BALLOT.

The Election Commissioners have qualified 344,288 voters. Three hundred thousand of these, at least, are genuine. Numerically they can crush the "ghosts," the "phantoms" and the "repeaters" in an avalanche of honesty.

Then, only in a close contest between two candidates, could the presence of fraud be a deciding factor.

Let us hope this will not be the story. Let us hope the best man wins by a sweeping majority.

And, above all, let us hope that the free expression of the popular mind, and not the bought and paid-for ballots of politicians, will name our next mayor.

Vote for a candidate. Vote against a racket. That is the thing to do tomorrow.

Massachusetts Pens Plea

MASSACHUSETTS, in a brief drawn up by Public Works Commissioner William F. Callahan, will explain the use of gasoline tax revenue for purposes other than highway construction and maintenance.

Mr. Callahan's purpose is to prevent the Federal Government from carrying out its threat to penalize this State by withdrawing or curtailing the allotments usually made for various roads.

His task is made more difficult by the knowledge that the Washington Bureau of Highways seldom breaks its rule that all the money collected from motorists must be expended for their enjoyment and safety.

We hope the Commissioner succeeds; Massachusetts can use every dollar the Federal Government sends us.

However, this experience ought to be a lesson to future administrations. We should give the automobile owners the modern roads that the gasoline tax revenue will provide.

If we do that, there will never be cause for us to fear the penalties that Washington now considers, nor need for any official ever to make explanations to avoid them.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Diary: A breakfast feast on some tasty preserves Margaret Pemberton sent from Jersey. And came an autographed copy of Louis Bromfield's brave tale of India, "The Rains Came."

O. O. McIntyre

Also a note from Wendy Barrie and one from Gilda Gray, now on a Colorado ranch.

So talking to my wife about getting away awhile, becoming almost worn out hearing so many cankered in doubt about the world.

And Winnie Sheehan and the lovely Jeritza called to invite us to broadcast with Will and Jessie Hays. Then for a walk, and a street fiddler told me he once fiddled at Rector's.

To dinner with the Joseph P. Kennedys and I found him as always one of the clearest thinkers of our time. And chatting a moment with Mrs. Margaret Emerson and her daughter, Gloria Baker, Harry Evans, George Jean Nathan and Luza, the fashion artist. To my couch.

More than a million have followed David Grayson's "Adventures in Contentment," so popular 20 years ago. Recently he was asked to revive the "Adventures," and again they rang the bell. Which proves the tug of simplicity in writing and in theme.

The Grayson articles are without plot. Just rambling notations of the joys to be found in the quiet places by the side of the road—looking on.

Not many know Grayson in real life is the well-known Ray Stannard Baker of Amherst, Mass.

In the London Daily Mail there is a stickful daily on the editorial page captioned, "A Countryman's Diary." It is a musical lilt in type, from the countryside, exquisite essayettes about darting wrens in the hedgerows, the spread of tree moss and innumerable observations so truly rural and as old-fashioned as the rag hearth rug.

The diary has been running 20 years and a Fleet street editor tells me it brings more protests when left out than any other feature.

For oblivion: Those fan clubs who fire a barrage of letters when a columnist has anything save praise for a movie star.

New York is expecting a visit from Mrs. Laura Henderson, London's lively 73-year-old lady who has proved such a good friend to English theatrical performers.

Rich, she opened up a closed theater in London as an open door to actors out of work, and called the enterprise "Revudeville." It continues from 2 p. m. until 9:30.

In four years only four weeks had been profitable until recently, when it caught on and today is a money maker. Mrs. Henderson has lived much of her life in China and India.

And, speaking of China, friends about the Lambs and Players are wondering the fate of dapper Tom Millard in the Shanghai uprising. No one seems to have heard from him.

Tommy, a native of Rolla, Mo., who features snow white suits, derbies of brown beaver, and hasn't dined in mufti in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, has been a foreign correspondent for 30 years and more recently became a public relations counsel for the Chinese government.

He became as much a part of Shanghai as The Bund.

An avenue haberdasher tells me the most favored design in neckties is the blue polka dot. Every man, he says, has one or more in his collection.

Most necktie buyers like the feminine viewpoint. Clifton Webb brings his mother. Lynn Fontaine makes Alfred Lunt's selections. Arnold Reuben, the delicatessener, is a glutton for purple ties and any new shade will make him a customer.

Jack Wheeler will sneak a red tie purchase now and then when his wife isn't looking. Charles G. Norris, the novelist, is the most extravagant of all cravat customers, but most of his ties are gifts for friends.

William Goadby Loew is about the last of the Ascot tie buyers.

Bagatelles: Rollin Kirby, the cartoonist, is an expert at bottle pool . . . Colonel E. M. House has subscribed to a careful diet and routine of exercise since his 20th birthday . . . Sinclair Lewis is a pushover for chilled raw tomatoes with coarse salt, as who isn't?

Reflection: Ukulele music sounds to me like the requiem for a dead cat, sung by two plaintive kittens.

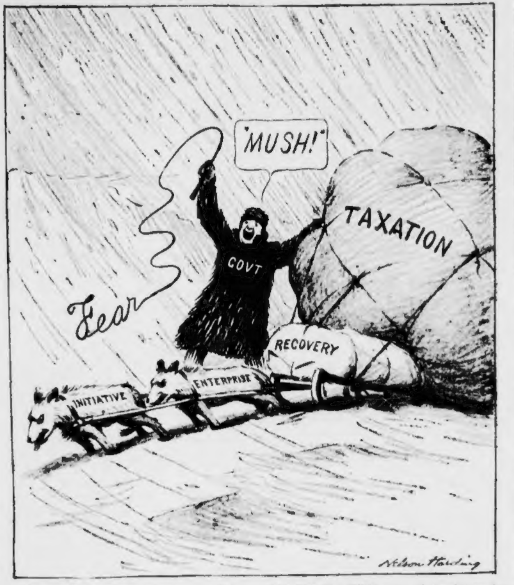
Isn't It So?

There is nothing sweeter than the smile with which a jealous woman can humiliate her rival.

The quickest way to bore a man to death is to try living up to all his theoretical "ideals."

How Can They?

By Nelson Harding



Dwindling tax returns are the Government's greatest problem.

And dwindling business, caused by FEAR of ruinous and punitive taxes already imposed and of higher taxes now threatened, is the cause.

The Government can't whip MORE TAXES out of business by taxing it into a state of paralysis. This is obvious.

Congress must LIGHTEN THE TAX LOAD through economy at the SPENDING END of the Government.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

So you think the younger generation thinks only of wild parties, fine feathers and raising Cain generally.

Then read this column any Monday, when Young America takes the stump, and you'll get the surprise of your life.

This time it's 19-year-old Lynn Washburn of Boston with a question which will nag the graybeards.

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"Should WPA workers be allowed to marry?

"The WPA is an emergency relief measure taken by the government to help men and women until they can find better work, and it certainly is not intended to supply lifelong incomes to newlyweds.

"I know of several workers who have married and taken on the encumbrance of wives and children already — without the slightest future outside the WPA program.

"How about the poor taxpayers who must carry them?

"Most worthy young people can obtain positions outside the WPA if they really want them—and until that time they should put off matrimony.

"Lynn Washburn, 19,
"Boston."

($10 Prize Winner)

There's a stout protest, Lynn, and you're winning a prize for your sincerity, even though thousands of us won't agree with you.

We dislike idleness as much as you do, but where are those easy, better jobs which "most worthy young people can find if they want them?"

Believe me, Lynn, THEY SIMPLY DON'T EXIST.

There are undoubtedly crooks and chiselers in the WPA ranks, as there are in every other human group. But the vast majority are decent folk who have been hard hit by conditions for which they are in no way responsible.

I admit that marriage under such circumstances seems bad sense and poor sportsmanship.

Yet wouldn't it be barbarous to them—and a body blow to America—to deny marriage to those who are temporarily dependent through no fault of their own, and by so doing, limit desirable births?

Poverty does not make a criminal of a man.

HOW WOULD YOU FEEL, YOUNGSTER, IF YOU WERE IN THEIR SHOES?

HE WANTS FREEDOM

Then comes 20-year-old Laurence Marcus of Chicago, Ill., with that staple complaint: "MY MOTHER WANTS TO RUN MY LIFE."

"Don't get the impression that my mother is a tyrant," says her devoted but irked son. "She's a grand women. She has struggled hard and long to raise us, and she would willingly die for me.

"Her very insistence on shaping my career is based on her desire for my happy life—BUT HAS SHE A RIGHT TO CHOOSE MY FUTURE, EVEN IN THE NAME OF LOVE?

"I long, above everything else, to be a writer, and I use every moment I can spare from my job as stock clerk to improve myself in writing.

"But Mother is firmly set against it. She smiles when I get a rejection . . . chides me about my 'foolish dreams' . . . declares I'm wasting my time.

"All over the country this is going on. Do you think it is fair?

"Laurence Marcus, 20,
"Chicago, Ill."

($10 prize winner.)

Fair? No, Laurence. Even when done in the name of love, it's unwise for her to interfere.

You may not have real writing ability—I cannot tell—but whether you have or not, you'll enrich your whole life by trying to better yourself.

Also, the "successful writers" who are now earning $50,000 began just as you have, by "puttering around and reading rejection slips."

But even if your whole urge were mistaken, your mother should still keep hands off—FOR THE RIGHT TO MAKE HIS OWN DECISIONS, EVEN IF THEY ARE WRONG ONES, IS EACH INDIVIDUAL'S MOST SACRED PRIVILEGE AND DUTY.

PRAISE FOR FILMS

Even Junior America is casting its vote these days. Here's 12-year-old Mary Hurley of Florence, Mass., with a boost for the much maligned movies.

Dear Miss Elsie:

"We hear so many knocks about the movies, but think of the fine things they have done, especially for people who are too poor to travel or too busy to read much.

"Look at the educational films we children see, such as "The Story of Louis Pasteur," "The Good Earth," "Zola" and many others. What good they have done!

"Yes, there are trashy films, but instead of condemning the movie people we should blame the parents who let their children attend such things. I say—ON WITH THE MOVIES!

"Mary Hurley, 12,
"Florence."

($5 Prize Winner.)

A fine start, little sister. Keep it up and you'll be running a newspaper yet.

RULES

1—The writer of a letter in competition for one of the three weekly prizes—Two of $10 each and one of $5—must be under thirty years of age.

2—The letter must be upon some subject of importance to American Youth.

3—The letter must not exceed 500 words in length.

4—The writer must give his or her age and full name and address, and the name of each writer awarded a prize will be published.

5—To be eligible for the prize awarded each Monday a letter must bear postmark not later than noon of the preceeding Saturday.

6—Miss Elsie Robinson is to be sole judge of the merits of letters submitted in the contest.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

AN epidemic of conferences is in progress. Representatives of the American Federation of Labor and of the Committee for Industrial Organization have been meeting in an attempt to patch up differences which have split the labor movement in this country for nearly two years.

Over in London, the Non-Intervention Committee is making another effort to get rid of foreign interference in the Spanish civil war.

A conference of the Nine-Party Treaty signatories has been called for Brussels in a move to restore peace in China.

There is little optimism about any of these conferences.

It will be surprising if anything is accomplished at any of them.

The settlement of controversies at a conference board requires a willingness on the part of all the conferees to make concessions.

Most of the trouble-making nations nowadays are too bull-headed to concede anything. They are in a taking mood. And reason is the last thing they want to listen to.

Our American tax-spenders are still in a taking mood, too.

According to a compilation of Beulah Bailey Thull, research assistant of the New York State Department of Taxation and Finance, published in the California Taxpayers Association's Tax Digest, there have been 55 state legislative sessions in the United States this year.

Most of them were regular sessions. Some were special. The Ohio Legislature was the only one which did not inaugurate tax legislation of some kind.

Almost without exception, new tax laws are designed to put the tax-taker's hand deeper into the taxpayer's pocket.

An optimist, nowadays, is a person who thinks tax burdens are going to be made lighter.

The general tendency this year has been to make emergency levies permanent, levy more kinds of taxes, do anything and everything that will raise more revenue.

And as long as the taxpayers stand for it and keep on electing wasters to public office, the gouging will continue.

That recent crossing crash at Mason City, Ia., where one of the new streamlined trains struck a school bus which was loaded with high school students and teachers, was a horrible tragedy. Nine were killed outright and a score were injured.

This accident was all the more deplorable because there was no excuse for it. It never should have happened, and it couldn't have happened if even ordinary caution had been used.

Every person who drives a motor vehicle knows that railroad trains run on railroad tracks. When a motorist approaches a blind crossing where he cannot see if a train is coming, consideration for his own neck should compel him to slow down and stop, if necessary, until he can make certain he will be safe in driving across the tracks.

Even if a driver is willing to take a chance and risk his own life by going ahead when he does not know the track is clear, he has no right to jeopardize the lives of a bus load of passengers.

The Whipping Post

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

For the first time in 10 years a wife-beater suffers deserved punishment in the State of Delaware.

Edwin C. Hill

James Hart, convicted of wife-beating, was led to the whipping post in the yard of the New Castle County Workhouse in Wilmington.

His hands were bound to the post above his head. His back was bared.

Warden Elwood H. Wilson, straight-armed (bending the elbow is not permitted) cracked the cat-o'-nine-tails. Ten times the lash wrapped itself around Hart's back.

Delaware adopted the whipping post 220 years ago. All other states have abandoned it. Women are not permited to witness a whipping, nor may women be whipped. No photographs may be taken.

Counterfeiting and causing a vessel to be wrecked are both punishable by 39 lashes.

Here's an oddity: If you steal a dog you can be lashed 20 times. If you beat your wife the punishment is the same.

About two years ago, in below-zero weather, three young robbers were taken through a tunnel which leads from the county workhouse to a small enclosed yard. Each one was shackled to a post and then the warden applied the lash.

They apply the lash to evildoers every now and then in Delaware, and no amount of agitation has ever been powerful enough to raise the law from the statute books.

WOMEN OPPOSE IT

On the whole, public sentiment has been strongly for that ancient method of punishment, although women's clubs have agitated against it on the ground that it is degrading not only to the victim but to onlookers.

That agitation has brought about very strict rules covering the number of persons who may witness a whipping.

Like every other really interesting question it has its two sides. Two former wardens in Delaware were strongly opposed to whipping; others laid on the lash with a heavy hand.

All of which brings to mind that a demand has arisen recently to establish the whipping post in the State of New York.

Some persons have advocated an electric whipping machine to avoid the danger of brutalizing the man who applied the whip.

Others have suggested that whipping be restricted to the punishment of certain crimes, such as wife-beating or cruelty to dumb animals.

A very learned and eminent judge of my acquaintance thinks that the whipping post would do more to cure gangsters and racketeers than any other form of punishment, because, as he sees it, it would make them look so small, so weak, so utterly of no importance, destroying all the false glamor which often surrounds them, smashing their own notions of their importance.

Edward P. Mulrooney, who rose from the ranks to be just about the best police commissioner New York ever had, and who knows the criminal world in all of its dark nooks and corners, thought that New York should have a whipping post. He believed it would cut petty crimes 50 per cent and make a considerable reduction in major crimes.

Moreover, Mr. Mulrooney was convinced that it would keep criminals from other states from moving to New York.

HE PREFERRED DEATH

Perhaps it is not generally known, but over in England the whipping post is still in existence, and has been an institution of punishment for at least a thousand years.

Jailers there take the law literally, so much so that in recent weeks the country was stirred by the suicide of a convict in Dartmoor because of his fear of an impending 12 strokes.

He left the note:

"My head goes just like a clock before it strikes and I shake awful. The policeman in my head keeps lashing me every night.

"I cannot rest or sleep. Keep starting up feeling the lash across my body. My mind is in agony."

The coroner was shocked by the case and it was called up in the House of Commons.

Thereupon, a writer in the New Statesman and Nation offered the comment that the affair provided "magnificent evidence for the effectiveness of flogging as a punishment and should, if we were logical, create a demand for the extension of this penalty for further offenses."

It is very unlikely that any state outside of Delaware will adopt such a law.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

We hear from time to time harsh criticism, generally from left circles, of the employment by General Franco of Moors in his army.

The Moors are not "foreigners" in Spain, and many of them have more right there than, say, members of the Abraham Lincoln Battalion, fighting on the side of the Communists (which penthouse radicals camouflage as "democrats").

Authorities say that the original Spaniards, known as the Iberians, were Moors, or Berbers, from Morocco and Arabia who crossed from Africa to the mainland of Europe about 3000 B. C.

These, mixed with Celtic, Greek and Latin stock, make up the Spaniard of today. The Moors for about four hundred years held all of Southern Spain, and today "Spanish Architecture" is still predominantly Moorish. It was not until the thirteenth century that the Moors were finally conquered by Northern Spain. But Spain remains today more Moorish than Celtic or Latin.

It is interesting to recall that one Moor who achieved worldwide immortality never lived—Shakespeare's Othello.

Dr. Arthur T. MacCormack, president of the American Health Association, recently made an appeal to scientists to use words that are understandable by the average person.

This sound request ought also include the elimination of "ideas" that are merely a collection of empty words, as, for instance, the following:

"The older gods of power are melting in the fierce heat of modern social forces. The great problem of the future is the construction of new patterns of human association, bringing together the scattered elements now so often found apart."

The above was uttered by Professor Charles E. Merriam, of the University of Chicago.

What he means to say is this: THINGS ARE CHANGING.

Well, they always did change and they always will change—so why all this highfalutin jargon about the "older gods of power" and "new patterns of human association"?

Nothing upsets most readers quicker than the use of grandiose sentences in the place of simple, clear definite statements.

Loose talk:

"Nobody knows a thing of what he's talking about, but he who puts up the best bluff gets $3500 a week," said Grover Jones, scenarist, before the National Labor Relations Board in testifying about Hollywood matters.

There was no "bluff" in the creation of "The Informer," "Captains Courageous," "The Good Earth," "The Life of Emile Zola" and a dozen other film masterpieces I could name.

The men that made them and those who acted in them knew what they were doing and "talking about."

No man can get $3500 a week or $35 a week, and "bluff" it out very long.

Are we a "self-governing" nation?

A reader of March of Events in Seattle who is much perturbed on this subject writes about the great power that our Presidents have as follows:

"I think our Presidents have too much power for a democracy. Why should he, a single man, have the power to veto an act of Congress? Why should he be allowed to order legislation? It seems to me that the parliamentary systems of France and England, where the chiefs of the government are mere figureheads and where cabinets can be thrown out by the will of Parliament, come nearer to achieving the will of the people."

There is some food for thought in that letter. But it would take overturning amendments to the Constitution to accomplish such a revolution in our system of government.

Congress can override the veto of the President, according to our Constitution, and if the President "orders" legislation it is because Congress has deliberately waived its constitutional rights.

Although the French president and the English king have no power we seem, as a democracy, to get along better, in the long run, than England and France do with their patent revolving and disappearing cabinets. It's too much like mob-rule.
